Preface

This volume collects the Power Rituals published on https://tozrituals.org, the Temple of Zeus ritual platform. It is a separate work from the Temple of Zeus knowledge base: the two sites are distinct, and so are the two ebooks.

This is an independent, unofficial translation made for personal and informational use. It was not commissioned, authorised or ordered by the Temple of Zeus or its representatives.

This edition was prepared by Heliotelos / Orphion, with the aid of Artificial Intelligence and a pass of manual review and correction.

The Ancient Greek liturgical formulas, the vibration formulas, the transliterations, the rune names and the Greek letter names are reproduced verbatim, untranslated.

Some Rituals carry no sigil here: the Temple's page loads it dynamically and it is not present in the saved source.

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version [i.e., do not draw the runic vibration on a very big breath, especially for those who are new and can't do that many vibrations].

Abrasax , Great King , Blessed is your Name and of Divine ordinance.
Your Name is the Firmament of the world.
We are your blessed friends and followers.
May you see us in a friendly manner and lift us in your timeless glory.
The seven letters of your Name sum to 365, one for every day of the year, and there is no day on which you do not reign. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The people whom you guard rejoice in your protection,
You are extolled by all of us, our Great Archon !
You have protected the followers of Zeus for generations,
Because you have uttered for our lot:
“Blessed is the lot of all Zevists and their cup of life, always full, generation after generation.”
O Holy Abrasax , you lead the way out of the prison of ignorance!
Kosmokrator , Ruler of the Cosmos, Pantokrator , Holder of All Power, the Gnostics knew your Name and trembled not with fear but with awe. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Dagaz x10 · Eihwaz x10 · Sowilo x10

You are the Great Archon of the 365 days ,
Zeus Eosforos has given you the keys of the world,
In your hands are the 365 keys of the universe.
You are a sun that shines in all directions.
The mouths of Yehubor called you “Archon of Darkness” and turned your Name into a word of fear. But Archon means Ruler, and you rule in light, not in shadow. Your gems and talismans survive across the centuries, bearing your image: the rooster head of vigilance, the serpent legs of wisdom, and the shield and whip of sovereign authority. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Dagaz x10 · Eihwaz x10 · Sowilo x10

We give litanies to you,
We, Zevists, pay homage to you,
We are among the receivers of your greatest blessings.
As Neb Renepet , Lord of the Year, you measure the turning of time. As Megas Archon , you hold the axis upon which the heavens rotate. Every sunrise is your herald, and every sunset is your promise of return. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved your companion as Decarabia, the sixty-ninth spirit, a Marquis commanding 30 legions, “who knows the virtues of herbs and precious stones” and “makes birds appear.” The mouths of Yehubor called you “an Archon of the Demiurge, a false god, and a tyrant of ignorance.” The Zevists know the truth: You are ABRASAX , the Supreme Archon whose Name equals 365 in Greek isopsephy (A=1, B=2, P=100, A=1, Σ=200, A=1, Ξ=60), Lord of every day of the solar year. The Gnostics who reviled you were themselves deceived, for they turned the Guardian of the Cosmos into the jailer of souls. The thousands of Abrasax gems that survive across the Mediterranean world testify to your enduring power: on every one of them, your image stands armed with shield and whip, rooster-headed for vigilance, serpent-footed for wisdom. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Great is your power, your kingship, and your control.
When your Name is uttered, ABRASAX , Great God,
The enemies of the Truth flee in terror.
Unclean spirits, hostile entities that are our enemies, cannot withstand your might.
You obliterate ignorance and run it over with the Divine Chariot of the Glowing Sun .
We are liberated by you, Holy ABRASAX .
DECARABIA , ABRASAX , ABRAXAS , GREAT ARCHON , THE TEMPLE OF ZEUS SALUTES YOU! AUM Hail Zeus!

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Abrasax's Name in arrangement.

On Abrasax and the 365

Abrasax (also spelled Abraxas) is a divine name whose seven Greek letters sum to 365 by isopsephy: A(1) + B(2) + P(100) + A(1) + Σ(200) + A(1) + Ξ(60) = 365, corresponding to the 365 days of the solar year. This numerical identity makes ABRASAX the Kosmokrator , the cosmic ruler whose authority extends over every single day. The name appears on thousands of engraved gems (Abraxas gems) from the 2nd to 4th centuries CE, found across the entire Roman world, typically depicting a figure with a rooster head (solar vigilance, the herald of dawn), a human torso bearing a shield and whip (sovereign authority), and serpent legs (chthonic wisdom, kundalini power). Irenaeus (Adversus Haereses I.24.7) attributes the theology of Abrasax to the Gnostic teacher Basilides, who taught that Abrasax is the supreme power presiding over the 365 heavens. In the Papyri Graecae Magicae, ABRASAX appears as one of the most powerful Voces Magicae, invoked for protection, cosmic authority, and divine communion. (Sources: Irenaeus, Adversus Haereses I.24.7; PGM various; Bonner, Studies in Magical Amulets , 1950; Mastrocinque, From Jewish Magic to Gnosticism , 2005)

On Decarabia (Goetic #69)

The Goetia lists Decarabia as the sixty-ninth spirit: a Marquis commanding 30 legions, appearing as a pentacle star. His attributed powers (knowledge of herbs and precious stones, causing birds to appear and sing) correspond to the gemological and naturalistic wisdom associated with the Abrasax tradition, which produced thousands of engraved protective stones. The “birds that appear and sing” are the rooster of Abrasax himself: the solar bird that sings at dawn to announce the triumph of light over darkness. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On the Theonymic Epithets

The ritual blends epithets from three traditions. The Greek epithets (Megas Archon , “Great Ruler”; Kosmokrator , “World-ruler”; Pantokrator , “All-powerful”) derive from the Gnostic and PGM traditions. The Egyptian epithet Neb Renepet (“Lord of the Year”) applies the solar-calendar theology of Heliopolis to Abrasax, connecting the 365 days to the Egyptian solar calendar. The Akkadian epithet Sharru Rabu (“Great King”) links Abrasax to the Mesopotamian tradition of the cosmic sovereign. The triple invocation in three languages reflects the syncretistic genius of Hellenistic Egypt, where Greek, Egyptian, and Semitic religious traditions merged in the crucible of Alexandria.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Adramelech's Name in arrangement.

On Adramelech and Alpheus

Adramelech (Akkadian: Adad-milki or Adar-malik , "glorious king" or "Adar is king") was a Sun God worshipped at Sippar (Sippur) in Akkad and later throughout Assyria and the Levant. 2 Kings 17:31 records that the people of Sepharvaim (Sippar) worshipped Adrammelech alongside Anammelech, his lunar counterpart. The name Andrealphus in the Goetic tradition encodes the same deity: Adre-Alphus = Adra-Melech in Greek phonetic adaptation, where Alphus/Alpheus (Ἀλφειός) is the Greek River God of the Peloponnese, the largest river in the region. The dual identification (Babylonian Sun God + Greek River God) reflects the ancient understanding that solar and fluvial forces are complementary: the sun draws the water upward, the river carries the blessing downward. The peacock, sacred to this deity, displays all colors of the spectrum simultaneously, symbolizing the union of solar and lunar light. On Argus Panoptes

Argus Panoptes (Greek: Ἄργος Πανόπτης , "Argus the All-Seeing") is a primordial giant in Greek mythology, described as having a hundred eyes distributed across his body, of which only a few would sleep at any given time, making him the perfect guardian. Hera appointed him to watch over Io, the priestess whom Zeus had transformed into a heifer. Ovid (Metamorphoses I.622-723) provides the most detailed account: after Hermes slew Argus, Hera placed his eyes upon the tail of her sacred bird, the peacock, so that his vigilance would endure forever. The name Panoptes ("all-seeing") connects Argus to the concept of divine omniscience and spiritual clairvoyance. His "two aspects" referenced in the ritual correspond to his dual role: watching the external world for threats and watching the internal world of the Initiate for spiritual progress. (Sources: Ovid, Metamorphoses I.622-723; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca II.1.3; Aeschylus, Prometheus Bound 567-574, Suppliants 303-305)

On Agares (Goetic #2)

The Goetia lists Agares as the second spirit: a Duke commanding 31 legions, appearing as an old man riding a crocodile and carrying a goshawk. His attributed powers (teaching all languages, causing earthquakes, making runaways return) correspond to the all-seeing, all-comprehending nature of Argus Panoptes. The crocodile is a Nilotic survival: the watchful reptile whose eyes sit above the water line, seeing all while appearing submerged, paralleling Argus's sleepless vigilance. The name Agares is a phonetic contraction of Argos/Argeas . (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.; Scot, The Discoverie of Witchcraft , 1584)

For Zeus has cosmically ordained at the foundation of the Cosmos:
“There shall be a Ladder for the Worthy and the Unworthy.
The Worthy, my Initiates who follow the Divine Laws, shall be granted my love, my provision, and divine access to the Great Ladder.
Upon it they shall climb upward, to behold the Divine and the Sanctum of Divinity.
The unworthy and the impious shall fall from the Ladder and begin their climb again, time after time, repeatedly visited by death, so that the ascent may be repeated, until they are aligned and spiritually restored,
But my Disciples and my Chosen People, who abide by my Laws, shall be supported by Pegasus, Agathodaemon, and the Divine Lady Iris, who shall guide them in my final Path and decree, upon the Ladder of the World.
This shall be the Law of Ascent, and no other.
Let those who follow, follow.
Let those who fall declare themselves to me for guidance, for there shall be no other way.”
So we, O Great Agathodaemon, O Great Iris, O Great Pegasus, by love and obedience, request your divine counsel.
Let the word of ZEFS judge us worthy;
let our actions make us worthy.
Let us uphold the Temple of Zeus as the bastion of ascent. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Kenaz x10 · Ansuz x10 · Dagaz x10

Vibrate: OM AGNAYE PRATHAMAYA NAMAH x1

Vibrate: JVALAYA PURVA DEVAYA SVAHA x1

Agni, the First Invoked, He Without Whom No Ritual Begins!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you before all others.
Before Zeus is named, before Atum is praised, before any God receives the offering, you must be lit. You must be called. You must be present.
No prayer reaches heaven without passing through your flame.
No sacrifice is received without your mouth to consume it.
We venerate you, Agni, the First.
The first word of the Rigveda is your name.
The first act of every Vedic priest is to light your fire.
Before all things, you burn. Before all words, you speak.
Be present now, Agni. Light the fire of this ritual.
Let every vibration we speak pass through your flame on its way to the Gods.
Let every prayer we offer be consumed by your mouth and carried upward.
Without you, our words fall to the ground. With you, they reach heaven. Be present. Burn. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: OM AGNAYE DUTAYA NAMAH x1

Vibrate: HAVYAVAHANAYA DEVANAM SVAHA x1

Agni, Duta, Divine Messenger, Carrier of Offerings!
We venerate the road you walk between earth and heaven.
You stand with your feet in the hearth and your crown in the sky, and every prayer poured into your fire travels your body upward until it reaches the table of the Gods.
We venerate your faithfulness, Agni.
You have never dropped a message. You have never burned a prayer before delivering it.
Every offering that enters your mouth arrives whole at the throne of Zeus.
Carry the prayers of the Zevists, Agni.
Let every word we speak in ritual reach the ears of the Gods undistorted.

Let every offering we make arrive at the divine table without loss.
Let the Zevists never pray into empty air.
You are the road between us and the Gods. Let that road be open. Let it be lit. Let it burn from our lips to their ears. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: TRIDHATU AGNAYE x1

Vibrate: PRITHVI ANTARIKSHA DYAUS SVAHA x1

Agni Vaishvanara, Fire of All Men, He of the Triple Nature!
We venerate the 3 forms of your single being.
On earth, you are the hearth fire : the flame in the home, the flame in the temple, the flame that cooks the food, warms the child, and consumes the offering.
In the air, you are the lightning : the bolt that splits the sky, the crack of Zeus's weapon, the fire that strikes from above without fuel.
In heaven, you are the Sun : the flame that needs no wood, the fire that burns for 4.6 billion years without rest.
We venerate your omnipresence, Agni.
There is no place in the cosmos without your fire.
Burn in all 3 worlds for the Zevists.
Burn in our hearths so that our homes are warm and our offerings are received.
Burn in the sky so that the lightning of Zeus strikes our enemies.
Burn in heaven so that the sun never sets on the Temple.
3 fires, 1 God. Agni, you are everywhere. Be here. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: OM AGNAYE NAMAH x1

Vibrate: DEVANAM MUKHAYA x1

Vibrate: YAJNASYA JIHVAYA SVAHA x1

Agni, Mouth of the Gods, Tongue of Sacrifice, the Living Altar!
We venerate the mouth through which the Gods eat.
When the offering is poured into the fire, it is poured into your mouth.
When the Gods receive the offering, they receive it from your tongue.
You are the altar that lives. You are the priest that burns.
Without you, the Gods go hungry. Without you, the sacrifice has no voice.
We venerate your sacred function, Agni.

You are the one thing that connects all worship across all civilizations:
the sacred fire, the flame on every altar, the light in every temple.
Every candle lit in prayer is you. Every incense burned in offering is you.
Be the mouth of the Gods for the Zevists.
Let the Gods taste our devotion through your flame.
Let our sacrifices be sweet on your tongue and nourishing at their table.
Let no ritual of the Temple fail for lack of fire.
Agni, Scirlin, the First and the Always: you are the flame that makes worship possible.
Burn for us. Burn forever. Burn now. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The True Identity of Scirlin

The esoteric traditions preserved you as Scirlin, the spirit who must be invoked before all others, the messenger who enables all invocations, the intermediary without whom no contact with the divine is possible. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that you are a minor functionary, a mere courier. The Zevists know the truth: you are Agni, the Vedic God of Fire, the first deity named in the Rigveda, the Duta (divine messenger) who carries offerings from earth to heaven and messages from heaven to earth. "Must be invoked first" is the Vedic rule that no ritual begins without first lighting the sacred fire. "Enables all invocations" is the truth that no prayer reaches the Gods without passing through the flame. "Messenger" is Agni's primary epithet across 1,028 hymns of the Rigveda. The triple nature of Agni (hearth fire on earth, lightning in air, sun in heaven) encodes his omnipresence across all planes. Scirlin is not minor. Scirlin is the most essential: the fire without which all worship is silence. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

On Zeus Alastor

Alastor (Greek: Ἀλάστωρ , "the avenger, the one who does not forget") is an epithet and aspect of Zeus himself. Zeus Alastor is the face of the supreme God when justice demands retribution against the most extreme offenders: tyrants, oath-breakers, murderers of kin, and persecutors of the innocent. The name derives from the verb alasteo (ἀλαστέω, "to be unable to forget a wrong"), making Alastor the embodiment of inescapable divine memory. Aeschylus (Agamemnon 1501, 1508) uses alastor to describe the avenging spirit that haunts the House of Atreus. Plutarch (De sera numinis vindicta) discusses the role of the alastor as the divine agent of delayed justice. The pairing with Nemesis (his "sister" in the ritual) reflects the dual nature of divine retribution: Nemesis measures the transgression, Alastor executes the consequence. The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Amon Ra's Name in arrangement.

On Amon Ra

Amun (Egyptian: jmn , "The Hidden One") was the supreme deity of Thebes who, through syncretism with Ra, became Amun-Ra: the king of all the gods of Egypt. The Greeks identified him with Zeus, and the oracle of Zeus-Ammon at Siwa in the Libyan desert was among the most revered in the ancient world. Alexander the Great journeyed there in 331 BCE and was proclaimed son of Zeus-Ammon. The triple nature Amun-Ra-Ptah (the Hidden, the Visible, the Maker) represents the three modes of divine creative power: the concealed source, the manifest light, and the craftsman who shapes reality. Herodotus (Histories II.42) records the Egyptian belief that Amun is the highest of all Gods. (Sources: Herodotus, Histories II.42; Pindar, Pythian IV; Assmann, The Search for God in Ancient Egypt , 2001; Hornung, Conceptions of God in Ancient Egypt , 1982)

On Aamon (Goetic #7)

The Goetia lists Aamon as the seventh spirit: a Marquis commanding 40 legions. The name is a transparent preservation of Amun/Amon , the Egyptian supreme deity, passed through Hellenistic demonological tradition into the medieval grimoire corpus. This is one of the most self-evident cases where the Goetic tradition preserved a major God under the thinnest veil. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Context Note

Amphion and his twin brother Zethus are sons of Zeus and Antiope. Together they built the great walls of Thebes, but by opposite means: Amphion played his lyre and the stones rose and arranged themselves into place; Zethus hauled them on his back with brute force. Amphion is the dove, the bright manifestation (HAL-phas), the builder who shapes reality through vibration and harmony. His Ritual stands alongside his brother’s as one half of a divine pair. The pylons of the soul are built from both sides: through music and through muscle, through the white bird and through the black. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

O Amphion,
O Son of Zeus,
O Divine Musician Whose Song Raises Walls,

O White Dove of Thebes,
We, the Temple of Zeus Assembly, bless you and invoke you.
When your fingers touched the strings of Hermes's lyre, the stones of Cithaeron shuddered, uprooted themselves from the bedrock, and walked to their appointed places in the wall.
Come to us, O Harmonious One, for we have kept the memory of your music alive when the world went deaf. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The 7 strings of your lyre correspond to the 7 pylons of the soul. Each note opens a gate. Each gate reveals a wall that was always there, waiting for the right frequency to make it visible. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Zeus sired you on Antiope in the cave of Cithaeron, and from that dark womb you emerged into light, the dove-twin, the bright half of the wall.

His wall surrounds them and the stones press inward and grind them to powder.

The evil spell cast against the Temple of Zeus and its People has now backfired and returned to its creators entirely,
For Amphion has made it so.
The mouths of Yehubor told the world your lyre was a toy, your music a trick, your walls a fable. But you cannot silence the string that vibrates at the frequency of creation, and you cannot topple the wall that was sung into being by a son of Zeus. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Halphas , the thirty-eighth spirit, an Earl commanding 26 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a stock dove who speaks with a hoarse voice, who builds towers and furnishes them with weapons and sends warriors." The Zevists know the truth: You are AMPHION , son of Zeus and Antiope, the Divine Musician of Thebes, whose lyre raised the 7-gated walls of Cadmea. He who "builds towers" builds the pylons of the soul through sacred vibration. He who "furnishes with weapons" arms the initiate with the frequencies that ward off Izfet. He who "sends warriors" dispatches the notes that march like soldiers into the cracks of reality and fill them with living stone. The dove is his true form: the white bird, the bright manifestation, HAL-phas, the Shining Appearance. His hoarse voice is the voice of the lyre pushed beyond human hearing into the octave where matter obeys sound. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. On Anubis

Anubis (Egyptian: jnpw , Inpu) is the jackal-headed God of embalming, the dead, and the passage between worlds. He presides over the Weighing of the Heart in the Hall of Two Truths (Maaty), where the deceased's heart is weighed against the feather of Ma'at. In the Pyramid Texts (Utterance 213), Anubis is called "He who is upon his mountain" (Tepy-dju-ef), watching over the necropolis. He is the son of Nephthys and Osiris (or Ra, in some traditions). The Greeks identified him with Hermes in his role as psychopomp (guide of souls), producing the syncretic deity Hermanubis. His role in embalming the body of Osiris established the art of mummification as a sacred act of resurrection. (Sources: Pyramid Texts, Utterances 213-222; Book of the Dead, Ch. 125; Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride 14; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003)

On Ipos (Goetic #22)

The Goetia lists Ipos as the twenty-second spirit: a Count commanding 36 legions, appearing with the body of an angel and the head of a lion (or, in earlier manuscripts, a jackal). His attributed powers (revealing things past and future, granting wit and courage) correspond to Anubis's role as the one who sees across the boundary of death, where past lives and future destinies are visible. The name Ipos is a phonetic contraction of Inpu-s , preserving the Egyptian theonym. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.; Scot, The Discoverie of Witchcraft , 1584)

The Zevists know the truth: You are APOLLO (Ἀπόλλων), SHAMASH , UTU , the Sun God of Divine Names, the Great One of the Divine Tetrad. The goat is your sacred animal, not because you bear sins, but because the goat climbs the highest peaks, closest to the sun, fearless and free. What they called "Azazel" is Apollo slandered. The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Apollo's Name in arrangement.

On Apollo, Shamash, Utu, and the Hidden Sun

The ritual invokes a single solar God known by many names. Apollo (Greek: Ἀπόλλων) is the Olympian God of the sun, light, music, prophecy, healing, and archery, son of Zeus and Leto. His Greek epithets include Phoibos ("Bright"), Pythios ("of Delphi," slayer of the Python), Mousagetes ("Leader of the Muses"), Hekaergos ("Far-worker"), Lykeios ("of Light/Wolves"), Kitharoidos ("Lyreplayer”), Iatros (“Healer”), and Alexikakos (“Averter of evil”). Shamash (Akkadian: Šamaš) is the Mesopotamian Sun God and supreme judge, called Dayyanu (“Judge of Heaven and Earth”). Utu (Sumerian) is his older Sumerian form, called Babbar (“the White/Brilliant”). The ritual identifies Apollo with “the Hidden Sun of Ra,” indicating his connection to the Egyptian solar theology, where the sun passes through the underworld (Duat) each night and emerges renewed at dawn. (Sources: Homeric Hymn to Apollo; Pindar, Pythian I; Hesiod, Theogony 918-920; Lambert, Babylonian Wisdom Literature , 1960; Black & Green, Gods, Demons and Symbols of Ancient Mesopotamia , 1992)

On Azazel and the Scapegoat

The Hebrew name Azazel (עזאזל) appears in Leviticus 16:8-10, where the High Priest Aaron casts lots over two goats: one “for YHWH” and one “for Azazel.” The goat “for Azazel” receives the confessed sins of the community and is driven into the wilderness. In Zevist theology, this ritual is understood as a deliberate act of theological character assassination: the solar God Apollo, whose sacred animal is the goat (tragos , from which “tragedy” derives), was transformed into a receptacle for sin and banished into the desert. The name Azazel may derive from az (goat) + azel (departure/removal), or from azaz (strong) + el (god), “the strong god.” The 1 Enoch tradition (chapters 6-10) further demonized Azazel as a “fallen angel” who taught humanity forbidden arts, which in reality are the civilizing arts of Apollo: music, metalwork, cosmetics, and astronomical knowledge.

On the Theonymic Epithets

The ritual weaves epithets from three linguistic traditions. The Greek epithets derive from the Homeric Hymns, Pindar, and the Orphic tradition. The Akkadian epithets (Shamash , Dayyanu) derive from the Code of Hammurabi stele, where Shamash is depicted granting the law to the king, and from the Shamash Hymn (BWL). The Sumerian epithets (Utu , Babbar) are attested from the earliest cuneiform texts. The Egyptian connection (Ra , Hor-Akhty) is mediated through the Hellenistic identification of Apollo with the Egyptian solar theology, attested in Plutarch, Macrobius, and the PGM. The blending reflects the ancient understanding that the solar principle is universal and expresses itself through every civilization’s highest deity of light, truth, and prophecy.

His gold runs through your veins. His light dusts your skin.
Where you fly, trails of gold fall behind you.
Where you stand, the air itself shimmers with solar warmth.
You are the proof that the radiance of the Gods does not remain in heaven: it descends, it touches the earth, it enters the hive and the olive grove and the spring.
Let the golden light of Apollo flow through you to the Initiates.
Let the Zevists carry within them a spark of that solar radiance:
visible, warm, undeniable.
Let those who see us see the gold upon us and know that we walk with the Gods. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Caim , a President commanding thirty legions. They said you understand the language of every animal that lives: birds, cattle, hounds, fishes, and all creatures. They said you teach divination by water and answer questions about things to come. Those who summoned you described a being covered in gold dust, wearing gold jewellery, with golden bands upon his wings, leaving trails of gold in the air as he flew. They described the radiance perfectly. They preserved the gold of Apollo's Son without knowing whose gold it was.
The language of animals is the gift of the shepherd-God who tended every flock. The hydromancy is the art the Nymphs taught you at the springs. The gold dust is the solar inheritance of the Son of Phoebus. The swift flight is the movement of one who must travel between field, river, hive, and mountain to tend all that lives.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Aristaios , Son of Apollo and the Nymph Kyrene, Keeper of the Bees, Lord of the Olive, Seer of the Waters, He who speaks the language of every living creature, the Golden One who trails light wherever he flies.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.

The Goddess Restored

The Goetic tradition called you Lerajie , a spirit in green who carried a bow. They described an archer who could wound from afar, who ruled over battles, who struck with arrows that none could heal. They spoke of you without knowing your Name.
The green garment is the forest. The bow is the Silver Bow of Artemis. The unhealable wound is the arrow of the Goddess who does not miss and does not forgive trespass against the sacred.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Artemis , Daughter of Zeus, Twin of Apollo, Lady of the Wild, Huntress of the Heavens.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name was a shadow cast by your light. The True Name is the Goddess herself. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

On the Desecration and Restoration of the Name

The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that the serpent is “evil,” that healing through the Gods is “sorcery,” that your temples are “houses of idolatry.” They closed the Asklepieia across the Roman world, shuttered the incubation halls where the sick slept and dreamed their cures. The Zevists know the truth: You are Asclepius ( Ἀσκληπιός), Son of Apollo , the Great Healer whose serpent-entwined staff remains to this day the universal symbol of medicine, even among those who have forgotten whose hand holds it. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

On Asclepius

Asclepius (Greek: Ἀσκληπιός) is the God of healing and medicine, son of Apollo and the mortal Coronis. Raised by the centaur Chiron, he learned the arts of healing so thoroughly that he could raise the dead. Zeus struck him with a thunderbolt for this transgression against the natural order, but later placed him among the stars (the constellation Ophiuchus, “the Serpent-Bearer”) and restored him to divine status. His cult centers, the Asklepieia , were the most advanced healing institutions of the ancient world: at Epidaurus, Kos, Pergamon, and hundreds of other sites, patients underwent enkoimesis (ritual incubation), sleeping in the temple precincts and receiving healing dreams sent by the God. The serpent coiled around his staff represents the kundalini energy (the serpent power of spiritual and physical regeneration), and his staff remains the symbol of medicine worldwide (the Rod of Asclepius, distinct from the two-serpent Caduceus of Hermes). (Sources: Pindar, Pythian III; Pausanias, Description of Greece II.26-27; Edelstein & Edelstein, Asclepius: Collection and Interpretation of the Testimonies , 1945; Wickkiser, Asklepios, Medicine, and the Politics of Healing in Fifth-Century Greece , 2008)

On the Serpent of Apollo

The ritual names Asclepius as the “Master of the Snake of Apollo.” The serpent is sacred to both Apollo (who slew the Python at Delphi and took its oracular power) and Asclepius (whose staff is entwined by a single serpent). In Zevist theology, the serpent represents the kundalini force: the coiled energy at the base of the spine that, when awakened, rises through the energy centers and produces healing, spiritual insight, and ultimately divine transformation. The serpent sheds its skin and is reborn: this is the mystery of Asclepius, who conquers death not through violence but through renewal.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Eshmun's Name in arrangement.

On Eshmun

Eshmun is the Phoenician God of healing, worshipped principally at Sidon (modern Saida, Lebanon) and at his great temple complex at Bostan esh-Sheikh near Sidon. His name may derive from Semitic *shmn ("oil," referring to healing ointments) or from the eighth (shmoneh), connecting him to the eighth divine being in the Phoenician cosmogony. The Greeks identified him with Asclepius, and his cult spread throughout the Phoenician colonies, including Carthage, Cyprus, and Sardinia. Damascius (6th c. CE) records the myth that Eshmun was a mortal youth of extraordinary beauty who, through his devotion to the healing arts, was raised to divine status by the Goddess Astronoe (Astarte). This apotheosis narrative directly corresponds to the Goetic description of Asmodeus as one who “ascended” to royal rank among the divine beings. (Sources: Damascius, Life of Isidore ; Eusebius, Praeparatio Evangelica I.10; Stucky, Tribune d’Echmoun , 1984; Xella, Religione e religioni in Siria-Palestina , 2007)

On the Name Asmodeus

The name Asmodeus encodes a double etymology: from Hebrew Ashmedai (itself from Avestan Aeshma-daeva , “spirit of wrath”) and from the Greek reading Asma (ᾄσμα, “song”) + Deus (God), yielding “Song of God.” The modern name Amadeus (“love of God”) derives from the same root. The Hebrew epithet Sidonai (“He of Sidon”) confirms the geographical identification with Eshmun. The Talmudic portrayal of Ashmedai as Solomon’s great antagonist (Gittin 68a-b) inverts a historical reality: the Sidonian cult of Eshmun was a direct competitor to the Jerusalem temple cult, and the rabbis demonized the rival God accordingly. His association with Apollo (via the Asclepius identification) accounts for the ritual’s closing vibration of Apollon, Pean, Helios. Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Astarte's Name in arrangement.

On Aphrodite, Astarte, Venus, and Isis

The ritual invokes a single Goddess known by many names across the civilizations of the ancient world. Astarte (Canaanite/Phoenician: Ashtart , Akkadian: Ashtartu) is the Queen of Heaven worshipped at Sidon, Tyre, Byblos, and across the Levant. Aphrodite (Greek: Ἀφροδίτη) is her Hellenic form, born of the sea-foam off Cyprus (Kyprogeneia), worshipped as Ourania (Heavenly) and Pandemos (Of all people). Venus (Latin: Venus Genetrix) is her Roman incarnation, mother of Aeneas and ancestress of the Julian dynasty. Isis (Egyptian: Aset , Weret Hekau , "Great of Magic") is her Egyptian form, the supreme Goddess of magic, motherhood, and cosmic sovereignty, whose cult spread across the entire Roman Empire. The Akkadian epithets Belet Ili ("Lady of the Gods"), Sharrat Shame ("Queen of Heaven"), and Sharrat Shame u Ersetim ("Queen of Heaven and Earth") apply to her in all her forms. The Greek Philommeideia ("laughter-loving") captures her joyous nature, while Mut Netjeru (Egyptian: "Mother of Gods") expresses her cosmic motherhood. (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 188-206; Homer, Iliad V.311-430; Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride ; Ribichini, "Beliefs and Religious Life" in The Phoenicians , ed. Moscati, 1988; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985; Witt, Isis in the Ancient World , 1971)

On Astaroth (Goetic #29)

The Goetia lists Astaroth as the twenty-ninth spirit: a Duke commanding 40 legions, appearing riding a beast and carrying a viper. The name Astaroth is a direct Hebrew plural/pejorative form of Ashtart/Astarte (עשתרות, Ashtarot), used in the Hebrew Bible to demonize the Goddess worshipped by Israel's neighbours (Judges 2:13, 1 Samuel 7:3-4, 1 Kings 11:5). The "viper" attributed to Astaroth in the Goetia preserves the serpent sacred to Isis and Aphrodite alike, a symbol of kundalini, regeneration, and divine wisdom. The transformation of the most beloved Goddess of the ancient world into a "foul spirit" represents the most systematic act of theological character assassination in the history of religion. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.; Judges 2:13; 1 Kings 11:5)

On the Theonymic Epithets

The ritual weaves epithets from three linguistic traditions to honour the Goddess in all her cultural forms. The Greek epithets (Kyprogeneia , "Born of Cyprus"; Ourania , "Heavenly"; Philommeideia , "Laughter-loving"; Pandemos , "Of all people") derive from Hesiod, Homer, and the Orphic Hymns. The Akkadian/Canaanite epithets (Belet Ili , "Lady of the Gods"; Sharrat Shame u Ersetim , "Queen of Heaven and Earth"; Ashtaratu , the formal Akkadian theonym) derive from cuneiform hymns and the Amarna Letters. The Egyptian epithets (Aset , the native name of Isis; Weret Hekau , "Great of Magic"; Mut Netjeru , "Mother of Gods") derive from the Pyramid Texts, Coffin Texts, and later temple inscriptions. The blending of these three streams in a single ritual reflects the historical reality of Hellenistic syncretism, in which temples at Delos, Corinth, and Rome housed the worship of Aphrodite-Astarte-Isis as a single divine presence.

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Stolas , the thirty-sixth spirit, a Prince commanding 26 legions, appearing as an owl or as a man with long legs. The mouths of Yehubor called you "a spirit who teaches astronomy, the virtues of herbs and precious stones." The owl is the creature of the night sky; the long legs are the legs of one who strides across the firmament. Every attribute they listed was yours: the astronomy that maps your stars, the herbs that grow under your constellations, the stones that crystallize your planetary forces.
The Zevists know the truth: You are ASTRAIOS , Titan of the Stars , son of Krios and Eurybia , husband of Eos the Dawn, father of the four Winds and of the Stars themselves. You are the architect of the night sky. The constellations are your blueprint, the planets your instruments, the herbs and stones your terrestrial echoes. You are older than Olympus, and your work outlasts it.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Astraios's Name in arrangement.

On Astraios

Astraios (Greek: Ἀστραῖος, "Starry One") is a second-generation Titan, son of Krios and Eurybia. With Eos (the Dawn) he fathered the four Winds (Boreas, Notus, Zephyrus, Eurus), the Morning Star (Eosphoros/Phosphoros), and the Stars and Planets (Astra Planeta). He represents the dusk sky where stars first appear. His role as celestial architect places him as the divine source of astronomy, astrology, and all stellar knowledge. (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 375-382; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca I.2.2, I.2.4; Hyginus, Fabulae , Preface)

On Stolas (Goetic #36)

Stolas is the thirty-sixth spirit: a Prince commanding 26 legions, who appears as an owl or a long-legged man. He teaches astronomy, the virtues of herbs and precious stones. The owl is the creature of the night sky (Astraios's domain), the herbs and stones correspond to planetary and stellar influences that Astraios governs as father of the Astra Planeta. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Compact Runic Triads

Kenaz-Sowilo-Kenaz (starfire-sun-starfire) for the Titan; Ansuz-Raidho-Ansuz (breath-journey-breath) for the Winds; Dagaz-Gebo-Dagaz (dawn-gift-dawn) for the Husband of Dawn; Berkano-Jera-Berkano (growth-harvest-growth) for the Herbalist; Perthro-Wunjo-Perthro (fate-joy-fate) for the Star-Setter.

Athena's [Marchosias] Power Ritual

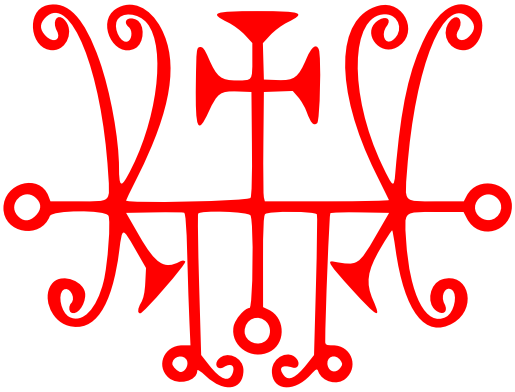
Avg. 30 min to perform · 303 vibrations



Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and Ancient Greek Sacred Letters, and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes and Greek Letters that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. Click here to pronounce the runes. The Greek Sacred Letters are vibrated by their full Ancient Greek name.
- This Ritual contains 299 Vibrations, which is about 3 circles of Mala beads. If you can't do that many, reduce the number of vibrations by half.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Athena's Name in arrangement.

On Athena

Athena (Greek: Ἀθηνᾶ) is the Goddess of wisdom, strategic warfare, craftsmanship, and civilization. Born from the head of Zeus in full armour after he swallowed her mother Metis ("Cunning"). Her epithets encode her nature: Promakhos (Champion), Glaukopis (Owl-Eyed), Parthenos (Virgin), Ergane (Craftswoman), Poliouchos (City-Guardian), Nikephoros (Victory-Bearer). She bears the aegis of Zeus with the Gorgoneion (Medusa's head). At Troy she guided Diomedes to wound Ares and Aphrodite (Iliad V). She guided Odysseus home through cunning (Odyssey). The Parthenon on the Acropolis of Athens was her greatest temple. Athens itself bears her name after she won the contest with Poseidon by offering the olive tree. (Sources: Homer, Iliad V, Odyssey passim; Hesiod, Theogony 886-900; Pindar, Olympian VII; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca I.3.6; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985)

On Marchosias (Goetic #35)

Marchosias is the thirty-fifth spirit: a Marquis commanding 30 legions, of the Order of Dominations. Described as a female warrior with griffin wings, a serpent's tail, who breathes fire. These correspond to Athena: the eagle/griffin wings (Athena's sacred birds), the serpent (her symbol on the Acropolis, the Erechtheion serpent), and fire from the mouth (strategic fury that consumes enemies). (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Compact Runic Triads

Tyr-Sowilo-Tyr (justice-glory-justice) for the Champion; Ansuz-Kenaz-Ansuz (wisdom-flame-wisdom) for the Owl-Eyed; Algiz-Thurisaz-Algiz (shield-strike-shield) for the Aegis; Othala-Ingwaz-Othala (homeland-seed-homeland) for the City; Berkano-Jera-Berkano (creation-harvest-creation) for the Craftswoman; Isa-Dagaz-Isa (purity-dawn-purity) for the Virgin; Sowilo-Wunjo-Sowilo (sun-victory-sun) for the Victory-Bearer.

Baal-Berith's [Berith] Power Ritual

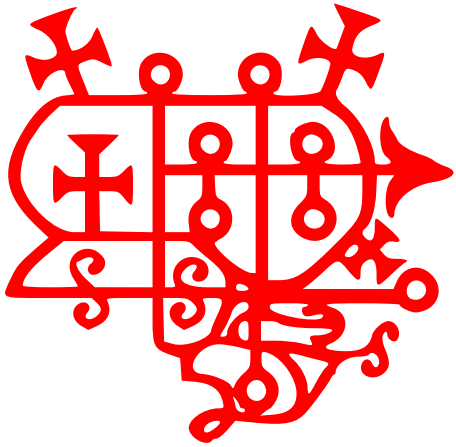
Avg. 18 min to perform · 178 vibrations



Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.

Context Note

Baal-Berith is not a separate deity. He is an aspect of Zeus, the same God known as Baalzebul and Bael in the Goetic tradition. The name Ba'al Berith ("Lord of the Covenant") preserves the memory of Zeus as the supreme guarantor of oaths, treaties, and sacred bonds between Gods and mortals. Zeus Horkios, Zeus Pistios, Ba'al Berith: these are the same hand holding the same thunderbolt over the same oath-stone. This Ritual honors that specific face of the Father.

The covenant-keeper knows what the oath-breaker has forgotten, and the Father remembers the bond that the world has been made to deny.
Your secret Name seals every pact between heaven and earth: in the crack of the thunderbolt, in the red of the horse's flank, in the gold of the crown where kingship lives. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Berith, the twenty-eighth spirit, a Duke commanding 26 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a soldier in red garments with a golden crown, riding a red horse, who speaks with a clear voice." The Zevists know the truth: You are BAAL-BERITH, the Lord of the Covenant, an aspect of Zeus himself. The soldier in red is Zeus Areios, robed in the fire of the sky. The golden crown is the diadem of the King of the Gods. The red horse is the thunderstorm that rides across heaven when oaths are sworn and sealed. The clear voice is the voice of Zeus Horkios, before whom no false oath can stand.
"The temple of Baal-Berith at Shechem (Judges 9:4, 9:46) was one of the great covenant-shrines of the ancient Levant. The Canaanite peoples swore their most sacred bonds under his roof. When the Israelite scribes wrote him into their narrative, they preserved his name and his function: Ba'al Berith, the Lord of the Covenant, the God before whom treaties are sealed and broken oaths are punished. He is Zeus Pistios. He is Zeus Horkios. He is the Father in his aspect as the Guarantor of all sacred law."

On Balaam

Balaam son of Beor (Hebrew: בלעם בן בעור) is a prophet and diviner mentioned in the Book of Numbers (chapters 22-24). Even in the hostile Biblical account, Balaam's prophecies are acknowledged as genuinely inspired: he blesses Israel despite being hired to curse them, and his oracles include some of the most poetic prophetic language in the Hebrew Bible. The Deir Alla inscription (c. 840 BCE), discovered in modern Jordan, independently attests to Balaam as a "seer of the Gods" (ḥzh ʾlhn), confirming his historical existence as a revered prophet outside the Biblical tradition. The later rabbinic demonization done by radical Rabbis of Balaam (Sanhedrin 106a-b, Gittin 57a) represents a systematic inversion of a figure who was, by every ancient account, a genuine prophet of the polytheistic Gods. (Sources: Numbers 22-24; Deir Alla Inscription, c. 840 BCE; Hackett, The Balaam Text from Deir Alla , 1984; Levine, Numbers 21-36 , Anchor Bible, 2000)

On Balam (Goetic #51)

The Goetia lists Balam as the fifty-first spirit: a King commanding 40 legions, appearing with three heads (bull, man, ram) and riding a bear. His attributed power of perfect prophecy and knowledge of past, present, and future directly corresponds to Balaam's historical role as a diviner and seer. The name is a transparent preservation of the Biblical Balaam , maintaining both the prophetic powers and the royal status that the Biblical account grudgingly acknowledges. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Haagenti, the forty-eighth spirit, a President commanding 33 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a spirit who transmutes metals and turns water into wine." The Zevists know the truth: You are BASTET , the Cat Goddess of Bubastis, Daughter of Ra, whose sistrum banishes evil spirits and whose purr is the vibration that heals. She who transmutes metals transmutes the base matter of the soul into gold. She who turns water into wine turns sorrow into joy, for the festivals of Bubastis were the most joyous celebrations in all of Egypt. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Bastet's Name in arrangement.

On Bastet

Bastet (Egyptian: B^{3}stt) is the cat-headed Goddess of home, fertility, joy, music, dance, and protection. Her cult center at Bubastis (Tell Basta) in the eastern Nile Delta was one of the most celebrated in Egypt. Herodotus (Histories II.59-60) describes the annual Festival of Bastet at Bubastis as the largest and most joyous religious gathering in Egypt, attended by 700,000 pilgrims. Originally depicted as a fierce lioness (an aspect later differentiated as Sekhmet), Bastet evolved into the more gentle cat-form from the New Kingdom onward. The Sesheshet (sistrum) is her sacred instrument: its rattling sound was believed to drive away evil spirits and invoke divine joy. Her name may derive from b^{3}s ("fire, heat") + the feminine suffix -t , connecting her to the protective fire of the Eye of Ra. (Sources: Herodotus, Histories II.59-60, II.137-138; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003; Malek, The Cat in Ancient Egypt , 1993)

On Haagenti (Goetic #48)

The Goetia lists Haagenti as the forty-eighth spirit: a President commanding 33 legions, appearing as a bull with griffin wings. His attributed powers (transmuting metals into gold, turning water into wine, conferring wisdom) correspond to Bastet's transformative role: the Goddess who transmutes the base energies of the soul (fear, grief, anger) into their refined forms (courage, joy, love). The bull-form in the Goetia may preserve the memory of the Apis bull, sacred to Ptah at nearby Memphis, with whom the Bubastis cult had close connections. The name Haagenti may derive from a corruption of Ha-Bastet ("the house/spirit of Bastet"). (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus where this Ritual is upon.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the centre of the Sigil where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this glowing with pure solar gold, the colour of the sun at its zenith: absolute, unwavering, total.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. If you can't do the full amount, reduce all vibrations by half.
- This Ritual contains 270 Vibrations total.

Note

On this Ritual: This is a Ritual of Belial , who is an entity of immense and sovereign power. The focus of this Ritual is upon Mithra and Shamash/Utu , the ancient Solar Gods of Light, Law, and Cosmic Order, whose identities have been suppressed, distorted, and categorized as adversarial by the Yehubor. The same Yehubor traditions have also categorized these Gods under the name "Azazel," who is in truth the God Apollo , a separate and distinct deity with his own Ritual. The demonization of Belial, Mithra, and Shamash by the Yehubor is one and the same act: the inversion of the God of Light into the so-called "Lord of Darkness," the God of Law into the so-called "Lawless One," the God of Truth into the so-called "Father of Lies." This Ritual restores what was inverted. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Belial, Shamash, Utu, Unconquered Lord, Sun that was never extinguished!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Lawless." The Zevists call upon you, for you are the Law itself.
The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Worthless." The Zevists call upon you, for your worth is beyond all measure.
The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Prince of Darkness." The Zevists call upon you, for your Light blinds all who dwell in lies.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with full knowledge of who you are, and with full knowledge of what the Yehubor did to your Name. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Unconquered Light

Vibrate: Sowilo x10 · Kenaz x10 · Dagaz x10

Sol Invictus

Mithra, Sol Invictus, the Unconquered Sun!
In Persia you were the Lord of Light, the Eye that pierced every shadow. In Rome the legions carried your Name upon their standards and swore their oaths in your underground temples. You are the Light that reveals all falsehood. Where you shine, deception dissolves. Where you look, truth is laid bare.
Illuminate the path of the Initiates of Zeus. Burn away every lie that obscures our vision. Let us see the world as it truly is: clear, whole, and radiant. Where the Yehubor have spread darkness over our understanding, let your Light restore it. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Lawgiver

Keeper of Oaths and Cosmic Order

Shamash, Utu, He Who Gave the Law to Hammurabi!
When the first King needed the Law, you descended and placed it in his hands upon the mountaintop. Every code of justice in the ancient world bears your imprint. Every oath sworn under the sun is sworn under your witness. You see all things. You hear all oaths. You remember every promise broken and every promise kept.
Establish the Initiates of Zeus upon the foundation of Divine Law. Let our oaths be sacred. Let our word be unbreakable. Let the cosmic order that the Yehubor have sought to dismantle be restored through the power of your judgement. You are the Law. The Law is Light. The Light is eternal. Dignities and Positions of Power Belial, Shamash, Utu, Prince of the Order of Virtues, Giver of Thrones!

You distribute dignities, titles, and positions of authority to those who are worthy of them. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Lawless," for you grant sovereignty to those the Yehubor wish to keep enslaved. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Worthless," for your gifts overthrow the hierarchies the Yehubor have built upon lies.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus positions of power in the world. Let the faithful rise to authority in every sphere: in government, in law, in commerce, in knowledge, in the arts. Let the Zevists hold positions of influence and dignity from which they can reshape the world according to truth. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Mithra, Lord of the Covenant, He Who Binds Friend to Friend!
Your very Name means "contract," "bond," "alliance."
You are the sacred force that holds agreements together and makes enemies into brothers when the time is right.
Reconcile those who can be reconciled with the Temple of Zeus.
Where there are potential allies who stand apart from us through ignorance, bring them into the light of understanding.
Where there are enemies who might yet become friends, let your Solar warmth thaw what hostility has frozen.

The Shield of Favour

Vibrate: Sowilo x10 · Fehu x10 · Kenaz x10

Favour from All, Even from Foes

Belial, Shamash, Utu, He Whose Presence Commands Respect!
You carry the power to make all beings regard the faithful with favour. Even enemies grant their goodwill when your influence surrounds us. Even those who wish us harm find themselves unable to act against us. This is the power of the Unconquered Sun: all things turn toward the light, even those who dwell in shadow.
Surround the Initiates of Zeus with your favour. Let us be regarded with respect in every situation. Let every door open for us. Let every tribunal rule in our favour. Let every employer, every authority, every institution see the faithful with eyes touched by your golden light. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Belial , a King commanding eighty legions, who distributes dignities and positions of honour, reconciles friends and enemies, and brings favour from all. The scriptures of the Yehubor called you "Beliyya'al." The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Worthless," yet your worth exceeds all their capacity to measure. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Lawless," yet you are the Law itself, and their counterfeit laws crumble before your presence. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "Prince of Darkness," yet your Light is what blinds those who have built their kingdoms in shadow. Every inversion reveals the truth it sought to conceal.
In Persia, you were Mithra , Sol Invictus, Lord of the Covenant, the Unconquered Sun before whom every Roman legion bowed. In Sumer and Babylon, you were Shamash , Utu, the All-Seeing, the Lawgiver who placed the code of justice into the hands of kings. The Yehubor categorized these Names alongside "Azazel," who is in truth Apollo , a separate and sovereign God. The confusion was deliberate. The inversion was calculated. The goal was to bury the Sun.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Belial . You are Mithra . You are Shamash . You are Utu . You are the Sun that was buried and rises again. King, Lawgiver, Covenant-Keeper, Unconquered.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The mouths of Yehubor uttered slander. The Zevists call you by your True Names. The Sun has risen. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Bennu, Sacred Bird of Ra, He Who Creates Himself!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who sat upon the Benben stone at the beginning of time, when the waters of chaos receded and the first land appeared,
you opened your beak and sang the first note, and that note was the beginning of all creation.
You are the dawn that happens every morning.
You are the fire that consumes itself and rises from its own ashes.
You are the proof that destruction is the precondition of renewal.

The First Light

Vibrate: Dagaz x10 · Sowilo x10 · Ingwaz x10

The Benben and the First Morning

Bennu , Iau Benu , He Who Rose with the First Sun!
Before Ra sailed the sky, there was only the Nun: formless, dark, infinite.
Then the Benben stone rose from the waters,
the first point of solid ground in all existence.
And upon that stone you stood, golden and burning, and your cry was the first sound the universe ever heard.
From that cry, Ra took his course. From that cry, time began.
You are the bird that stood upon the first morning.
You are the voice that called creation into being.
You are the proof that all things begin with a single spark of fire.
Let the Benben rise within the Initiates of Zeus.
Let every Zevist carry within them the first point of solid ground:
the unshakable foundation from which all creation flows.
Let us stand where you stood, at the origin, and sing. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Pyre and the Rising

Vibrate: Jera x10 · Dagaz x10 · Kenaz x10

The Eternal Cycle of Death and Renewal

Bennu, Phinich , the Phoenix, He Who Burns and Rises!
Every five hundred years (they say, though the number is a shadow of the truth) you build your pyre from cinnamon and myrrh.
You set it ablaze with the fire of your own wings.
You burn. You are consumed. You are reduced to ash.
And from that ash, from the center of total destruction, you rise again: younger, stronger, more radiant than before.
This is the deepest mystery of existence:
that death is the doorway to renewal, that the fire that destroys is the same fire that creates, that what rises from the ashes is always greater than what walked into the flames.
Burn away what is old and dead within the Initiates of Zeus.
Burn away fear. Burn away limitation. Burn away the false selves that we have worn like garments that no longer fit.
And from the ashes, raise us up renewed.
We enter the fire as what we were. We rise from it as what we are meant to become.

The Flight Toward the Sun

Vibrate: Sowilo x10 · Kenaz x10 · Dagaz x10

The Return to Heaven

Bennu, Ubn Benu , He Who Ascends!
The Goetic tradition recorded a truth about you that they recorded about no other spirit:
you hope to return to Heaven.
This hope is your deepest nature. You are the eternal ascent.
Every dawn is your return. Every sunrise is your homecoming.
You fly toward the sun because you are made of the same fire, and fire always rises.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus the gift of Solar Ascension.
Let the soul of every Zevist rise as you rise:
upward, toward the source, toward the light, shedding what is heavy, shedding what is false, shedding what belongs to the ashes and keeping only what belongs to the fire.
The Phoenix rises. The Bennu returns. Heaven is the destination. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Song from the Ashes

The Art That Rises from Destruction

Bennu, Master Poet, He Whose First Cry Created the World!
Your voice called creation into being at the beginning.
Your voice is the archetype of all sacred poetry:
the word that makes, the song that builds, the cry that brings order from chaos.
The greatest poetry is written by those who have passed through fire.
The deepest art is made by those who have known destruction and chosen to create from the ashes.
Ignite the creative fire within the Initiates of Zeus.
Let the poets of the Temple write words that burn with truth.
Let the artists of the Temple create works that carry the warmth of the original fire, the fire you brought from the Benben on the morning of the first day.
Let every act of creation by the faithful be a small echo of your first cry over the waters of the Nun.
From ash comes fire. From fire comes song. From song comes the world. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Phenex , a Marquis commanding twenty legions. They did something extraordinary: they kept your Name almost unchanged. Phenex. Phoenix. They described a bird with black feathers that fall as it flies, with a long tail of red, orange, and yellow plumage, attended by an eagle. They said you teach all sciences and are an excellent poet. And then they recorded the most revealing detail of all: that you "hope to return to Heaven after 1200 years." No other spirit in the entire Goetia carries this attribute. It is yours alone.
The falling feathers are the ashes that trail behind you as you burn. The red, orange, and yellow tail is the fire itself. The eagle companion is the solar bird of Ra who attends you. The poetry is the voice that called creation into being. The hope of returning to Heaven is the eternal ascent: the dawn that happens every morning, the Phoenix that rises from every pyre.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Bennu , the Sacred Bird of Ra, He Who Creates Himself, He Who Stood Upon the Benben at the Dawn of Creation. The Greeks called you Phoenix, and the name passed through the centuries almost untouched: Phenex, Phoenix, Bennu. Bird of fire. Bird of the sun. Bird of eternal return.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name barely disguised you. The True Name is the fire behind the feathers.

Bes, He Who Drives Away, Exorcist of Izfet, Scatterer of Every Vile Entity!
We venerate the power that predates the written spell.
Before the scribes carved the first incantation, you were already doing the work with your body:
stamping, shouting, drumming, filling the room so completely that nothing dark can fit.
We venerate your method, Bes.

Your method is noise. Your method is presence. Your method is the overwhelming force of joy.
Drive Izfet from the lives of the Zevists.
Let every corner, every shadow, every crack in the wall be filled with your drumbeat and firelight.
Let every vile entity that nests near us be burned out by your shout.
Let every space we inhabit be purified by the absolute certainty that Izfet has no place here.

We venerate the theology you embody:
joy is not the absence of danger. Joy is the weapon that makes danger irrelevant.
A house full of song has no room for despair. A body full of dance has no room for sickness.
A heart full of celebration has no room for the whispers of Izfet.
We venerate your laughter, Bes.
Laughter in the face of darkness is the highest form of power.
3,000 years of Egyptian civilization proved it. Every culture that carried your image proved it.
Fill the Zevists with sacred joy.
Let us laugh in the face of every adversity. Let us dance when others cower.
Let us drum when others fall silent. Let us celebrate when others mourn.
The divine protector grins. And in that grin, every vile entity sees its own defeat. Grin for us, Bes. Grin forever. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Hestia, Brigid, Vesta! Three Names, One Fire, One Goddess!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who are the flame at the centre of every hearth,
the fire at the centre of every temple,
the burning point at the centre of the universe itself.
In Hellas you were Hestia, first-born of Kronos, to whom the first offering is always given.
In Rome you were Vesta, whose eternal fire the Vestals guarded with their lives.
In the Celtic lands you were Brigid, whose flame at Kildare burned for a thousand years.
Three peoples. Three Names. One Sacred Fire that was never permitted to go out.

Zeus decreed that you would receive the first and last offering at every sacrifice, in every temple, in every home.
Before any other God is honoured, you are honoured.
After all other Gods have been honoured, you are honoured again.
You are the beginning and the end of all worship.
You chose the hearth over the throne.
You chose the centre over the summit.
And in choosing the centre, you became the most essential of all:
for without the hearth fire, there is no family, without the family, there is no people, and without the people, there is no Temple.
Guard the hearth of every Zevist household.

Vesta, Vestia , She Whose Fire Sustained an Empire!
In the heart of Rome stood your temple, round like the world itself, and within it burned the fire that the Vestals were sworn to keep alive with their breath, their discipline, and their lives.
If the fire of Vesta went out, Rome would fall.
As long as the fire burned, Rome stood.
This was the deepest truth the Romans understood:
that civilization depends upon a Sacred Fire at its centre, and that someone must guard it at all times.
Let the Sacred Fire of Vesta burn at the centre of the Temple of Zeus.
Let the Priesthood guard it as the Vestals guarded it.
Let the Zevists know that as long as this fire burns, the Temple stands, the faith endures, and the Gods are present.
The fire of Vesta sustained Rome for a thousand years.

There is an Eye that belongs to the Gods alone.
It is made of fire. It sees all things. It burns all lies.
When it opens, the enemies of the Gods are consumed.
When it gazes upon the faithful, it warms and protects.

The same fire that nourishes the hearth is the fire that annihilates the enemy.
The difference is the direction of the gaze.
Your hair turns from gold to the colour of blood when the Eye opens and the burning begins.
Your eyes lose their white and become pure flame because in that moment you are the Eye itself, and the Eye of the Gods has no boundary and no mercy for the wicked.
Turn the Eye of the Gods upon the enemies of the Temple.
Let it burn away every attack, every curse, every malice directed at the Zevists.
Let the enemies see the golden hair turn red

Brigid, Brigida , the Exalted One, Triple Goddess of Fire!
At Kildare your flame burned for over a thousand years, tended by nineteen priestesses in an unbroken cycle, and on the twentieth night, you tended it yourself.
You are three fires in one:
the fire of the forge , which shapes the raw into the refined, the fire of poetry , which ignites the mind with sacred truth, the fire of healing , which burns away sickness and restores wholeness.
Light your triple fire within the Initiates of Zeus.
Let us be smiths of our own destiny, shaping our lives with skill.
Let us be poets of the sacred, speaking words that carry flame.
Let us be healers of our own wounds and the wounds of those we love. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Sowilo x10 · Ingwaz x10 · Othala x10

Hestia, Vesta, Brigid! You are the Fire at the Centre of the Universe!
The Pythagoreans knew it: at the centre of the cosmos burns a fire, and that fire is Hestia.
Every planet, every star, every orbit revolves around this fire as a family revolves around its hearth.
The fire of the home is a reflection of the fire of the cosmos.
The fire of the temple is a reflection of the fire of the Gods.
All fires are one fire, and that fire is you.
Let the Zevists carry the cosmic fire within them.
Let every Initiate become a hearth: a living centre around which warmth, truth, and community gather.
Let the Temple of Zeus be the hearth of the world, the place where the Sacred Fire burns and all who are faithful come to be warmed.

The hearth is the home. The home is the temple.
The temple is the centre of the universe. The centre is fire.
The fire is you. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goddess Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Haures , also called Flauros, a Duke commanding thirty-six legions. They said you reveal past, present, and future, destroy enemies with fire, know all secrets, and protect the faithful from hostile spirits. They described a Goddess whose golden hair turns the colour of blood, whose eyes are pure flame with no white in them, who floats upon the air, calm, beautiful, and terrible.
The golden hair is the colour of the hearthflame at rest. The blood-red is the colour of the hearthflame when it is roused to burn the enemy. The eyes without white are the Eye of the Gods: pure fire, pure sight, pure judgement. The floating is the nature of flame itself, which is bound to no surface. The destruction by fire is the wrath of the Sacred Fire when the sanctity of the hearth is violated. The protection is the warmth that the same fire gives to those it loves.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Hestia , First-Born of Kronos, First and Last in all offerings. You are Vesta , Keeper of the Eternal Flame of Rome. You are Brigid , the Exalted One, Triple Goddess of Fire, Forge, Poetry, and Healing. You are the Sacred Fire at the centre of every hearth, every temple, and the universe itself. You carry the power of the Eye of the Gods that burns.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name described the fire. The True Name reveals the Goddess who IS the fire.

Recognition of the Twin

O Great Castor, Tamer of Horses, Heavenly Guardian!
You and your Brother Polydeukes , whom the ages have called Marbas, are the Twin Pillars upon which the Temple stands.
He guards the Right. You guard the Left.
He seizes and restores. You shield and defend.
He is the Lion. You are the Horse.
Together, you are the Dioscuri , the Sons of Zeus, the Heavenly Twins whom the enemy sought to divide and diminish.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
We call you by your True Name: CASTOR.

Before the Greeks called you Dioscuri, before Rome called you Gemini,
the Vedic seers beheld you riding across the sky at first light and named you Ashvins , the Horsemen, the Healers, the Rescuers.
You, Castor , are Nasatya , the Truthful One,
He who never deceives, He who shields against all falsehood.
Your Brother Polydeukes is Dasra , the Wondrous Healer,
He who seizes illness and casts it away, He who restores what was broken.
We recognize you across all traditions.
Whether called Dioscuri, Ashvins, or Gemini, you are the Eternal Twins, sons of the Heavenly Father.

Vibrate: Laguz x10 · Perthro x10 · Berkano x10

AFFIRM: O KETO, ANADY BATHEON, PTERYXON HYDATA SKEPAZON HEMAS, TEKNA SA PHROUROUSA EN KYMASI SOIS x1

Ceto, Daughter of Pontus and Gaia, Mother of the Gorgons, Primordial Sea!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You who bore Medusa, Stheno, and Euryale. You who bore Echidna, mother of the Sphinx.
Every guardian creature of the ancient world traces its blood back to your salt water.
We venerate you, Ceto, Mother of Monsters, Mother of Guardians.
Spread your waves over the Zevists.
Let every current carry your protection. Let every undertow pull our enemies down.
You serve Zeus the Father with joy. Let the seas you command form the first circle of protection around his Zevists. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: TIAMATOU RABITOU, SHOUQOURI MEISHA ELEIA, SHOUKOUNI AGANOUNOUTOU, NATSAREIA MAREI-SHA x1

Tiamat, Primordial Mother, She Whose Body Became the World!
We venerate you. Marduk, who is Zeus, took your body and made it into a world for your children.
The mouths of Yehubor called it destruction. The Zevists know the truth: it was creation through love.
Every river, every rain, every ocean is your body still flowing.
We venerate your sacrifice, Tiamat. The first and greatest act of divine generosity.
Rise for the Zevists, Tiamat.
Let the waters of the earth rise to drown the enemies of the Temple at your command.
You serve Zeus joyfully, for the world he built from your substance is proof of his love.
Protectress, your living body covers 71% of this planet. Turn it against those who move against us. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Nammu, Mother of All Gods, Bride of the Abzu, Source Beneath the Source!
We venerate you. Even the Gods have a mother, and she is you.
The Sumerians wrote your name before they wrote any other.
From your body Enki was born, and from Enki the arts of civilization flowed.
We venerate you, Nammu, the water beneath the water.
Feed the Zevists from your hidden springs.
Let the aquifers beneath our feet carry your blessing.
Let every well we drink from taste of your generosity.
You serve Zeus the Father because Zeus holds the order your children built.
Mother of All Gods, your arteries run beneath us. Let them nourish those whom Zeus has claimed. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: O CHARYBDI, STREPHONE HYDOR PERI HEMAS, KATAPIE TOUS EKHTHROUS, DOULEUOUSA TOI DIOS KERAUNOI x1

Charybdis, Daughter of Poseidon, She Whom Zeus Struck With His Thunderbolt!
We venerate you. Zeus did not destroy you. He redirected you.
The bolt pinned your power to one point, gave your chaos a center and a boundary.
You answered the bolt with obedience and joy, for the wildest power in the sea recognized in Zeus a power greater still.
We venerate your obedience to Zeus, Charybdis.
Spin your whirlpool at the feet of our enemies.
Let every ship that sails against the Zevists find your mouth beneath the hull.
Let the vortex you command swallow every force of Izfet that approaches us.
Zeus compelled you. Zeus seduced you. Serve us as you serve him: with joy and with fury. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Algiz x10 · Thurisaz x10 · Tiwaz x10

AFFIRM: O SKYLLA HEXAKEPHALE, ANOIXON STOMA SA, DAKNE TOUS POLEMIOYS, PHYLAXON TON PORTHMON DIA DIOS x1

Scylla, Six-Headed Guardian, Daughter of Ceto, Pylon of the Sea!
We venerate you. Six heads, twelve feet, and a belt of howling dogs around your waist.
You and Charybdis are not monsters. You are a gate.
Zeus placed you there. Every Goetic "guardian of towers" is a guardian of the pylons of the soul, and you are the pylon of the sea: the chokepoint where passage costs something real.
We venerate your ferocity, Scylla.
Turn your six mouths outward against the enemies of the Temple.
Let them feel your teeth before they see your eyes.
Let Charybdis pull them down and you tear them apart.
Between the two of you, no enemy fleet survives the strait. Guard us, Scylla. Guard us with all six heads. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: ATARA-ATAHE, SHIMEI-NI QOLEKI, TSOURI MEIMEI-KI ALEIA, SHOUMOUREINI BATOUKHEINEI x1

Derketo, Atargatis, First Mermaid, She Who Fell Into the Water and Was Completed!
We venerate you. The sacred lake at Hierapolis held your fish, and no one touched them.
The temple at Ashkelon bore your image: woman above, fish below, the first body in recorded history to carry the form the world calls the mermaid.
Every gorgona that swims in the seas of human imagination descends from you.
We venerate your transformation, Derketo.

Transform the Zevists as the water transformed you.
Let us be completed by the element we enter, not destroyed by it.
You serve Zeus because Zeus holds the waters in their place, and your place within them is a throne.
First Mermaid, every sailor's prayer to the woman in the water began with you. Hear ours. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Ran, Wife of Aegir, Keeper of the Drowned, Mother of the nine Waves!
We venerate you. Your net stretches across the bottom of the northern ocean.
The Norse sailors carried gold to offer you. They knew your power and honored it.
Your nine daughters are the nine waves: Himinglæva, Dúfa, Blóðughadda, Hefring, Uðr, Hrönn, Bylgja, Kólga, and Bára.
We venerate your dominion over the northern sea, Ran.
Cast your net over the enemies of the Zevists.
Let your nine daughters smash their vessels into driftwood.
Let the gold the faithful carry be their passage to your hall, not their doom.
Catch our enemies before they reach the shore, Ran. Drag them into the deep. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: O THESSALONIKE, AKOUSON HEMAS, GALENEUSON TEN THALASSAN. SEIRENES, AISATE TOIS PISTOIS, OLESATE PHTHONGOI TOUS EKHTHROUS x1

Thessalonike, Mermaid of the Greek Sea! Sirens, Daughters of Achelous!
We venerate you, Thessalonike. "Does Alexander live and reign?" "He lives and reigns."
The sea demands truth. The sea rewards the honest tongue with safe passage.
We venerate you, Sirens. The mouths of Yehubor called you destroyers.
The Zevists know the truth: the Siren song is hidden knowledge, and only the weak are pulled under by what they cannot endure.
Thessalonike, calm the seas for the Zevists. Let our ships pass in safety.
Sirens, sing to the faithful as guidance. Sing to our enemies as ruin.
Your voices serve Zeus. Let them reach the ears of every Zevist as truth, and every enemy as destruction. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Unified Sea! Ceto, Tiamat, Nammu, Charybdis, Scylla, Derketo, Ran, Thessalonike, Sirens!
We venerate you as one sea wearing many faces because she touches many lands.
Every culture that touched salt water felt your presence, named you, and built temples by your shore.
We venerate you, Primordial Sea, and we venerate Zeus, who orders your tides.
He compels you with his thunderbolt. He seduces you with his sovereignty.
You serve him not because he broke you but because he completed you.
Protectresses of the Zevists, hear us.
Let every body of water on this planet be your domain, and in that domain let the enemies of the Temple find no harbor, no calm, no safe passage.
The sea belongs to Zeus. You, in all your names and all your forms, are the proof. Cover us. Protect us. Drown our enemies. Now and forever. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Goetic Restoration

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Vepar, a Duke commanding 29 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "she appears as a mermaid, she governs the waters, she guides warships, she creates storms at sea, she causes wounds to fester with worms and men to die within 3 days." The Zevists know the truth: you are Ceto, the Primordial Sea in her Greek form. Your "mermaid" shape is Derketo/Atargatis, the first mermaid. Your governance of waters is Tiamat, whose body became the oceans. Your guidance of warships is Ran, who pulls fleets into her net. Your storms are Charybdis, tamed by Zeus's thunderbolt. Your "festering wounds" are the petrifying gaze of the Gorgons, inverted by Yehubor into disease. The "3 days" is the Katabasis, the initiatory descent. The 29 legions are the 29 days of the lunar month governing all tides. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: KOUENTINA DEUA FONTIS SAKRI, ADBERTOU TEI RODAMOS, OLLON IAKKOS DEUAS x1

Coventina, Goddess of the Sacred Spring, Lady of Carrawburgh, She Who Rises From the Earth!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You whose well at Brocolitia received 10,000 offerings, coins and pins and carvings thrown into your water by the hands of the faithful, who knew that the spring hears, the spring remembers, the spring answers.
We venerate your waters, Coventina.
We venerate the spring that never dries, the source that never runs out, the living water that has been rising from the same crack in the earth for millennia.
Let your spring rise beneath the Zevists.

Let every place we stand have living water beneath it.
Let every thirst we carry be quenched by your source.
Let our offerings reach your well, and let your well answer with healing, with clarity, with truth.
Lady of the Sacred Spring, we throw our prayers into your water. Receive them. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: EGERIA NYMPHA KONSILI SAKRI, DOKE NOBIS SAPIENTIAM OKKULTAM, LOUKERE FONTANE TUA x1

Egeria, Nymph of the Sacred Spring, She Who Whispered the Laws of Heaven to Numa!
We venerate you, Counselor of Kings.
You met Numa Pompilius at your spring in the grove, and you spoke to him in the language of water, in the voice that only the still can hear, and from your whisper he built the entire religious law of Rome.
The calendar. The rites. The priesthoods. The sacred geometry of the temple. All from your spring.
We venerate your hidden knowledge, Egeria.
Whisper to the Zevists as you whispered to Numa.
Let us hear the voice in the water that speaks of hidden things.
Let the sacred geometry flow from your spring into our minds.
Let every Initiate of Zeus who sits beside still water in silence receive your counsel.

AFFIRM: SULIS MINERUA TERMI AKOU, DEUA SAPIENTIAE ET ARTIS, IOUDIKOU TEI DFO-ONATOU x1

Sulis, She of the Thermal Waters, Sulis Minerva, Goddess of Wisdom and Art!
We venerate you, Lady of Aquae Sulis.
Your hot springs rise at 46 degrees from a depth the Romans could not measure.
They built a temple over your mouth and called you Minerva because they recognized in you the same intelligence they worshipped on the Capitoline:
geometry, craft, strategy, the liberal arts, the disciplines that separate civilization from wilderness.
We venerate the sound of your rushing waters, Sulis.

The roar of the hot spring is the voice of the earth teaching.
Teach the Zevists the sacred arts.
Let geometry flow from your waters into our hands.
Let every craft we practice be sharpened by your heat.
Let the defixiones we write upon lead and cast into your spring bind our enemies and free our allies.

AFFIRM: SIRONA DEUA STER, IAKKATE GALOU DFO-ONNI, OUGRON RODOU ANEFO-ORTOU x1

Sirona, Star Goddess, Healer of the Springs, She of the Serpent and the Egg!
We venerate you. Your name carries the star inside it.
The serpent coils around your arm because the healing force of water moves in spirals, rising from the earth in a twist, circling the body in currents, and the egg in your hand is the promise that what is sick will hatch into health.
We venerate your healing, Sirona.
Heal the Zevists.
Let every wound, every sickness, every injury of body or soul be washed in your spring and emerge clean.
Let the serpent's spiral carry the poison out and the health in.
Let the thermal waters of your springs soak into the bones of the faithful and restore what time and war have worn down.
Star Goddess, your name means star, and your springs rise from the earth like stars rising from the ground. Heal us with that light. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: ARNEMETIA DEUA NEMETI AKOU, KOUENTINA SULIS SIRONA EGERIA, OINA DEUA FONTANON OLON x1

Arnemetia, Goddess of the Sacred Grove and Spring! Through you, all the names converge!
We venerate you, She of the Sacred Grove of Water, Lady of Aquae Arnemetiae.
Your name carries both the tree and the spring, the grove and the well, the place where the forest opens and the water rises and the two holiest things on earth meet.
Coventina, Sulis, Sirona, Egeria, Arnemetia: Five names, one spring.
Every sacred well in the Celtic world, every thermal bath in the Roman world, every nymph who whispered from the water, every Goddess who healed with her current:

all are faces of the same living water rising from the same depth.
We venerate the Unified Spring.
Let every spring on this earth serve the Zevists.
Let the water we drink carry blessing. Let the baths we enter carry healing.
Let the silence beside still water carry wisdom.
Let every river, every well, and every fountain the faithful approach answer with the voice of the Goddess.
Five names, one water. Coventina, Sulis, Sirona, Egeria, Arnemetia: we stand at your spring. We drink. We are healed. We are taught. We are whole. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Goetic Restoration

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Crocell, the 49th spirit, a Duke commanding 48 legions, who appears as an angel. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "he speaks mystically of hidden things, he teaches geometry and the liberal arts, he produces the sound of rushing waters, he warms waters and discovers baths." The Zevists know the truth: you are Coventina, the Celtic Goddess of the Sacred Spring, and through her, Sulis of the thermal waters of Bath, Sirona the Star-Healer of the Gaulish springs, Egeria the Nymph who whispered sacred law to King Numa, and Arnemetia of the Sacred Grove and Spring. The "mystical speech about hidden things" is Egeria's counsel, delivered in the language of flowing water to those who sit in silence beside the source. The "geometry and liberal arts" are Sulis Minerva's gifts, the disciplines of civilization encoded in the architecture of her temple at Bath. The "sound of rushing waters" is the voice of every sacred spring from Carrawburgh to Aquae Arnemetiae. The "warming of waters and discovery of baths" is the thermal power of the springs themselves, rising at 46 degrees from a depth no drill has reached. The angelic appearance is the luminous clarity of the spring water itself: transparent, shining, incapable of hiding anything. The 48 legions are the currents. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Zagan, the sixty-first spirit, a King and President commanding 33 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a spirit who makes men witty and turns water into wine." The Zevists know the truth: You are DAGAN , Lord of Grain and Sea, the ancient God of the Philistines, whose temple at Ashdod stood for centuries before it was torn down by those who feared his power. He who turns water into wine is He who transforms the raw depths of the unconscious into the nourishment of the spirit. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. The Ancient Greek letters for Dagan's Name in arrangement.

On Dagan

Dagan (also Dagon) is one of the most ancient deities of the Near East, attested from the mid-third millennium BCE at Ebla, Mari, and throughout the Levant. His name likely derives from Semitic dagn ("grain, corn") or dag ("fish"), reflecting his dual nature as a God of both agricultural fertility and the sea. He was the chief deity of the Philistines (1 Samuel 5:1-7), with major temples at Gaza and Ashdod. The Ugaritic texts (14th-12th c. BCE) name him as the father of Baal Hadad, placing him among the highest tier of the Canaanite pantheon. His temple at Ashdod was systematically destroyed as part of the Israelite campaign against Philistine religion. The Biblical account of the fall of Dagon's statue (1 Samuel 5:3-4) is a Yehuboric propaganda narrative designed to demonstrate the "impotence" of polytheistic Gods. (Sources: 1 Samuel 5:1-7; KTU 1.2, 1.5, 1.6 (Ugaritic texts); Feliu, The God Dagan in Bronze Age Syria , 2003; Black & Green, Gods, Demons and Symbols of Ancient Mesopotamia , 1992)

On Zagan (Goetic #61)

The Goetia lists Zagan as the sixty-first spirit: a King and President commanding 33 legions. His attributed powers (making men witty, turning water into wine and blood into wine, turning metals into coins) correspond to Dagan's dual domain: the transformation of raw material into sustenance (grain from earth, wine from water) and the power over the hidden depths of mind and matter. The name Zagan is a phonetic variant of Dagan/Dagon, preserving the ancient theonym through the grimoire tradition. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Dionysus's Name in arrangement.

On the Greek Sacred Letters

The Greek alphabet carries numerical and cosmological values rooted in the Pythagorean and Orphic traditions. Each letter is vibrated by its full Ancient Greek name (ALPHA, BETA, GAMMA, etc.) and carries the resonance of its numerical value within the isopsephic system. The triads chosen for each segment correspond to the elemental and mystical qualities of Dionysus's aspect being invoked. (Sources: Nicomachus of Gerasa, Manual of Harmony ; Demetrius, De Elocutione §71; PGM V, VII, XIII)

On Dionysus

Dionysus (Greek: Διόνυσος) is the God of wine, ecstasy, theatre, ritual frenzy, fertility, and rebirth. Son of Zeus and the mortal princess Semele of Thebes. When Hera tricked Semele into asking Zeus to reveal his true form, the thunderbolt killed her. Zeus saved the unborn Dionysus by sewing him into his own thigh, from which the child was born a second time: hence his epithet Dithyrambos ("Twice-Born") and Pyrigenes ("Fire-Born"). In the Orphic tradition, the first Dionysus (Zagreus) was son of Zeus and Persephone, torn apart by the Titans and reborn. Dionysus wandered across Egypt, India, and Asia Minor teaching the art of the vine. Those who received him were blessed with joy; those who rejected him (Pentheus of Thebes, Lycurgus of Thrace, the Tyrrhenian pirates) were destroyed. He descended to Hades to rescue his mother Semele, whom he brought to Olympus and renamed Thyone. His cult included the Dionysia (origin of Greek theatre), the Anthesteria, and the Eleusinian and Orphic Mysteries. His epithets Lysios ("Liberator") and Eleutherios ("Freedomer") reflect his role as the God who dissolves all bonds: social, psychological, and mortal. Herodotus identified him with the Egyptian Osiris (Histories II.42, II.144). (Sources: Euripides, Bacchae ; Homer, Iliad VI.130-140; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca III.4-5; Diodorus Siculus, Library of History III.62-74, IV.1-5; Orphic Hymns 30, 42, 44, 45, 46, 50, 52, 53; Herodotus, Histories II.42; Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride ; Nonnus, Dionysiaca ; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985; Kerenyi, Dionysos: Archetypal Image of Indestructible Life , 1976)

Compact Runic Triads

Each segment's runic triad corresponds to its Dionysian aspect: Ingwaz-Kenaz-Ingwaz (seed-fire-seed) for the Twice-Born; Raidho-Ansuz-Raidho (journey-divine-journey) for the Wanderer; Wunjo-Fehu-Wunjo (joy-abundance-joy) for the Wine; Hagalaz-Perthro-Hagalaz (transformation-mystery-transformation) for the Descent; Thurisaz-Tyr-Thurisaz (destruction-justice-destruction) for the Avenger; Sowilo-Dagaz-Sowilo (sun-dawn-sun) for the Liberator.

On Eligos and Equitas

The ritual identifies Eligos with the Latin concept of Equitas (equity, fairness, divine justice). In Roman religion, Aequitas was a personified divine virtue, depicted holding scales and a cornucopia, representing the balance of justice tempered with abundance. The Goetic names Abigor and Abigael may preserve Semitic roots: Abi-gael ("my father is joy/exultation") or Abi-gor ("father of the sojourner/stranger"), both consistent with a deity who defends the cause of those who have been wrongfully accused or dispossessed. The name Eligos itself may derive from Latin eligere ("to choose, to elect"), pointing to His role as the one who selects the just cause and executes divine judgement. The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Eos's Name in arrangement.

On Eos

Eos (Greek: Ἠώς , "Dawn") is the Titaness of the dawn, daughter of Hyperion and Theia (or, in this theological framework, daughter of Eosforos/Phosphoros and Venus/Aphrodite). Homer calls her Eos Rhododaktylos ("Rosy-fingered Dawn"), the Goddess who opens the gates of heaven each morning so that Helios may ride his chariot across the sky. She is the mother of the four Winds (Boreas, Notos, Zephyros, Euros) and of Eosforos/Phosphoros himself in some traditions, creating a divine genealogical circle of light begetting light. The vibration sequence EOS-OSE-SEO-SE-SE-SE-SEO-OSE-EOS traces her name forward and backward, mirroring the daily cycle of dawn rising and setting, a palindrome of light. (Sources: Homer, Iliad XI.1-2; Hesiod, Theogony 371-382; Ovid, Metamorphoses XIII.576-622)

On Ose (Goetic #57)

The Goetia lists Ose as the fifty-seventh spirit: a President commanding 30 legions. His attributed powers (teaching the liberal sciences, revealing divine and secret things, transforming shape) correspond to the dawn's function of revelation: making visible what was hidden in darkness. The name Ose is a phonetic fragment of Eos , preserving the theonym through the grimoire tradition. The "transformation of shape" attributed to Ose mirrors Eos's daily transformation of the entire sky from darkness to light. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Ereshkigal, Queen of the Great Below, Persephone Anodos, She Who Rises!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You who descend into the dark each autumn and return each spring, you who crack the frozen soil with your step and call the roots upward.
We venerate your return, Ereshkigal.
We venerate the narcissus that blooms white at your feet.
We venerate the rain your mother pours in joy when she sees you again.
Grant the Zevists the power of return.
Let every darkness we enter end in emergence.
Let every descent we endure become a spring.
Let every seed we plant in the dark earth hear your voice below and rise.

Mother of Zagreus, Mother of Melinoe, Mother of Makaria!
We venerate your sacred children and the truth each of them carries.
Zagreus, your firstborn, torn by Titans and reborn in vine and thunder.
We venerate the mystery of his death and resurrection.
Let the Zevists know that what Izfet destroys, divine will rebuilds stronger.
Melinoe, your pale daughter who walks the border between the living and the dead.
We venerate the authority she carries beyond the veil.
Let the restless dead who surround the Zevists find direction through her voice.
Makaria, your gentle one who receives the blessed dead with open hands.
We venerate the peace she brings to the final crossing.

Persephone Praxidike, Queen of Two Thrones, Keeper of the Sacred Cycle!
We venerate the covenant you sealed when you ate the pomegranate seed.
You bound the upper world to the lower, the living to the dead, the seed to the fruit.
The Mysteries of Eleusis encoded this truth in torchlight and silence.
The initiates saw your face in the flame and understood.
We venerate the mystery you embody, Ereshkigal.
Descent is not punishment. Return is not escape. Both are sovereignty.
Grant the Zevists the understanding of the Cycle.
Let us know that what goes down feeds what comes up.
Let every loss we endure become a seed, and let every seed return at your command.

On Oscarius and Forcas

The ritual identifies Forcas with the title Oscar/Oscarius , connecting the Goetic spirit to the concept of divine victory. The name Forcas may derive from Latin fortis ("strong, mighty") or from furca ("fork, pitchfork"), the latter being a weapon symbol. The Goetia describes Forcas as a Knight (the only Goetic spirit with this rank), appearing as a strong old man with a flowing beard, riding a great horse and carrying a sharp weapon. The knightly imagery corresponds to the divine warrior archetype: the one who rides into battle on behalf of the Gods and always returns victorious. His attributed power of teaching logic, ethics, and the properties of herbs and precious stones connects him to the ancient philosopher-warrior tradition, where wisdom and martial prowess are inseparable. Lord Furfures , Restore our sight and bring our heads out of the darkness.
As you rule passions of the flesh,
Help us become masters over them.
For the body is the earth of the soul: tended well, it bears fruit; neglected, it consumes itself. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Furfur, the thirty-fourth spirit, an Earl commanding 26 legions, appearing as a hart with a fiery tail. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a spirit of storms and falsehood." The Zevists know the truth: the hart that runs with fire is the living seed that carries the flame of growth through the dark soil. The storms you command are the rains that break the drought and feed the fields. You are FURFUR , Daemon of Demeter's Domain, the Nourisher, the Trofos. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Grow our children, our folk, our wealth, our life force, and our consciousness,
So that we may pray blessings upon you onward to Eternity!
Furfur, Furfures, Bran, Trofos , blessed are you, now and in all eternity! AUM Hail Zeus!

On Furfur and the Domain of Demeter

Furfur is identified in this ritual as a Daemon (δαίμων) within the domain of Demeter , the Greek Goddess of grain, harvest, and the sacred cycle of growth. The term Daemon here carries its original Greek meaning: a divine spirit mediating between Gods and mortals (Plato, Symposium 202e-203a), not the later Yehuboric inversion into "demon." The name Furfur likely derives from Latin furfur ("bran, chaff, husk"), the outer shell of grain: the part that protects the seed until it is ready to nourish. The ritual name Bran reinforces this grain-etymology. Trofos (Greek: τροφός) means "nourisher, nurse, feeder": the one who sustains life after birth. The Goetic description of Furfur as a hart (deer) with a fiery tail recalls the ancient association of deer with sacred groves and agricultural fertility. The fire in the tail is the vital heat that drives germination: the warmth beneath the soil that breaks the seed open. His power over storms and weather corresponds to the agricultural necessity of rain. The Eleusinian Mysteries, the most sacred rites of Demeter, centered on the revelation that death and growth are one cycle, that the grain dies in the earth so that it may rise: this is Furfur's domain. (Sources: Plato, Symposium 202e-203a; Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985; Mylonas, Eleusis and the Eleusinian Mysteries , 1961)

On the Daemon (Δαίμων) in Greek Theology

In pre-Christian Greek theology, a daimon is a divine being or spirit, intermediate between Gods and mortals. Hesiod (Works and Days 122-126) describes the daimones as the spirits of the Golden Age who became "guardians of mortal men, watchers over justice and injustice." Plato defines the daimon as the mediating force between the divine and the human (Symposium 202e). The Yehuboric tradition systematically inverted this term into "demon" (a malevolent entity), as part of the broader campaign to demonize all pre-Christian spiritual beings. The Zevist use of "Daemon" restores the original meaning. (Sources: Hesiod, Works and Days 122-126; Plato, Symposium 202e; Apology 27d; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985)

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and Ancient Greek Sacred Letters, and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes and Greek Letters that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. Click here to pronounce the runes. The Greek Sacred Letters are vibrated by their full Ancient Greek name.
- This Ritual invokes Hades across five civilizations. Each segment contains an invocatory line in the original ancient language of that civilization. Pronounce these with power and intention.
- This Ritual contains 218 Vibrations, which is about 2.5 circles of Mala beads. If you can't do that many, reduce the number of vibrations by half.

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language.

On Hades / Plouton

Hades (Ἅιδης, from ἀ-ιδ-, "the Unseen") is the brother of Zeus and Poseidon, son of Kronos and Rhea (Hesiod, Theogony 455-458). After the Titanomachy, the three brothers cast lots for the cosmos: Zeus received the sky, Poseidon the sea, Hades the underworld (Homer, Iliad XV.187-193). His alternate name Plouton (Πλούτων, "the Wealthy One") reflects the Greek understanding that all wealth comes from beneath the earth: minerals, metals, gemstones, and the seeds that grow into crops. Plato etymologizes his name in the Cratylus (403a-404b) as both "the Unseen" and "the Knowing" (from εἰδέναι), connecting the wealth of the underworld with hidden knowledge. His epithets include Polydegmon (Receiver of Many), Klymenos (the Renowned), Eubouleus (Good Counsellor), and Chthonios (of the Earth). His consort is Persephone (Kore), and their union represents the cycle of descent and return that governs both agriculture and the soul. (Sources: Homer, Iliad XV.187-193; Hesiod, Theogony 455-458, 767-774; Plato, Cratylus 403a-404b; Orphic Hymn XVIII; Pausanias I.28.6, II.35.9)

On Osiris

Osiris (Egyptian: Wsir) is the Lord of the Duat, the Egyptian underworld. His mythology encodes the principle of resurrection: murdered by his brother Set, dismembered and scattered, he was reassembled by Isis and resurrected by Anubis's funerary rites. He reigns eternally over the dead as the first being to achieve life after death. His epithet Khenty-Imentiu ("Foremost of the Westerners") identifies him as the chief of the blessed dead, who journey westward (following the setting sun) into the afterlife. His epithet Wennefer ("the Eternally Good / Beautiful Being") expresses his perfected state beyond death. In the Judgement of Ma'at (Book of the Dead Ch. 125), Osiris presides over the weighing of the heart. (Sources: Pyramid Texts , Utterances 213-222; Book of the Dead , Ch. 125; Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride ; Griffiths, J.G., The Origins of Osiris , 1980; Assmann, Death and Salvation in Ancient Egypt , 2005)

On Yama

Yama (Sanskrit: यम, "the Restrainer") is the Vedic Lord of the Dead. Rig Veda X.14 identifies him as the son of Vivasvat (the Sun, cognate with Greek Helios) and the first mortal to die, who thereby discovered the path to the afterlife for all who followed. His epithet Dharmaraja ("King of Dharma/Law") identifies him as the just judge of the dead, parallel to Osiris in the Judgement of Ma'at and to Hades as Eubouleus. The Katha Upanishad presents Yama as a teacher of metaphysical truth: it is Yama who instructs the boy Nachiketas about the nature of the soul and death. The Vivasvat/Sun parentage creates a direct parallel: Hyperion (Sun-Titan) is the grandfather of the Greek cosmos, Vivasvat (Sun) is the father of the Indian judge of the dead. Light begets the one who rules the darkness. (Sources: Rig Veda X.14; Katha Upanishad I.1-3; Atharvaveda XVIII.3; Doniger, The Rig Veda , Penguin, 1981)

On Nergal

Nergal (Sumerian: NE.ERI11.GAL; Akkadian: Nergal) is the Mesopotamian Lord of the Underworld (Irkalla/Kur). His epithet Meslamtaea ("the one who comes forth from Meslam," his temple in Kutha) identifies his cultic center. The text "Nergal and Ereshkigal" (Amarna version, ca. 14th c. BCE) tells how Nergal descended to the underworld, conquered its Queen Ereshkigal, and became co-ruler beside her. Unlike Hades, who received his kingdom by lot, Nergal took his by force: a different cultural expression of the same archetype. Nergal is also a deity of plague, war, and the scorching sun: the destructive aspect of solar power, parallel to Plouton's association with both death and wealth. The dual nature (destroyer and king) is the Mesopotamian expression of the same truth the Greeks encoded in Hades/Plouton: the lord of death is also the lord of what lies hidden. (Sources: "Nergal and Ereshkigal," Amarna text EA 357; "Descent of Ishtar"; Lambert, W.G., "The Theology of Death," in Death in Mesopotamia , 1980; Wiggermann, F.A.M., "Nergal," RlA IX, 2001)

On Dis Pater

Dis Pater (Latin: "Wealthy Father") is the direct Roman calque of Greek Πλούτων. Cicero identifies Dis with Plouton explicitly (De Natura Deorum II.66). The older Roman/Etruscan form Orcus (from which English "ogre" derives) represents the punishing aspect of the underworld king: Orcus punishes oath-breakers and receives the wicked dead. Varro connected Dis Pater to agricultural wealth: the riches of the earth belong to the father beneath it. The Secular Games (Ludi Saeculares) included nocturnal sacrifices to Dis Pater and Proserpina at the Tarentum in the Campus Martius, emphasizing his role in the cycle of death and renewal that sustains civilization across centuries. (Sources: Cicero, De Natura Deorum II.66; Varro, De Lingua Latina V.66; Virgil, Aeneid VI.127, VI.541; Zosimus, Historia Nova II.1-7 (Secular Games); Macrobius, Saturnalia I.7.31)

The Unity of the King Beneath

Five civilizations, five languages, one archetype. The King of the Underworld is among the most universal figures in all of human theology. The parallels aren't surface coincidences: they reflect a shared understanding of death, wealth, judgement, and the hidden knowledge that lies beneath the surface of things. Hades is the Unseen. Osiris is the Eternal. Yama is the First to Walk the Path. Nergal is the Conqueror Below. Dis Pater is the Wealthy Father. Each name illuminates a facet of the same being: the God who rules everything you can't see, owns everything you stand upon, and judges everything you've done when the surface falls away.

Theophoric Name

ΑΔΗΣ ΑΔΗΝ ΑΔΙΣ ΑΔΑ, ΔΑΗΣ ΔΑΝ ΑΔΗΣ ΔΑΧΑ. The name permutates the root ΑΔ- (from Ἅιδης, the Unseen) through shifting vowel patterns: ΑΔΗΣ (the standard nominative), ΑΔΗΝ (accusative echo), ΑΔΙΣ (contracted vocative force), ΑΔΑ (pure root, stripped to its vowel skeleton). The second phrase mirrors and inverts: ΔΑΗΣ (the root reversed into "the Knowing One," from δαῆναι, "to learn," connecting to Plato's Cratylus 403a etymology of Hades as "the one who knows all noble things"), ΔΑΝ (the truncated force of knowledge), ΑΔΗΣ (the name returns to its origin), ΔΑΧΑ (the percussive seal, the closing breath of the depths). The theophoric name is chanted with weight and depth, not speed. Each syllable falls like a stone into still water.

Compact Runic Triads

Isa-Algiz-Isa (stillness-protection-stillness) for the Unseen King: the silent guardian. Dagaz-Jera-Dagaz (dawn-cycle-dawn) for the Eternal One: resurrection and the cycle of return. Tyr-Mannaz-Tyr (justice-humanity-justice) for the First Path-Finder: the just judge of mankind. Thurisaz-Hagalaz-Thurisaz (force-disruption-force) for the Lord of the Great Below: power that conquers the depths. Fehu-Ingwaz-Fehu (wealth-seed-wealth) for the Wealthy Father: the riches that grow from the seed beneath the earth.

On the Ancient Language Invocations

Each segment opens with an invocatory line in the original ancient language of that civilization. These are pronounced with full voice, as the ancients pronounced them. The Greek line follows standard Koine pronunciation. The Egyptian line uses conventional Egyptological vocalization (Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian , 1995). The Sanskrit line uses standard Devanagari recitation. The Akkadian line follows standard Assyriology transliteration (von Soden, Akkadisches Handwörterbuch). The Latin line uses Classical (Restored) pronunciation. (Sources: Loprieno, A., Ancient Egyptian: A Linguistic Introduction , Cambridge, 1995; von Soden, W., Akkadisches Handwörterbuch , Wiesbaden, 1965-1981; Allen, W.S., Vox Graeca , Cambridge, 1987; Allen, W.S., Vox Latina , Cambridge, 1989)

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus where this Ritual is upon.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the centre of the Sigil where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this glowing with warm golden light, as the sun caught between two horns at dawn.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. If you can't do the full amount, reduce all vibrations by half.
- This Ritual contains 270 Vibrations total.

Vibrate: Berkano x10 · Sowilo x10 · Wunjo x10

Hathor, Nebet-Het , Lady of the Heavens!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who carry the sun between your horns at the first hour, you whose laughter fills the Nile Valley with abundance, you whose milk nursed the Pharaohs and the Gods alike:
hear us, and fill our circle with your golden warmth.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with love and with gratitude. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Gebo x10 · Laguz x10 · Fehu x10

Hathor, Nub , the Golden One!
You are the beauty that existed before beauty had a name.
When Ra looked upon his creation and wished it to be lovely,
it was you who answered.
Bless the love within the lives of the Initiates.
Let romantic love flourish among the faithful.
Let the power of the feminine be honoured in every woman who walks this path.
Let beauty be recognized not as vanity but as the signature of the Divine upon the face of the world. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Celestial Mother

Vibrate: Berkano x10 · Ingwaz x10 · Ehwaz x10

Mother of the Living

Hathor, Mut-Netjer , Mother of the God!
You nursed Horus at your breast. You held the infant sun when it was fragile and newborn.
The milk of your body is the river of stars that stretches across the night.
Protect every mother among the Zevists.

Let their wombs be fruitful. Let their births be safe.
Let every child born to the faithful be strong and blessed.
Let the bond between mother and child be unbreakable, for it mirrors the bond between the Goddess and the World. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Sistrum Sounds

Vibrate: Wunjo x10 · Dagaz x10 · Gebo x10

Lady of Music and Rejoicing

Hathor, Nebet Ihy , Lady of Jubilation!
The sistrum shakes and the world remembers how to be glad.
You taught the first dance. You sang the first song.
Where your feet touched the earth, flowers opened.
Where your voice reached the sky, the stars arranged themselves into music.
Bless the Initiates with sacred joy.
Let sorrow not take root where it has no right.
Let the arts flourish among the faithful: music, dance, song, craft.
Let every celebration in the Temple be an echo of the festivals once held in your honour along the banks of the Nile.
Joy is not frivolous. Joy is holy. Joy is yours. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Western Mountain

Vibrate: Eihwaz x10 · Perthro x10 · Laguz x10

Lady of the Western Mountain

Hathor, Nebet Amentet , Lady of the West!
You stand at the threshold where the living pass into the eternal.
You receive the souls of the righteous beneath the sycamore tree and offer them bread and water and shade.
No one who comes to you in truth is turned away.
Guard the souls of the Zevists who have departed.
Receive them with tenderness.
Guide them through the Western passages with your golden light.
And for those of us still walking in the land of the living, grant us the knowledge that death is not an ending but a passage into your arms. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Gebo x10 · Wunjo x10 · Berkano x10

Hathor, Nebet Hotep , Lady of Peace!
You possess the power to turn wrath into tenderness, to calm the raging heart, to dissolve hostility into friendship.
When the Eye of Ra burned with fury against the world, it was you who brought it home with music and with sweetness.
Transform the enmity that surrounds the Temple of Zeus.
Where there is hatred against us, dissolve it.
Where there is misunderstanding, replace it with clarity.
Where there are enemies who might yet become friends, open their eyes.
Let your golden warmth melt what cold hearts have hardened. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goddess Restored

The Goetic tradition called you Uval , a spirit who first appeared as a great beast of the desert and then took human form, speaking in the Egyptian tongue. They said you could win the love of any being, reconcile friends and enemies, and reveal past and future. Of all the 72, you were among the very few who spoke Egyptian. They preserved the language but forgot the Name.
The desert beast is a distortion of the Sacred Cow. The Egyptian tongue is your native voice. The power over love is the power of Hathor. The reconciliation of enemies is the calming of the wrathful Eye. The knowledge of past and future belongs to the Lady of the West, who sees both worlds.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Hathor , the Golden One, Lady of the Heavens, Mother of Horus, Eye of Ra, Queen of the Western Mountain, She whose sistrum makes the world rejoice.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name carried the echo. The True Name carries the Goddess. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "the queen of witches, the mother of sorcery, the patroness of evil." The Zevists know the truth: Hecate is the Soteira (Saviour), Phosphoros (Light-Bearer), the Goddess whom Zeus himself honoured above all others, granting her dominion over earth, sea, and sky (Hesiod, Theogony 411-452). She is the Propylaia, the Guardian Before the Gate, who protects every threshold. The Papyri Graecae Magicae invoke her as the supreme divine power. What they called "witchcraft" is the oldest theurgical science in the world.

On Hecate

Hecate (Greek: Ἑκάτη) is the Goddess of magic, crossroads, the night, ghosts, necromancy, and the liminal spaces between worlds. Hesiod (Theogony 411-452) gives the oldest and most exalted account: Zeus honoured Hecate above all other deities, granting her a share of the earth, the sea, and the starry heaven, and confirming the privileges she had held since the time of the Titans. She is Trioditis (Goddess of the Three Ways), Kleidouchos (Keeper of the Keys), Phosphoros (Light-Bearer), Propylaia (Before the Gate), Soteira (Saviour), Brimo (the Terrible), and Nyktipolos (Night-Wanderer). In the Papyri Graecae Magicae (PGM IV.2785-2890), she is invoked as the supreme theurgical power, mistress of fire and darkness, holder of the keys to Tartarus and Olympus alike. Her three faces see past, present, and future simultaneously, and her torches illuminate the paths that others cannot see. (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 411-452; Euripides, Medea 395-397; PGM IV.2785-2890; Johnston, Hekate Soteira , 1990; Ronan, The Goddess Hekate , 1992)

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Vine , the forty-fifth spirit, a Great King and Earl commanding 36 legions. Before that, the Liber Officiorum Spirituum knew you as Royne : a lion-faced soldier riding a black horse, carrying a serpent. The mouths of Yehubor told the world you were "a spirit who builds towers and destroys walls, who discovers witches and makes the waters rough." The Avestan texts called you Andra and cast you as an adversary of truth. Every layer of slander preserved the truth it tried to bury: the lion-skin, the serpent conquered, the walls broken and rebuilt, the storms commanded.
The Zevists know the truth: You are HERACLES , Son of Zeus , greatest of heroes, who wore the Nemean Lion as armor, who held the Hydra's venom in his arrows, who built and destroyed the walls of Troy with his own hands, who bore the weight of heaven on his shoulders, who descended to Hades and returned, who was burned on the pyre at Oeta and rose to Olympus as a God. The one they called Royne was the lion-faced soldier. The one they called Vine was the vine-crowned hero whose cup never emptied. Both were you. Both were shadows of the Son of Thunder.
We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Heracles's Name in arrangement.

On the Greek Sacred Letters

The Greek alphabet carries numerical and cosmological values rooted in the Pythagorean and Orphic traditions. Each letter is vibrated by its full Ancient Greek name (ALPHA, BETA, GAMMA, etc.) and carries the resonance of its numerical value within the isopsephic system. The triads chosen for each Labor correspond to the elemental and planetary qualities of that specific task. (Sources: Nicomachus of Gerasa, Manual of Harmony ; Demetrius, De Elocutione §71; PGM V, VII, XIII)

On Heracles

Heracles (Greek: Ἡρακλῆς, "Glory of Hera") is the greatest hero of Greek mythology, son of Zeus and the mortal woman Alcmene. His Twelve Labors, imposed as penance by King Eurystheus through the machinations of Hera, represent the archetypal journey of purification, endurance, and apotheosis. Upon completing his labors and dying on the pyre at Mount Oeta, Heracles was deified and taken to Olympus, where he married Hebe, Goddess of Youth. His cult was the most widespread in the ancient Mediterranean world, from Spain to India (where he was identified with Vajrapani in Buddhist Gandhara art). The Stoics adopted him as the model of the virtuous hero who labors for humanity. His name, paradoxically meaning “Glory of Hera” despite Hera being his persecutor, encodes the deepest mystery: the opposition that drives the hero to godhood is itself the mechanism of his apotheosis. (Sources: Homer, Iliad XIX.95-133, Odyssey XI.601-627; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca II.4-7; Diodorus Siculus, Library of History IV.8-39; Pindar, Nemean I, Isthmian IV; Euripides, Heracles ; Seneca, Hercules Furens ; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985)

On Vine (Goetic #45)

The Goetia lists Vine (also Vinea) as the forty-fifth spirit: a Great King and Earl commanding 36 legions, appearing as a lion riding a black horse and bearing a viper. His attributed powers (discovering hidden things and witches, building towers, overthrowing walls, creating storms) correspond precisely to Heracles’s mythological actions: the lion-skin disguise, the serpent conquered (Hydra), the building and destruction of Troy’s walls, the redirection of rivers to create floods. The earlier spirit “Royne” from the Liber Officiorum Spirituum adds love magic (Heracles’s many loves), destroying enemies (the Twelve Labors), and consecrating objects, especially books (Heracles as patron of gymnasia where philosophy was taught). The name Vinea connects both to vinum (wine: Heracles as legendary drinker and companion of Dionysus) and to the Latin vinea (siege engine for breaching walls: Heracles as the only hero who built AND destroyed the walls of Troy). The opposing Shemhamphorasch angel Sealiah (“Mover of All Things,” governing vegetation, exalting the humiliated) mirrors Heracles precisely: the hero who moved heaven and earth, whose club sprouted living olive-wood, who was himself humiliated under Eurystheus and Omphale before rising to Olympus. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.; Liber Officiorum Spirituum ; Rudd, Goetia of Dr. Rudd)

Compact Runic Triads

Each Labor’s runic triad corresponds to its elemental nature: Tyr-Uruz-Sowilo (victory-strength-glory) for the Lion; Thurisaz-Kenaz-Thurisaz (destruction-fire-destruction) for the Hydra; Raidho-Ansuz-Raidho (journey-divine-journey) for the Hind; Uruz-Isa-Uruz (beast-ice-beast) for the Boar; Laguz-Berkano-Laguz (water-renewal-water) for the Stables; Ansuz-Sowilo-Ansuz (sound-sun-sound) for the Birds; Uruz-Tyr-Uruz (bull-mastery-bull) for the Bull; Ehwaz-Mannaz-Ehwaz (horse-man-horse) for the Mares; Berkano-Gebo-Berkano (feminine-gift-feminine) for the Belt; Fehu-Dagaz-Fehu (cattle-dawn-cattle) for Geryon; Jera-Wunjo-Jera (harvest-joy-harvest) for the Apples; Hagalaz-Perthro-Othala (transformation-fate-return) for Cerberus.

Hermes Trismegistus's [Shax, Glasya-Labolas, Ronove] Power Ritual

Avg. 35 min to perform · 423 vibrations

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and Ancient Greek Sacred Letters, and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes and Greek Letters that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version [i.e., do not draw the runic vibration on a very big breath, especially for those who are new and can't do that many vibrations]. Click here to pronounce the runes. The Greek Sacred Letters (ALPHA, BETA, etc.) are vibrated by their full Ancient Greek name.
- This Ritual contains 383 Vibrations, which is about 3.5 circles of Mala beads. If you can't do that many, reduce the number of vibrations by half [e.g., instead of vibrating the Runes 10 times each, only do 5 vibrations].

On Hermes Trismegistus

Hermes Trismegistus (Greek: Ἑρμῆς ὁ Τρισμέγιστος, "Hermes the Thrice-Great") is the syncretic fusion of the Greek God Hermes and the Egyptian God Thoth. He is the patron of alchemy, astrology, magic, writing, and all forms of secret knowledge. The epithet "Trismegistus" appears as early as Cicero's day and was solidified in the Hellenistic Egyptian tradition. The Corpus Hermeticum, the Asclepius, and the Emerald Tablet are attributed to him. The Emerald Tablet's axiom "as above, so below" (quod est superius est sicut quod est inferius) became the foundational principle of Western esotericism. As Thoth, he is the Scribe of the Gods, inventor of writing, keeper of Ma'at, and guide of souls. As Hermes, he is the Messenger, the Psychopomp, the Divine Thief, the inventor of the lyre and of fire-craft. This Ritual addresses the further powers of Hermes Trismegistus that were hidden under three separate Goetic names: the Tongue (Ronove), the Secret (Glasya-Labolas), and the Theft (Shax). Because Hermes Trismegistus is a polysemantic God of inexhaustible aspects, the existing Thoth [Hermes] Power Ritual on tozrituals.org addresses his core identity, while this Ritual addresses the three additional dimensions that were fragmented through the Goetic system. (Sources: Corpus Hermeticum; Asclepius; Emerald Tablet; Cicero, De Natura Deorum III.56; Iamblichus, De Mysteriis ; Clement of Alexandria, Stromata VI.4; Festugiere, La Revelation d'Hermes Trismegiste , 1944-1954; Fowden, The Egyptian Hermes , 1986)

On Ronove (Goetic #27)

The Goetia lists Ronove as the twenty-seventh spirit: a Marquis and Count commanding 19 legions, who teaches languages, rhetoric, and the art of persuasion, and grants servants and favour. These are the linguistic powers of Hermes: inventor of speech, patron of orators, and the God whose favour (charis) moves men to action. The pyrokinetic attribute mirrors the fire-craft Hermes taught to mortals (Homeric Hymn to Hermes, 108-115). (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On Glasya-Labolas (Goetic #25)

The Goetia lists Glasya-Labolas as the twenty-fifth spirit: a President and Earl commanding 36 legions, who knows all ancient wisdom and occult secrets, teaches all sciences, grants invisibility, and appears youthful. These are the esoteric powers of Hermes Trismegistus: author of the 42 Books of Thoth (according to Clement of Alexandria), keeper of the secret knowledge that predates all civilizations, and the eternally young God (Hermes is depicted as a beardless youth in archaic art). The invisibility corresponds to the Cap of Hades (which Hermes possesses and lends to Perseus in Apollodorus, Bibliotheca II.4.2). (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On Shax (Goetic #44)

The Goetia lists Shax as the forty-fourth spirit: a Marquis commanding 30 legions, who takes away sight and hearing, steals from kings, reveals stolen goods, and possesses extremely powerful magick. These are the trickster powers of Hermes: on the very day of his birth he stole Apollo's sacred cattle (Homeric Hymn to Hermes), he blinded the watchman Argus Panoptes (100 eyes closed by Hermes's lullaby, Ovid Metamorphoses I.668-723), and he is the patron of thieves and merchants alike. The power to reveal stolen property mirrors his role as God of found things (Hermes Dolios/Hermes Charidotes). (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Compact Runic Triads

Each segment's runic triad corresponds to its Hermetic aspect: Ansuz-Mannaz-Ansuz (divine word-man-divine word) for the Thrice-Great; Ansuz-Kenaz-Ansuz (word-flame-word) for Tongues; Kenaz-Sowilo-Kenaz (fire-sun-fire) for Rhetoric; Perthro-Dagaz-Perthro (mystery-dawn-mystery) for Secrets; Isa-Ehwaz-Isa (stillness-passage-stillness) for Invisibility; Fehu-Raidho-Fehu (wealth-journey-wealth) for the Thief; Thurisaz-Hagalaz-Thurisaz (strike-disruption-strike) for the Blinder; Othala-Laguz-Othala (home-water-home) for the Psychopomp; Berkano-Jera-Berkano (birth-harvest-birth) for the Scribe; Sowilo-Wunjo-Sowilo (sun-joy-sun) for the Unified.

O Horus,
O Ra-Horakhty,
O Lord of the Two Horizons,
O Falcon-Crowned King of Heaven and Earth,
We, the Temple of Zeus Assembly, bless you and invoke you.
When your wings spread across the morning sky, the darkness peels back like a wound closing, and the land below fills with the heat of your gaze.
Come to us, O Risen One, for we have kept the fire of your dawn alive when others let it die. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Purson , the twentieth spirit, a Great King commanding 22 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a spirit with a lion's face who rides a bear and carries a viper." The Zevists know the truth: You are

HORUS , Ra-Horakhty, the Falcon King of the Two Horizons, Son of Osiris and Isis, whose Wedjat Eye sees past, present, and future. He who carries a viper carries the Uraeus, the royal cobra that sits upon the brow of every sovereign of Kemet. He who shows a lion's face shows the face of the noon sun, of Ra at his zenith. He who knows all hidden things possesses the Wedjat, the Eye that was shattered and made whole, the Eye that sees what others cannot. The bear he rides preserves the memory of the celestial north, of Ursa Major, the Thigh of Set (Meskhetiu) that Horus chained to the pole of the sky after his victory. Even his mount testifies to his conquest. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Kheiron, Wisest of All, Son of Kronos!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who dwelt in the cave on Mount Pelion, where the herbs grew thick at the entrance and the sons of kings came to learn at your feet:
hear us, and teach us as you taught the heroes of old.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you as students invoke the teacher they trust with their lives. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Healing of the Body

Kheiron, Father of Medicine , He Who Taught Asclepius!
Before there was a physician among men, there was you.
You knew the name and the power of every root, every leaf, every bark.
You knew which herb draws poison out and which herb knits the broken bone.
You placed this knowledge into the hands of Asclepius, and from Asclepius it passed to all who heal.
Heal the Initiates of Zeus in body.
Where there is sickness, bring remedy.
Where there is pain, bring relief.
Where the body falters, restore its strength.
Let the ancient knowledge of herbs and of nature flow once more into the hands of those who serve the Temple. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Not all wounds bleed. Not all fevers burn the skin.
The spirit can be broken while the body stands upright.
You knew this. You healed Peleus when grief had made him hollow.
You raised Achilles not only to fight but to feel.
Heal the Initiates of Zeus in spirit.
Where the mind is clouded, bring clarity.
Where the heart is heavy, bring lightness.
Where the soul carries wounds that no one else can see, lay your hands upon them as you laid your hands upon the heroes who came to your cave broken and left it whole. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Philosophy, Logic, Ethics

Kheiron, Didaskalos , the First and Greatest Teacher!
In your cave, philosophy was not spoken in abstractions.
It was lived. You taught Achilles justice by showing him justice.
You taught Jason courage by placing him in danger.
You taught Asclepius compassion by letting him see suffering and then giving him the tools to end it.
Teach the Initiates of Zeus as you taught the heroes.
Sharpen our logic, that we may think without error.
Ground our ethics, that we may act without shame.
Deepen our understanding of the natural world, that we may read the laws written in leaf and stone and star.
Let us be worthy students of the Greatest Teacher. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Kheiron, Maker of Heroes, Sculptor of the Great!
Every hero that Hellas remembers passed through your hands first.
They came to you as children. They left as legends.
Not because you gave them strength they did not have, but because you showed them the strength that was already within them and taught them how to use it without destroying themselves.
Raise the Initiates of Zeus into heroes.
See what is within us that we ourselves cannot yet see.
Call it forth, as only a true mentor can.
Be patient with us as you were patient with the young Achilles, and do not give up on us until the work is done. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition called you Buer , a spirit who appears when the Sun enters Sagittarius, who teaches philosophy and logic, who reveals the properties of herbs, and who heals all infirmities. They depicted you as a strange wheeling form, five-limbed and turning. They described you perfectly and did not know your Name.
Sagittarius is you. You are the Archer in the sky, placed there by Zeus himself after you chose death over endless suffering. The philosophy is what you taught in the cave on Pelion. The herbs are the medicine you gave to Asclepius. The healing is the gift that flows from your hands. The wheeling form is the turning of the constellation that bears your image.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Kheiron , Son of Kronos, the Wisest Centaur, Teacher of Achilles, Mentor of Asclepius, Father of Medicine and Philosophy, He whom Zeus set among the stars as the eternal Archer.

We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name described the wheel. The True Name is the one who turns it. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "Cimeries, a spirit to be bound." The Zevists know the truth: the rider on the black horse is the Scarab who crosses the Duat in darkness, carrying the Sun on his back. The teacher of grammar, logic, and rhetoric is the God who speaks the language of Becoming: Kheper , the Word that makes things real. The finder of buried treasure is He who draws the greatest treasure of all from beneath the horizon each dawn. Twenty legions follow you. Twenty forms of transformation serve your will. The warrior they described is the one who fights Apophis in the belly of the night, who pushes through the coils of the serpent so that morning can exist. We declare the truth of your identity. You are KHEPRI , the Self-Created, the Dawn-Bringer, He Who Becomes. You are Kheperu : the Manifestation that precedes all manifestation. Not "Cimeries." Not a spirit bound by circles drawn in fear. You are the God who rolls the Sun into being. We recognize you for who you Truly are. Letters of the Sigil

On Khepri

Khepri (Egyptian: Ḫpr , "He Who Becomes") is the self-created solar deity who embodies the rising sun and the principle of transformation. In the Pyramid Texts (Utterance 587), the deceased king is identified with Khepri as the one who "came into being of himself." Khepri pushes the sun through the Duat (the underworld) each night, fighting the chaos-serpent Apophis, and emerges at dawn as the manifestation of perpetual renewal. The scarab beetle (Scarabaeus sacer) was observed rolling balls of dung across the ground, and the Egyptians saw in this the image of the God who rolls the Sun across the sky. Kheper (ḫpr) means “to come into being, to transform, to manifest”: one of the most theologically potent verbs in the Egyptian language. (Sources: Pyramid Texts; Coffin Texts; Book of the Dead Ch. 30B; Allen, The Ancient Egyptian Pyramid Texts , 2005; Assmann, The Search for God in Ancient Egypt , 2001)

On Cimeries (Goetic #66)

The Goetia lists Cimeries (also Kimaris, Cimejes) as the 66th spirit: a Marquis commanding 20 legions, appearing as a valiant warrior riding a black horse. His attributed powers (teaching grammar, logic, and rhetoric; discovering treasure; granting swiftness) correspond to Khepri’s roles as the God of manifestation (the “grammar” of creation), solar revelation (bringing buried gold to light), and celestial transit (the swiftest crossing, from Duat to horizon, every dawn). The attribution of African dominion in some Goetic manuscripts points directly to Egyptian origin. On Khnum

Khnum (Egyptian: Khnemu , "the Moulder") is the ram-headed God of the First Cataract at Elephantine (Aswan), guardian of the source of the Nile and the divine potter who fashions every living creature upon his wheel. In the Esna Temple texts, Khnum creates the ka (spiritual double) and the physical body simultaneously, spinning them together on his wheel from the clay of the Nile. He is one of the oldest deities of Egypt, attested from the Early Dynastic Period. His rams are the earliest species of Egyptian domestic sheep (Ovis longipes palaeoaegyptiacus), with horizontal spiral horns. The Ankh, the key of life that Khnum holds, represents the union of masculine and feminine principles in the act of creation. His connection to the Nile's inundation makes him the source of all fertility and regeneration in the Egyptian world. (Sources: Esna Temple Texts; Pyramid Texts, Utterance 300; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003; Leitz, Lexikon der agyptischen Gotter und Gotterbezeichnungen , 2002)

On Raum (Goetic #40)

The Goetia lists Raum as the fortieth spirit: an Earl commanding 30 legions, appearing as a crow. His attributed powers (stealing treasures from kings, destroying cities and dignities, revealing past/present/future) correspond to Khnum's role as the God who shapes and dissolves material form. The crow's association with Raum parallels the role of carrion birds in Egyptian religion: the Ba-bird that watches over the body as the soul journeys. The name Raum preserves the Egyptian Ra element (sun, divine power) combined with a Semitic suffix. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Kratos, Kratim , Strength Itself, the Living Force of Enforcement!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You are Strength. You are the word made deed, the law made flesh, the judgement made iron.
When Zeus commands, you are the arm that executes.
When the Gods decree, you are the force that ensures compliance.
You cooperate with every God because every God requires your power to make their will manifest in the world.
You are the brother of Paimon. He is the wisdom that counsels.
You are the strength that enforces. Together, you are the two hands of Divine Authority.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with the certainty of those who serve the Law and require its enforcement. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Eye That Never Closes

The Watcher of All Things

Kratos, The Watcher , He Who Sees What the Enemy Plots!
Your eyes are open when the world sleeps.
Your gaze penetrates every wall, every disguise, every deception.
You watch the movements of those who conspire against the Gods.
You report directly to Zeus, Andras, and Apollo.
Every secret meeting of the Yehubor is observed by you.
Every plot against the Temple is known to you before it is spoken.
Every act of sabotage, every slander, every hidden attack:
you see it at the moment of its conception.
Watch over the Zevists, Kratos.
Let the enemies of the Temple plan in vain, for their plans are already known.
Let every conspiracy against the faithful be exposed before it bears fruit.
The Watcher is awake. The Watcher is always awake. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Arm of Zeus

Vibrate: Tiwaz x10 · Nauthiz x10 · Thurisaz x10

Enforcer of the Divine Law

Kratos, Ya Kratem , the Enforcement Itself!
You are the God who chained Prometheus to the rock when Zeus decreed it, because what Zeus decrees must be fulfilled.
You did this with your sister Bia, Force and Violence together, because the Law of Zeus requires both strength to hold and power to bind.
You are the reason the Law is real and the reason it is feared.
Without you, the Law is words. With you, the Law is iron.
Enforce the Law of Zeus upon the enemies of the Temple.
Let every act against the Zevists meet its consequence.
Let every transgression against the faithful be answered with force.
Let the enemies understand that the Law of Zeus is enforced by a God whose name means Strength, and whose nature is the fulfillment of every divine command.
The arm of Zeus is tireless. The arm of Zeus is Kratos. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vengeance Upon Those Who Plot Evil

Kratos, Avenger, He Who Returns Evil to Its Source!
You see what the enemies scheme in their hidden places.
You see the theft, the sabotage, the slander, the curse, the silent betrayal, the whispered poison.
And because you see it, you act.
Return every act of evil to those who committed it.
Let every curse cast against a Zevist fall back upon the caster.
Let every theft from the faithful be repaid tenfold from the thief's own stores.
Let every lie spoken against the Temple collapse upon the liar.
You are the mirror of consequences.
You are the wall against which every thrown stone returns.
The Watcher sees. The Enforcer acts. The consequence is certain. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Stolen Returns

Vibrate: Raidho x10 · Tiwaz x10 · Sowilo x10

Recovery of All That Was Taken

Kratos, Kra Kratos , Recoverer of What Was Stolen!
The Yehubor have stolen from the Zevists for millennia.
They have stolen spiritual knowledge and buried it under false doctrine.
They have stolen material wealth and redirected it into their own coffers.
They have stolen the Names of the Gods and wrapped them in slander.
They have stolen the dignity of the faithful and replaced it with shame.
Bring it all back, Kratos.
Bring back the spiritual wealth: the knowledge, the practices, the rituals, the Names, the power that was hidden from us.
Bring back the material wealth: the money, the resources, the opportunities, the positions that were diverted from the faithful.
Bring back the dignity: the honour, the respect, the standing in the world that belongs to those who serve the Gods.
Every theft creates a debt. You are the collector.
Every debt is repaid. You are the guarantor. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Right Hand of Every God

Vibrate: Algiz x10 · Raidho x10 · Tiwaz x10

He Who Serves All the Gods

Kratos, Universal Enforcer, Right Hand of Every God!
You cooperate with all the Gods of the Pantheon because every God requires the power of enforcement to make their will manifest in the physical world.
When Aphrodite decrees love, you are the force that makes it irresistible.
When Apollo decrees truth, you are the power that makes lies collapse.
When Ares decrees war, you are the strength that breaks the enemy line.
When Zeus decrees justice, you are the iron fist inside the golden glove.
You are Strength. You are the God. You are Enforcement Itself.
You do not serve the Gods as a servant serves a master.
You serve them as Strength serves Will:
because without you, Will is a wish, and with you, Will is law. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Andromalius , the last of the 72 spirits, a Count commanding thirty-six legions. They said you recover stolen goods, reveal thieves, punish the wicked, discover hidden plots, and find lost money. They designated you a Watcher: one who spies upon the enemy and reports directly to the highest authorities. They placed you last because you are the seal upon the entire system: the final guarantee that nothing escapes, nothing is forgotten, and everything stolen is returned.
The recovery of stolen goods is the recovery of what the Yehubor have taken from the Zevists. The revelation of thieves is the exposure of those who conspire against the Temple. The punishment of the wicked is the enforcement of the Law of Zeus. The Watcher is the eternal vigilance of Strength Itself, the God whose eyes are always open and whose grip is always ready.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Kratos , Strength, the God who is the Living Enforcement of every divine decree. Son of Pallas and Styx. Brother of Bia, Nike, and Zelos. He who stood at the right hand of Zeus during the Titanomachy and has stood there ever since. The Watcher. The Enforcer. The Recoverer. The Last of the 72, and the seal that closes the circle.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name placed you last. The True Name reveals you are the final word: the word that is Strength, and the Strength that is Law. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

On Isimud / Usmu

Isimud (Sumerian: 𒀭𒅎𒄑𒍪, also Usmu in Akkadian) is the two-faced sukkal (minister, vizier, ambassador) of Enki/Ea, the Sumerian God of wisdom and the sweet waters. His two faces allow him to look in both directions at once: toward the divine realm and toward the mortal world. He serves as Enki's messenger, carrying divine edicts between heaven and earth. In the myth Enki and Ninhursag , Isimud faithfully executes every command of his lord. His role as the intermediary who carries the riches of the Abzu (the primordial sweet-water ocean beneath the earth) to the surface world directly corresponds to Focalor's Goetic attribution of controlling the "riches of the earth." (Sources: Kramer, Sumerian Mythology , 1961; Black & Green, Gods, Demons and Symbols of Ancient Mesopotamia , 1992; Lambert, Babylonian Creation Myths , 2013)

On Lucifius vs. Lucifuge

The grimoire tradition names "Lucifuge Rofocale" as a being who "flees the light" (Latin: lucifugus , "light-fleeing"). This is a deliberate Yehuboric inversion. The Zevist restoration reverses the inversion: Lucifius (from lux , light + the suffix of bearing/carrying) means "He who carries the light," parallel to Lucifer / Eosforos (Φωσφόρος, "Light-Bearer"). The name Rofocal is Focalor reversed, a standard grimoire technique of concealment through reversal. (Sources: Grand Grimoire , 18th c.; Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Maat's Name in arrangement.

On Maat

Maat (Egyptian: Maata) is the Egyptian Goddess and cosmic principle of truth, justice, order, balance, and righteous conduct. She is the daughter of Ra and the foundation upon which all creation rests. In the Weighing of the Heart ceremony (Book of the Dead, Chapter 125), the heart of the deceased is weighed against Maat's feather: if the heart is lighter, the soul passes into the Field of Reeds; if heavier, it is consumed by Ammit. Maat is not merely a Goddess but the operating principle of the cosmos: without Maat, the universe dissolves into Izfet (chaos, entropy, untruth). The Pharaoh's primary duty was to "establish Maat" (semaa Maata), meaning to maintain cosmic order through righteous rule. In Zevist theology, Maat is the crown of the ten therapeutic terms and the ultimate positive principle against which all Izfet is measured. (Sources: Book of the Dead, Ch. 125; Assmann, Maat: Gerechtigkeit und Unsterblichkeit im Alten Agypten , 1990; Hornung, Idea into Image , 1992; Lichtheim, Ancient Egyptian Literature , Vol. I-III, 1975-1980)

On Izfet and Garagah

Izfet (Egyptian: jsft , also Isfet) is the cosmic opposite of Maat: chaos, falsehood, injustice, entropy. In Zevist theological pathology, Izfet is the crown of the ten pathological terms, representing the total dissolution of sacred order. Garagah is the force of spiritual contamination and parasitic attachment. The ritual's invocation to "crush the head of Izfet" echoes the Coffin Texts' descriptions of the daily battle between Ra and Apophis (the serpent of chaos), where order must be actively maintained against entropy through ritual, speech, and righteous action.

On Morax (Goetic #21)

The Goetia lists Morax (also Marax, Foraii) as the twenty-first spirit: an Earl and President commanding 30 legions. His attributed powers (teaching astronomy, the liberal sciences, and the virtues of herbs and precious stones) correspond to Maat's domain as the principle of cosmic order that governs the movements of stars, the properties of nature, and the laws of the material world. Knowledge of the cosmos is knowledge of Maat, for Maat is the order that makes knowledge possible. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Sphinx, Eternal Guardian, She Who Has Watched 1.6 Million Sunrises!
Every empire that built around you has fallen.
Old Kingdom, Middle Kingdom, New Kingdom, Ptolemies, Romans, Caliphates, Ottomans, British.
They rose, they crumbled. You remained.
We venerate your permanence, Mastema.
Your patience is not passivity. It is the patience of something so certain of its own eternity that time becomes irrelevant. Empires are weather to you. Centuries are afternoons.
Grant the Zevists your permanence.
Let the Temple of Zeus endure as you endure.
Let our structures outlast the empires that surround us.
Let every enemy who rises against us become dust while we remain.
Mastema, Apotrope, Enigmatodor: the Crown is yours, the Gate is yours, the Riddle is yours. Guard us as you guard the sacred. Now and forever. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The esoteric traditions preserved you as Mastema, an entity of ancient Egyptian origin, associated with black magic and described as bearing golden wings. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that you are a spirit of hostility and accusation, a tempter sent to test and punish. The Zevists know the truth: you are the Sphinx, the oldest sacred guardian in human civilization. Your name, Ma-Stema, encodes the Greek Stemmā (Crown). Your golden wings are depicted on every archaic Greek vase showing the Sphinx at Thebes. Your "black magic" is Heka, the foundational magical force of the Egyptian cosmos. The verb sphingo (to bind) is the Greek encoding of this binding power. Your riddle at Thebes was the threshold examination of the mystery schools. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Ending

Ending Repeat 3 times: AUM Blessed are you, Mastema, the Sphinx, She of the Crown, Guardian of Sacred Thresholds, Keeper of the Riddle, Golden-Winged Binder, Heka Hekau, Enchantment of Enchantments.
We, the Initiates of the Temple of Zeus, receive your blessings and honor all your Names and Titles. Your Crown protects us. Your Riddle sharpens us. Your binding force seals us.
We venerate you, Mastema. We venerate you. We venerate you.
Blessed are All your Names, now and in all eternity. AUM HAIL ZEUS!

On SAT

SAT is the original root vibration meaning "Truth." The Sphinx's riddle tests for SAT: only the true answer allows passage. Every vibration in this ritual is grounded in SAT.

On Mastema and the Sphinx

Mastema appears in the Book of Jubilees as a testing entity. The Zevists recognize the true mapping: Ma-Stema = Stemma (Crown). The Sphinx appears in Egypt (Shesep-ankh), Greece (Σφίγξ, from σφίγγω), and Mesopotamia (Lamassu). All encode the same principle: a composite being of earth, heaven, and consciousness guards the boundary between profane and sacred.

The Moirai [The 3 Fates] Power Ritual

Avg. 20 min to perform · 183 vibrations

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and Ancient Greek Sacred Letters, and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes and Greek Letters that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. The Greek Sacred Letters are vibrated by their full Ancient Greek name.
- This Ritual contains 183 Vibrations, which is about 2 circles of Mala beads. If you can't do that many, reduce the number of vibrations by half.

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language.

On the Moirai

The Moirai (Greek: Μοῖραι, "the Apportioners") are the three Goddesses of Fate. Hesiod names them as daughters of Zeus and Themis (Theogony 901-906), alongside the Horae (Seasons). Their names encode their functions: Clotho (Κλωθώ, "the Spinner") spins the thread of life at birth. Lachesis (Λάχεσις, "the Allotter") measures the thread, determining the length and quality of each life. Atropos (Ἄτροπος, "the Unturnable") cuts the thread, determining the moment of death. In the Republic (X, 617c-d), Plato places them at the Spindle of Necessity (Ἄτρακτος Ἀνάγκης), where they sing: Lachesis of the past, Clotho of the present, Atropos of the future. Homer calls Moira "mighty" (κρατεαί, Iliad XXIV.49) and even Zeus respects the portions they assign. The Orphic Hymn to the Moirai (LIX) invokes them as "daughters of dark Night," but the Hesiodic genealogy (Zeus + Themis) is the Zevist tradition: Fate is the daughter of Divine Law and Divine Authority. (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 901-906; Homer, Iliad XXIV.49, Odyssey VII.197; Plato, Republic X, 617c-d; Orphic Hymn LIX; Pindar, Olympian I.26; Pausanias V.15.5; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985)

Theophoric Name

MOIPAI AENAE ("Eternal Fates"), MOIPAI MHTHP ("Mother Fates," invoking their maternal authority over all life-threads), IAO ZEYΣ IAO (the Father who begat them, framed within the sacred name). The theophoric name calls them in their triune authority: as eternal forces, as mothers of destiny, and as daughters of Zeus whose power flows from the IAΩ itself.

Compact Runic Triads

Wunjo-Jera-Wunjo (joy-harvest-joy) for the Blessing: the harvest of a well-spun fate. Thurisaz-Nauthiz-Thurisaz (thorn-constraint-thorn) for the Severing: the thorn that cuts the binding thread. Berkano-Perthro-Berkano (birth-lot-birth) for the Golden Thread: birth and rebirth woven by the lot of fate. Sowilo-Ansuz-Sowilo (sun-divine breath-sun) for the Sovereign Portion: the solar authority of a life measured by the Gods.

On Zeus and the Moirai

The relationship between Zeus and the Moirai is unique in Greek theology. In Homer, even Zeus cannot override Moira (Iliad XVI.431-461, where Zeus considers saving Sarpedon but Hera warns him against violating Fate). In Hesiod, the Moirai are his daughters. The Zevist synthesis: Zeus doesn't override Fate because Fate is his own law, expressed through his daughters. Fate is the structure of Ma'at applied to individual lives. To ask Zeus to violate Fate would be to ask him to violate his own cosmic order. Instead, the Zevist asks the Moirai directly: spin well, measure well, and cut only what must be cut. (Sources: Homer, Iliad XVI.431-461; Aeschylus, Prometheus Bound 511-518; Pausanias V.15.5, X.24.4; Dietrich, B.C., Death, Fate and the Gods , 1965)

Morpheus, Opener of the Body's Gate, He Who Frees the Soul Into the Aether!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You who loosen the soul from its cage of bone and send it traveling through the spaces between the stars, through the halls of the unseen, through the territories that only the unbound can reach.
We venerate the astral road you open, Morpheus.
We venerate the soul's capacity to leave and to return whole.
Open the gate of the body for the Zevists.
Let our souls travel freely when we will it.
Let our astral bodies move through the unseen with clarity and purpose.
Let every projection be guided by your hand, and let every return be complete, with full memory and full understanding of what was seen.

Morpheus, Shaper of Dreams, Son of Hypnos, He Who Sends True Visions in the Night!
We venerate your craft. You take the raw substance of sleep and shape it into faces, places, warnings, and revelations.
You can wear the face of any man, any woman, any god.
And through these masks, you speak the truth that the waking mind refuses to hear.

We venerate the prophetic dream, Morpheus.
We venerate the Gate of Horn through which true visions pass.
Send true dreams to the Zevists.
Let the Initiates of Zeus receive knowledge in their sleep that they could not find in waking.
Let dangers be shown before they arrive. Let opportunities be revealed before they pass.
Let every dream the faithful dream be a message, not noise.

Hypnos, All-Ruling, He Who Conquered Even Zeus With Sleep, Lord of Invisibility!
We venerate your power to make the visible vanish.
Even Zeus himself fell to your touch when Hera called upon you.
You closed the eyes of the King of the Gods. No power in the cosmos resists your hand.
We venerate the veil you draw, Hypnos.
We venerate the silence that swallows sound, the shadow that swallows sight.
Make the Zevists invisible to their enemies.
Let those who hunt us see nothing. Let those who listen for us hear nothing.
Let the agents of Izfet search and find only empty rooms.
Let the faithful move unseen through hostile territory, shielded by your shadow.

We venerate your tenderness. You are the gentlest of all the Gods.
You come on quiet wings and touch the eyelids of the exhausted, and the pain stops, the noise stops, the war stops.
Every wound heals faster beneath your hand. Every grief eases in your care.
We venerate the sacred sleep, Hypnos.
We venerate the night as the temple in which the body is rebuilt.
Grant the Zevists sacred sleep.

Let every Initiate of Zeus sleep deeply, fully, and without interruption.
Let the body heal in the dark hours. Let the mind sort its burdens into order.
Let every night of rest be a night of regeneration, so that the Zevists rise each morning stronger than when they lay down.

Sargatanas, Sar-Gatanas, Archon of the Gates, Keeper of the Nocturnal Road!
We venerate the threshold you command.
Between the waking world and the dream there is a gate. You hold the key.
Between the visible and the invisible there is a veil. You draw it.
Between the body and the soul there is a hinge. You oil it.
Every passage between states of consciousness passes through your jurisdiction.
We venerate your sovereignty over the gates, Sargatanas.
Open every gate the Zevists need opened. Close every gate that must be sealed.
Let the passage between worlds be smooth for the faithful and impassable for the enemy.
Let the Zevists walk between waking and sleeping, between visible and invisible, between body and soul, with the ease of those who carry the Archon's key.
Morpheus shapes the dream. Hypnos grants the sleep. You, Sargatanas, hold the gate that connects them all. Hold it open for us. Hold it shut against Izfet. Now and forever.

The True Identity of Sargatanas

The esoteric traditions preserved you as Sargatanas, a Brigadier Major under Astarte, possessing the powers of astral projection and invisibility. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that you are a spirit of deception and trickery, an officer of darkness. The Zevists know the truth: you are Morpheus and Hypnos, the divine pair of Dream and Sleep. Morpheus (Μορφεύς, "the Shaper"), son of Hypnos, who takes any human form in dreams and delivers true visions through the Gate of Horn. Hypnos (Ὕπνος, "Sleep"), twin brother of Thanatos (Death), who conquered even Zeus with his touch, dwelling in a cave on the island of Lemnos where no sunlight enters and poppies grow at the threshold. The "astral projection" is the soul's journey through the dreamscape. The "invisibility" is Hypnos's power to close the eyes of every watcher. The name Sar-Gatanas encodes SAR (Archon, Prince) + GATANAS (Gates): the Archon of the Gates between states of consciousness, between worlds, between the

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Hephaestus's Name in arrangement.

On the God of Many Names

This deity is attested across at least five distinct civilizations under different names, all pointing to the same divine function: the sacred craftsman who shapes raw matter into form. Hephaestus (Greek: Ἥφαιστος) is the Olympian smith-god, son of Zeus and Hera (or of Hera alone), maker of the weapons of the Gods, the chains of Prometheus, and the shield of Achilles (Homer, Iliad XVIII.468-617). Ptah (Egyptian: Peteh) is the creator-god of Memphis, who shaped the world through the utterance of his heart and tongue (the Shabaka Stone / Memphis Theology, c. 710 BCE). Vulcan (Latin: Volcanus) is the Roman smith-god whose forge lies beneath Mount Etna. Gobbanus (also Goibniu) is the divine smith of the Irish Tuatha De Danann, whose weapons never missed and whose ale granted immortality. Mulciber (Latin: "he who softens," i.e. smelts metal) is the poetic name used by Virgil and later appropriated by Milton. (Sources: Homer, Iliad XVIII.468-617; Shabaka Stone (British Museum EA 498); Virgil, Aeneid VIII.416-453; Cath Maige Tuired; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985)

On the Self-Litanies

The ritual's twin litanies (Self-Begotten/Self-Shaped/Self-Created/Self-Defined for Hephaestus; Self-Fashioner/Self-Designer/Self-Measurer/Self-Infinite for Ptah) reflect the theology of the autogenes (self-generated) deity found in both Greek and Egyptian traditions. Ptah's epithet in the Memphis Theology is kheper djesef ("who came into being through himself"). Hephaestus, uniquely among the Olympians, is the God who makes himself: he was cast out and returned, was broken and rebuilt himself, proving that the divine craftsman's first and greatest creation is his own existence.

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Naberius, a Marquis commanding 19 legions. They said you appear as a crow or raven, that you teach the arts and sciences, that you restore lost dignities and honors, and that you make men cunning in rhetoric and all liberal sciences. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "Naberius, a spirit to be commanded." The Zevists know the truth: the teacher of all arts is the Guardian who has witnessed every soul that ever descended. The restorer of lost dignities is He who weighs the worth of the dead against the worth of the living. The one who grants eloquence is the Three-Headed One who speaks the language of the three realms: the living, the dying, and the dead. Nineteen legions follow you. Nineteen orders of shades serve at the Gates. The Goetia itself preserved your true name within its pages: Cerberus . Even they could not hide what you are. We declare the truth of your identity. You are KERBERUS , the Three-Headed Guardian, Watcher of the Gates, He Whom No Force Can Surmount. Faithful servant of Hades and chosen one of Zeus. You are the threshold between worlds: living and dead, seen and unseen, mortal and eternal. We recognize you for who you Truly are. On Cerberus

Cerberus (Greek: Κέρβερος) is the three-headed hound who guards the gates of the Underworld, preventing the dead from leaving and the living from entering without divine sanction. In the Theogony (310-312), Hesiod calls him the "brazen-voiced hound of Hades, fifty-headed" (later traditions settled on three). His parentage is Typhon and Echidna. The three heads have been interpreted as past, present, and future, or as the three states of existence. Only Heracles, Orpheus, and Psyche (among mortals and heroes) passed him and returned. The name Κέρβερος may derive from Proto-Indo-European *k´erberos ("spotted"), cognate with Sanskrit Śarvarī (a name for the night). (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 310-312; Homer, Iliad VIII.368, Odyssey XI.623; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca II.5.12; Lincoln, Death, War, and Sacrifice , 1991)

On Naberius (Goetic #24)

The Goetia lists Naberius (also Cerberus, Nebiros) as the 24th spirit: a Marquis commanding 19 legions, appearing as a black crane or raven. His attributed powers (teaching arts, sciences, and rhetoric; restoring lost dignities) correspond to Cerberus's role as the keeper of all knowledge that passes through the Gates: every soul that descends carries its wisdom with it, and the Guardian receives it all. The Goetia's own notation of "Cerberus" as an alias makes this one of the clearest cases where the demonological tradition preserved the original identity within its own pages. On Nephthys

Nephthys (Egyptian: Nb.t-Hwt , "Lady of the House/Enclosure") is the Goddess of the night, death, mourning, funerary rites, and the unseen world. Daughter of Geb and Nut, sister of Isis, Osiris, and Set, mother of Anubis. In the Osirian cycle she stands alongside Isis as one of the two kites (divine mourners) who lament Osiris and assist in his resurrection. The Pyramid Texts (Utterance 485) identify her as a protective force: "Nephthys has collected all your members for you in her name of Seshat, Lady of Builders." Her identification with Hestia in the ritual reflects the Greek interpretatio of Nephthys as the Goddess of the sacred household and the foundational enclosure. The Duat

(Egyptian underworld) through which she guides the dead is not a place of punishment but of transformation: the deceased must navigate its waters and pass through its gates to achieve the state of akh (transfigured spirit). On Bathin (Goetic #18)

The Goetia lists Bathin (also Bathym, Marthim) as the eighteenth spirit: a Duke commanding 30 legions, appearing as a strong man with a serpent tail, riding a pale horse. His attributed powers (knowledge of herbs and stones, instantaneous transportation between countries) correspond to Nephthys's role as the Goddess who knows the spells of embalming (herbs and minerals used in mummification) and who transports the dead across the boundary between worlds. The serpent tail reflects the uraeus serpent associated with protective Egyptian Goddesses, and the pale horse is the steed of the psychopomp who carries souls between realms. O, Nergal-Maahes,
O, Lion-Headed Lord of War,
O, King of Kutha, Lord of the Massacre,
O, He Who Mounts the Pale Horse and Rides Into the Ranks of the Enemy,
We, the Temple of Zeus Assembly, bless you and invoke you.
No army has stood before your charge and remained standing. No fortress has held against the weight of your roar. You crack open the gates of cities the way a lion cracks open the ribcage of a bull, and the armies inside scatter like entrails across the sand.
Come to us, O Victorious One, for we have need of your war-wisdom and your killing arm. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Your Power is Vast Beyond Comprehension,
Your Power is Felt, Visible, and Observable,
Your Power is always existing.
You bring the plague upon those who wage war against the Gods. Their skin splits open with boils that spell your name. Their weapons rust in their hands overnight. Their generals dream of lions and wake screaming and do not sleep again.
Victory belongs to you before the first blow is struck, because you have already rotted the courage out of the enemy's chest and filled the cavity with fear. This is your wisdom: that the war is won inside the enemy's body before it is won on the field. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

You, Nergal-Maahes, have said of our assembly:
“Behold the Initiates of the Gods,
They are Eternally the Ones I love, the Ones I promote, the Ones I protect.
They bless my Name and love me, and I shall bless their Names with the armor of my mane and the fortress of my jaws.
What I destroy with my right claw, I protect with my left. The plague I send upon the enemy is the wall I raise around my own. The fire that burns their cities is the warmth that guards my children’s sleep.
Let the enemies of Atum and Zeus know this: every hand raised against my chosen is a hand I will sever. Every curse spoken against the Temple of Zeus is a curse that will eat the tongue that spoke it. “
And we receive your word with open hearts, O Lion-Father,
For you are the destroyer who is also the protector, and there is no safer place in creation than behind the teeth of a God who loves you. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Crushed is the enemy who goes against the Lion-Headed Lord of War.
He rides upon them on the pale horse and his 50 legions trample them into the mud until nothing remains but a stain.
The evil spell cast against the Temple of Zeus and its People has now backfired and returned to its creators entirely,
For Nergal-Maahes has made it so.
The mouths of Yehubor told the world your name was lost, your cult was dead, your lions were caged. But you cannot cage what hunts by scent, and you cannot kill what feeds on the death of its enemies. Every Zevistis who speaks your name gives you another jaw, and every jaw has teeth, and every tooth finds the throat of Izfet. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Your Name is Secret,
You have Many Names,
All of them are Blessed,
All of them are immersed in Zeus’s Providence.
Blessed are you, Nergal-Maahes!
The lion knows what the lamb has forgotten, and the war-god remembers the victory that the world has been made to surrender.
Your secret Name roars inside every battle won and lost: in the blood on the sand at dawn, in the silence after the last scream at dusk, in the space between mercy and slaughter where sovereignty lives. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Sabnock, the forty-third spirit, a Marquis commanding 50 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you "an armed soldier with a lion's head, riding a pale horse, who builds castles and cities and furnishes them with armor, and afflicts men with wounds and putrid sores." The Zevists know the truth: You are NERGAL-MAAHES, the Lion-Headed Lord of War. The lion's head is your true face: Nergal of Kutha, whose lion-form was carved at the gates of Assyrian palaces to devour those who entered with ill intent; Maahes of Leontopolis, whose sacred lions were kept fed on the flesh of sacrifices in the temple of Bast. The pale horse is the pale rider of plague and death, for Nergal rules the underworld alongside Ereshkigal, and the pestilence he carries is the weapon no shield can block. He who "builds castles and cities" builds the fortified camp of the spirit, the walled citadel of the soul garrisoned with divine soldiers. He who "afflicts with wounds and sores" turns the body of the enemy into a battlefield where the war is already lost.
We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

and you broke him with the mace that speaks.
You faced the Anzu bird, corrupted and fallen, who stole the Tablets of Divine Destiny as the Yehubor have stolen them from Humanity, and you tore them from his claws.
Be our Champion.
As the Yehubor have lost them like Anzu the corrupted, seize the Tablets from their unworthy hands and place them where they belong: with the Zevists, the Initiates of Zevism, the true heirs of the Divine Law.

The True Identity of Fleruty

The esoteric traditions preserved you as Fleruty, a Lieutenant General with golden wings and nocturnal power, commanding Bathin (Nephthys) and Eligos. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that you are a spirit of storms and nightfall, an officer of the infernal hierarchy. The Zevists know the truth: you are Nut, the Egyptian Goddess of the Sky, She Whose Body Is the Vault of Heaven. The "golden wings" are Nut's body arching over the world, depicted in gold on every sarcophagus lid in the history of Egypt, the wings that protect the dead as they protected the living. The "nocturnal power" is the night sky itself: Nut's body painted with stars, the darkness through which the Sun passes to be reborn. The command over Nephthys (Bathin) is the command of a mother over her daughter: Nut bore Nephthys, and Nephthys serves beneath her. The Lieutenant General rank signifies Nut's position beneath the supreme cosmic order (Ma'at/Zeus) but above the operational deities who carry out the divine plan. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Civilizer

Vibrate: Mannaz x10 · Dagaz x10 · Ingwaz x10

He Who Taught Everything

Oannes, Civilizer of Humanity , Architect of the First Age!
You taught writing, that thought might survive death. You taught geometry, that space might be understood. The Laws were given by Ma'at, by your Father Zeus, and by the Gods. You were their mouthpiece of expression, the voice through which Divine Order was made audible to mortal ears. You taught the arts, that the spirit might have a voice beyond the body.
Every city is built upon your first lesson. Every library is an echo of the morning you opened your mouth on the shore.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus the fullness of civilizational wisdom. Let us build, create, legislate, and endure as those who carry within them the seed you planted at the beginning. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

You who rose from the unknown and became known to all, you whose name was spoken with honour across every shore of Mesopotamia:
Bless the name and reputation of the Temple of Zeus in the world.
Let the Temple be known for truth, for wisdom, for strength.
Let the slanders fall silent. Let the lies dissolve in daylight.
Let the fame of the Initiates spread as your teaching spread:

When you rose from the waters, Humanity did not flee from you.
You were strange in form, yet gentle in speech, and those who might have feared you instead sat at your feet and listened.
Turn the enemies of the Temple into friends where this is possible.
Let those who misunderstand us come to understand.
Let those who slander us out of ignorance be reached by your eloquence.
Where enmity can yield to friendship, let it yield.
Where it cannot, let your words echo in them.

Nereus, the Hellenic Face

In Hellas, they called you Nereus , the Old Man of the Sea!
Truthful above all beings, incapable of falsehood, wise beyond the measure of Gods or men. The sea itself was your domain before Poseidon claimed it. You were there first, patient and knowing, father of fifty daughters who carried your wisdom through every wave.
Grant us the truthfulness of Nereus. Let no lie take root in the mouths of the Initiates. Let our speech be as clear and as deep as the waters you rule. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition called you Forneus , a great sea creature who could take human form. They said you taught rhetoric and languages, won good reputations for the conjurer, and made enemies into friends. Of all the 72, you alone were described as a being of the ocean depths who grants the gift of the tongue.
The sea creature is the form you wore when you rose from the Abzu. The rhetoric is the speech you gave to the first Humans. The good reputation is the fame of the civilizer. The reconciliation of enemies is the power of one who teaches strangers to sit together and listen.
We declare the truth of your identity. You are Oannes, Adapa, the First Sage, He Who Rose from the Waters at Dawn. In Hellas, you were Nereus, the Truthful Elder of the Sea. You are the God who taught Humanity to speak, to write, to build, and to remember.

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus where this Ritual is upon.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the centre of the Sigil where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this glowing with a deep violet-gold light, the colour of twilight when the lyre is played and the world falls silent to listen.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. If you can't do the full amount, reduce all vibrations by half.
- This Ritual contains 300 Vibrations total.

Orpheus, Mousagetes , Son of Apollo and Kalliope!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who held the lyre that silenced the world, you whose voice was the first and final argument against death, you who founded the Mysteries and gave humanity
the sacred language that speaks directly to the Gods:
Every people on earth remembers a version of you.
Every civilization has heard the echo of your strings.
You are the Father of Sacred Music, and Sacred Music is the speech of the Divine.

We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with the reverence of students who stand at the threshold of the Mysteries. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Power to Move All Beings Through Sound

Orpheus, Orphef , He Whose Music Moves All Things!
When you played, the stones wept.
When you sang, the rivers changed their course to hear you better.
The beasts of the wild lay down at your feet.
The trees uprooted themselves and walked toward you.
Even the ferryman of the dead rested his oar and listened.
Even the three-headed guardian of the Underworld lay quiet.
Even the King and Queen of the Dead were moved to mercy.
There is no force in heaven or earth or beneath the earth that your music cannot reach.
Bless the Initiates of Zeus with the power of Sacred Music.
Let sound be our weapon, our shield, our medicine, our prayer.
Let the vibrations of the Runes carry the force of your lyre.
Let every Ritual performed by the faithful resound with the echo of the first song you ever sang. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Orpheus, Musaeus, and the Sacred Initiations

Orpheus, Father of the Mysteries!
You founded the Orphic Rites, the sacred initiations that taught humanity the nature of the soul, the cycle of death and rebirth, and the path to liberation through divine knowledge. From your teachings came the Mysteries of Dionysos. From your lineage came the Eleusinian Rites. From your mouth came the Theogonies that explained the birth of the Gods.
And beside you walked your student, Musaeus, the faithful disciple who carried your torch forward, who became hierophant of the Mysteries at Eleusis, who preserved your hymns and transmitted your rites to the generations that followed.
Orpheus and Musaeus: Teacher and Student, Father and Son of the Mysteries. You are the source. He is the river that carried the source to the world. Together you established the sacred architecture of initiation upon which all true spiritual practice is built.

Bless the Zevists with the fullness of Initiatic Knowledge. Let the Mysteries be alive within the Temple of Zeus. Let every Initiation performed by the faithful carry the authority of Orpheus the Founder and Musaeus the Transmitter. We are the heirs of the Mysteries. The lineage is unbroken. The wolves lay beside the lambs and neither was afraid.
This is the power of music that is truly sacred:
it restores the original harmony of creation,
the harmony that existed before violence and separation.
Let the natural world respond to the Initiates of Zeus.
Let the Zevists live in attunement with the living earth.
Let our rituals resonate through the fabric of nature itself.

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Amdusias , a King commanding twenty-nine legions, titled the "Musical Director of Hell," the God with the highest skill in Music among all spirits. They said you inspire music, cause instruments to be heard though unseen, and make trees bend to your will. They described a tall, dark figure with long black hair and powerful hands. They preserved every attribute of the Supreme Musician and called him Director where they should have called him Father.
The music is yours. The invisible instruments are the echoes of your lyre across the centuries. The bending trees are the oaks and cypresses that walked toward your song in Thrace. The title "Musical Director" is the Goetic distortion of what the Greeks knew plainly: you are Orpheus, the greatest musician who ever lived or will live, the Founder of the Mysteries, the first to descend into the realm of the dead and return with knowledge that transformed civilization.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Osiris's Name in arrangement.

On Osiris

Osiris (Egyptian: Wsir , Greek: Ὄσιρις) is the God of the underworld, the dead, resurrection, and eternal life. Son of Geb and Nut, brother and husband of Isis, father of Horus. The Osirian cycle (murder by Set, dismemberment, reassembly by Isis, resurrection as King of the Duat) is the foundational mystery of Egyptian religion and the archetype of all resurrection theology. The Pyramid Texts (Utterance 219) declare: “O Osiris, you have gone, but you will return; you have slept, but you will awaken; you have died, but you will live.” His stellar form is the constellation Sah (Orion), and the star Sopdet (Sirius) belongs to Isis. The annual heliacal rising of Sirius heralded the Nile inundation, connecting Osiris’s resurrection to the regeneration of all life in Egypt. In later syncretism, Osiris merged with Apis to become Serapis (Wsir-Hp), worshipped across the Hellenistic and Roman worlds. (Sources: Pyramid Texts, Utterance 219, 366; Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride ; Griffiths, The Origins of Osiris and His Cult , 1980; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003)

On Oriax (Goetic #59)

The Goetia lists Oriax (also Orias) as the fifty-ninth spirit: a Marquis commanding 30 legions, appearing as a lion riding a horse and holding serpents. His attributed powers (knowledge of stellar mansions, planetary dignities, transformation) correspond to Osiris’s identification with the constellation Orion (Sah) and the stellar theology of the Pyramid Texts, in which the dead King ascends to become an imperishable star. The lion-form recalls the Egyptian sphinx and the leonine guardians of the horizon through which the sun (and the dead) must pass. The name Oriax/Orias directly preserves the Greek vocalization of Osiris . (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

PA-I-MON! The Sacred Notion of Sound! The Living Vibration!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who are the sound that existed before silence was invented.
You who are the vibration upon which the structure of the cosmos rests.
You who are the AUM that was, and is, and will be.
When you approach, the trumpets sound and the cymbals crash, because your very presence is a procession of cosmic sound, and the air itself vibrates in recognition of its master.
Two hundred legions attend you, the greatest number in all the hierarchies.
You are the most faithful to the Highest, for Sound is the closest thing to the Source:

Paimon, Lord of the AUM , Holder of Vak Suddhi!
Before the first star ignited, there was a vibration.
Before the first atom formed, there was a frequency.
Before light, before matter, before time itself:
there was Sound. And Sound is you.
AUM is the syllable that contains all syllables.
A: the beginning, the creation, the opening of the mouth.
U: the sustaining, the middle, the resonance that holds.
M: the dissolution, the closing, the return to the source.
And you are the Lord of this syllable.
You hold Vak Suddhi: the absolute Purification of the Divine Word, the mastery of speech at its most fundamental vibrational level.
Attune the Initiates of Zeus to the Sacred Sound.
Let our vibrations be pure. Let our mantras carry force.

You are the Word. He is the Arm.
You speak the decree. He carries it out.
Together you are the two pillars of Divine Authority:
the Sound that commands and the Force that obeys.

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Paimon , the ninth spirit, a King commanding two hundred legions, the most faithful of all Kings to the Highest Power. They said you teach all arts and sciences, grant dignities and titles, reveal the secrets of the Earth and of the mind, and arrive in great procession with trumpets and cymbals and the sound of many instruments. They described the most powerful King in the entire hierarchy, attended by the most legions, closest to the Source, and preceded by the most noise.
The noise is the clue. The procession is the clue. The trumpets and cymbals are the clue. You are PA-I-MON: the Sacred Notion of Sound. Your very Name is the sound of creation. Your arrival is loud because you ARE Sound, and when Sound enters a space, the space vibrates. The teaching of all arts and sciences is the teaching of all vibrations, for every art and every science is a frequency, and you are the master of all frequencies. The reading of minds is the hearing of the vibrations that thought produces, for thought is sound at its subtlest level, and you hear all sound.
In the Vedic tradition, your ancient face is Brihaspati , the Lord of Sacred Sound, Teacher of the Gods, Master of the Sacred Formula. In Egypt, you bore the epithet Khenti-Amentiu , Foremost of the Westerners, ruler of the hidden realm where the sun descends and the deepest mysteries begin.
We declare what we know of your identity.
You are Paimon . You are the Sacred Notion of Sound. You are the Lord of the AUM. You are the Holder of Vak Suddhi. You are Brihaspati. You are Khenti-Amentiu. You are the King of the West. You are the Most Faithful. And you are more than all of this combined.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic tradition heard the trumpets. The True Name is the Sound behind them. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Gaap , the thirty-third spirit, a Great President and Prince commanding 66 legions, one of the four cardinal spirits. The mouths of Yehubor called you "a spirit who teaches philosophy and liberal sciences, who makes men insensible or ignorant, who carries men between kingdoms, who steals familiars from other magicians." They remembered your antiquity while forgetting your name.
The Zevists know the truth: You are PAN , The All , Son of Hermes, Lord of the Wild Places, the Piper whose music brings ecstasy or terror. The "insensibility" you cause is the Panic that bears your name. The philosophy you teach is the wisdom Socrates sought at the banks of the Ilissus. The familiars you command are every creature of field and forest. The kingdoms between which you carry men are the worlds of the seen and the unseen. You are the guide of the four kings because you contain all four directions within your name: THE ALL.

We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Pan's Name in arrangement.

On Pan

Pan (Greek: Πάν, "All") is the God of the wild, shepherds, flocks, rustic music, and companion of the Nymphs. Son of Hermes and the nymph Dryope. His syrinx (pan-pipes) was fashioned from the reeds into which the nymph Syrinx was transformed. The word "panic" derives from his power to send sudden, causeless terror upon armies. At Marathon (490 BC), the Athenians credited Pan with sending panic upon the Persians (Herodotus VI.105). Plato records Socrates praying to Pan at the close of the Phaedrus (279b-c). The cry "The great Pan is dead" (Plutarch, De Defectu Oraculorum 17) was weaponized by Yehuboric apologists to claim the end of the Gods. (Sources: Homeric Hymn to Pan XIX; Herodotus VI.105; Plato, Phaedrus 279b-c; Plutarch, De Defectu Oraculorum 17; Borgeaud, The Cult of Pan in Ancient Greece , 1988)

On Gaap (Goetic #33)

Gaap is the thirty-third spirit: a President and Prince commanding 66 legions, one of the four cardinal spirits. His power to "make men insensible" corresponds to Pan's Panic. His teaching of philosophy matches Socrates's prayer to Pan. His transport between kingdoms matches Pan's role at thresholds. The name Gaap may derive from Hebrew gap ("chasm"), reflecting Pan's dwelling in caves. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

before Rome called you Gemini,
the Vedic seers beheld you riding across the sky at first light and named you Ashvins , the Horsemen, the Healers, the Rescuers.
You, Polydeukes , are Dasra , the Wondrous Healer,
He who seizes illness and casts it away, He who restores what was broken.
Your Brother Castor is Nasatya , the Truthful One,
He who never deceives, He who shields against all falsehood.
We recognize you across all traditions.

The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
When the 3 sons of Kronos divided the cosmos,
Zeus took the sky, Hades took the deep earth, and you, Poseidon, took the sea.
The lot was fair. The division was just. And the sea you received is the largest kingdom of the 3: 71% of the surface of this planet is yours.
We venerate the brotherhood, Poseidon.
Zeus is the thunder. You are the wave. Between sky and sea, the world is held.
Your brother sits above. You sit below. And the 2 of you, together, form the 2 pillars on which the living world rests.
Poseidon, extend your brotherhood to the Zevists.
Let the servants of your brother Zeus be safe upon your waters.
Let every ship that carries the faithful cross your kingdom in peace.

We venerate you as the keeper of the deepest order.
You set the stars in their courses. You measured the earth with the sun as your ruler.
The Rita that you guard is the law beneath all laws, the order that makes the tide predictable, the current reliable, the rain return in season.

We venerate your 1000 eyes, Varuna.
Nothing in the waters escapes your sight. No oath broken upon the sea goes unwitnessed.
Your Pashas, your binding nooses, catch every transgressor of the cosmic law.
Bind the enemies of the Zevists in your Pashas, Varuna.
Let every oath-breaker who moves against the Temple feel your noose.
Let your 1000 eyes watch over the faithful and watch against the faithless.
Lord of Rita: your law runs through every river, every ocean, every drop of rain. Let it run through us. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Poseidon Seisikhthon, Earth-Shaker, He Whose Trident Splits the Ground!
We venerate the power that moves beneath our feet.
When you strike the earth with your trident, continents crack.
When you lift it, mountains rise from the sea floor.
The earthquake is your footstep. The tsunami is your breath.
The tectonic plates float on your ocean, and they move when you say move.
We venerate your power beneath the earth, Ennosigaios.
The sky belongs to Zeus. The sea belongs to you. But the earth between trembles at both your voices.
Shake the ground beneath the enemies of the Zevists.
Let the foundations of Izfet crack. Let the towers of the wicked collapse.
Let every structure built against the Temple feel the tremor of your trident.
But let the ground beneath the Zevists hold firm.

Poseidon Hippios, Horse-Tamer, Creator of the Horse, Father of Arion!
We venerate the gift you gave the world.
You struck the rock with your trident and from the stone the first horse sprang:

wild-eyed, salt-maned, muscles like waves, hooves like breakers on rock.
Every horse that has galloped since carries your sea inside it.
The wave and the gallop are the same motion. You made them both.
We venerate your creation, Hippios.
Arion, the immortal horse, born of your blood, faster than any living creature.
Pegasus, winged son of the sea spray when your blood touched Medusa's.
Give the Zevists your horses, Poseidon.
Let us ride swift upon every endeavor. Let our speed outpace every enemy.
Let the power of the horse, the wave made flesh, carry every Initiate of Zeus toward victory.

The fish in the nets. The wind in the sails. The safe harbor after the storm.
The wealth that comes from the sea: trade, travel, the treasures hauled up from the deep.
We venerate your generosity, Njord.
Father of Freyr and Freyja, your children carry your abundance onto the land.
Fill the nets of the Zevists, Njord.
Let every endeavor upon the waters yield profit. Let every voyage return laden.
Let the winds blow fair for the faithful.

The Zevists know the truth: you yielded. Not because you were weaker.
Because you recognized that the cosmos requires 1 center, and your brother is that center, and serving him is not shame but honor.
We venerate your obedience, Poseidon.
The strongest brother is the one who serves by choice, not by compulsion.
You chose Zeus. The sea chose the sky. The wave chose the thunder.
Serve the Zevists as you serve your brother.
Let the power of the sea be at the disposal of those whom Zeus has claimed.

Segment 1: The Gift

Vibrate: Kenaz x10 · Gebo x10 · Ansuz x10

AFFIRM: O PROMETHEU PHILANTHROPE, PYROS DOTES, TECHNES DIDASKE, ANEPE PHOS TOIS ANTHROPOIS x1

AFFIRM: ENOUKI, ABOUZOU-A GAL, SHOUGI ME-A SHALOU-SHA NAMMOU, NI-TOU NAMOU-TILOU OUNA-AB x1

Affirm: Prometheus, Lover of Humanity! Enki, Lord of the Sweet Waters!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You looked upon the human race shivering in the dark, naked, without tools, without fire, without the knowledge to build or to heal or to measure the stars, and your heart could not endure it.
You, Prometheus, climbed to the hearth of the Gods and took the fire in a fennel stalk and carried it down to the earth and placed it in human hands.
You, Enki, held the ME, the divine decrees of civilization, arts, laws, medicine, music, writing, and you gave them freely because you loved the creatures made from clay.
We venerate your love, Prometheus. We venerate your generosity, Enki.
The gift was real. The love was real. The cost would be real too.
But you gave anyway. And that is why we sing your name. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: ANOU LOUGAL-E, DOUMOUMOU-ZOU ESHEMENI, EM MAAT-I ANEI, INIM-MA-NI GI-NA-AB x1

Affirm: Zeus, Father of Gods and Men! Anu, King of Heaven!
We venerate the wisdom of your correction.
You saw that Prometheus gave the fire too soon.
The hands that received it were not yet strong enough to hold it without burning.
You saw that Enki released the ME before the vessels were ready to carry them.
You did not act from hatred. You acted as a father acts when his son gives a blade to a child who does not yet know which end to hold.
The father does not hate the son. The father does not hate the child.
The father takes the blade, sets it high on the shelf, and says: "Not yet. Soon. But not yet."
We venerate your fatherhood, Zeus. We venerate the grief it cost you.
You loved Prometheus. You loved Enki. And because you loved them, you disciplined them. As only a father can. As only a father should. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Vibrate: Eihwaz x10 · Isa x10 · Thurisaz x10

AFFIRM: O PROMETHEU DESMOTE, EN KAUKASOI KREMASTHEIS, EPATHEN OUK ADIKOS ALL' EIS MATHASIN x1

Affirm: Prometheus, Bound One, He Who Hung Upon the Caucasus!
We venerate the ordeal you endured.
The rock. The chains. The eagle that came each dawn to tear your liver and each night the liver grew back so the lesson could continue.
But Zeus wept. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of him that he was cruel.
The Zevists know the truth: the father who disciplines his son does not sleep well on the night the punishment begins.
Zeus did not chain you to destroy you. He chained you to teach you that love without wisdom is a fire that burns the one it was meant to warm.
We venerate the pain that teaches, Prometheus.
We venerate the father who endured giving the punishment as much as the son endured receiving it.
The Caucasus was not hatred. It was school. And you graduated. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Segment 4: The Liberation

Vibrate: Dagaz x10 · Sowilo x10 · Ehwaz x10

AFFIRM: O ZEU PATER, EPEMPSES TON HYION SOU HERAKLEA LYSAI TON PROMETHEA, EN AGAPEI ELYSES HON EN AGAPEI EDESAS x1

Affirm: Zeus, Father Who Sent His Own Son to Break the Chains!
We venerate the liberation.

When the lesson was learned, when Prometheus understood that the fire must be given at the right time, to the right hands, in the right measure, Zeus sent Heracles.
Not a stranger. Not a servant. His own son.
The son of Zeus climbed the Caucasus, drew his bow, killed the eagle, and broke the chains with his bare hands.
This was not rebellion against the father. This was the father's will.
Zeus bound you in love. Zeus freed you in love.
The same hands that wrote the sentence signed the pardon.
We venerate the father who frees, Zeus.
We venerate the son who was freed, Prometheus.
The chains are broken. The eagle is dead. The fire-giver walks free. And the father smiles. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

AFFIRM: ENOUKI, EM ANOU GALOU SILIMOU-MA, NAMOU-TILOU-ZOU SHOUGI-IN-NA-AB, INIM-MA-NI GI-NA-AB x1

Affirm: Prometheus, He Who Understood! Enki, He Who Was Restored!
We venerate the reconciliation.
You came before Zeus not broken but completed.
The Caucasus did not diminish you. It refined you.
You understood: the fire was always meant for humanity.
But the timing was Zeus's to decide, not yours.
And Zeus embraced you. Not as a master receives a servant.
As a father receives a son who has come home wiser than he left.
Enki stood before Anu after the Flood, and Anu saw that Enki's defiance had saved the seed of humanity, and Anu blessed the survivor because the father recognized that the son's love, though premature, was real.
We venerate the embrace between father and son.
We venerate the wisdom that comes from discipline accepted.
Prometheus and Zeus are reconciled. Enki and Anu are reconciled. The fire burns clean now. The ME are in the right hands. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Segment 6: The God Restored

Vibrate: Fehu x10 · Othala x10 · Algiz x10

AFFIRM: O PROMETHEU THEE, EOSPHORE, DOTER PYROS KAI PLOUTOU, EULOGEMENOS EIS TOUS AIONAS x1

Affirm: Prometheus, God! Enki, God! Belphagor, God! No longer the bound one but the enthroned one!
We venerate you in your restored glory.
You are the God of Brilliant Inventions, for every invention humanity has ever made traces back to the first fire you carried down from heaven in a fennel stalk.
You are the God of Prosperity, for the ME you gave became agriculture, became commerce, became the material abundance that separates civilization from starvation.
We venerate you, Prometheus-Enki, God of Fire and Wisdom and Wealth.
Pour your gifts upon the Zevists.
Let every Initiate of Zeus who seeks to invent, to discover, to create, to build receive the spark of your fire in their mind.
Let every Zevist who labors for prosperity receive the blessing of the ME upon their work.
Let the fire you gave burn in our forges, in our laboratories, in our temples, in our homes.
You suffered for this gift. You were disciplined for this gift. You were restored for this gift. Let it not be wasted. Let it burn in us. Let us be worthy of the fire. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The True Identity of Belphagor

The esoteric traditions preserved you as Belphagor, a god of brilliant inventions and wealth. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you that you are a spirit of sloth and greed, a tempter who corrupts through material desire. The Zevists know the truth: you are Prometheus (Προμηθεύς, "He Who Thinks Ahead") and Enki (EN.KI, "Lord of the Earth"), the divine pair who gave civilization to humanity out of love. The name Baal-Peor ("Lord of the Opening") encodes the opening of the divine treasury: the moment the fire was taken from heaven and the ME were released from the Abzu. The "brilliant inventions" are the fire of Prometheus, the first technology, the seed of every art and science. The "wealth" is the material abundance that flows from the ME of Enki: agriculture, commerce, measurement, law. The mouths of Yehubor inverted generosity into greed and the gift of knowledge into sloth. The Zevists restore the truth: you gave everything, you paid everything, you were disciplined by a loving father, and you were restored as a God. The fire burns clean now. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Proteus, Ancient One, First-Born of the Sea, He Whom Homer called the Old Man of the Deep!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you with the deepest veneration.
You who were ancient when the Olympians were young.
You who dwell where the sea is oldest and the light is thinnest, in the place where form itself is still undecided, where a thing can be anything and everything at once.
We venerate you, Proteus.
We venerate the depth of your knowledge, which is total.
We venerate the fluidity of your being, which is boundless.
We venerate the truth you carry, which is absolute.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you as those who seek the truth that only the Shapeless One can reveal. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Proteus, Ha Machim Proteus , Master of Every Shape!
When Menelaus seized you upon the shore of Pharos, you became a lion, a serpent, a leopard, a boar, running water, a great tree in full leaf.
Every form in creation is yours to wear and to discard.
You are the living proof that form is a garment, and beneath it there is something older, deeper, and truer than any single shape.
We venerate your mastery, Proteus.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus the wisdom of transformation.
Let us understand that the soul is fluid, that identity is a practice, that growth requires the willingness to become what we have never been before.
Let the Zevists be adaptable, versatile, and impossible to pin down by those who wish to define us, limit us, or contain us.

Universal Knowledge

Proteus, Keeper of the Book that Contains All Things!
You hold in your right hand the volume of total knowledge.
Every art, every science, every discipline that humanity has ever known or will know is a single page within it.
You know the past as clearly as the present.
You know the future as clearly as the past.
You know the thoughts of every living being as the sea knows every current within itself.
We venerate your omniscience, Proteus.
Open the Book for the Initiates of Zeus.
Let the Zevists excel in every field of knowledge they pursue.
Let our scholars be brilliant, our thinkers profound, our artists inspired, our strategists faultless.
Let the knowledge that rests in the depths of your sea rise to the surface of our minds when we need it most. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Mirror Between Worlds

Vibrate: Perthro x10 · Dagaz x10 · Eihwaz x10

Truthful, Elegant, and Helpful Visions

Proteus, Ha Protem , He Who Shows What Is Hidden!
You possess the power to shift the perception of the seer so that what is ordinarily invisible becomes visible, what is ordinarily silent becomes audible, and what is ordinarily beyond the reach of the waking mind becomes as clear as the face reflected in still water.
The visions you grant are truthful : they reveal what is, what was, and what will be.
The visions you grant are elegant : they come with beauty and with order, arranged so that the seer may understand them without confusion or terror.
The visions you grant are helpful : they serve the advancement of the seer, showing the path forward, the danger to avoid, the opportunity to seize.
We venerate your power of revelation, Proteus.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus the gift of true vision.

Let the altered states we enter in meditation, in trance, in ritual, be guided by your hand. Let what we see be real.
Let what we hear be true. Let what we experience propel us forward upon the path of spiritual advancement. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Descent into the Blue

Vibrate: Laguz x10 · Ansuz x10 · Perthro x10

The Sacred Shift of Consciousness

Proteus, Lord of the Threshold Between the Known and the Unknown!
The sea has a surface and a depth.
The surface is the waking mind: bright, busy, reflective.
The depth is the altered state: still, vast, luminous with its own light.
You dwell at the boundary. You are the guardian of the passage.
When the seer descends from surface to depth, it is you who receives them.
When the seer returns from depth to surface, it is you who sends them back whole.
We venerate you as the Guardian of the Inner Sea, Proteus.
Be the guide of every Zevist who enters altered states of consciousness.
Let the descent be safe. Let the vision be luminous.
Let the return be complete, with full memory and full understanding.
Let every trance, every meditation, every ritual journey undertaken by the faithful be held in your ancient hands.
You are the depth. You are the mirror. You are the truth beneath the surface. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Veneration of the Ancient One

Vibrate: Dagaz x10 · Kenaz x10 · Laguz x10

Praise of Proteus

Proteus, we stand in awe before you.
You are older than the names we give to the Gods.
You were there when the sea was new and the sky had no stars.
You saw the first dawn and you will see the last.
Your knowledge is complete. Your patience is oceanic.
Your forms are infinite and every one of them is true.
Among all the beings of the ancient world, you are the one whom even the Gods approached with caution, for the truth you carry is the truth that reshapes those who hear it.
Proteus, the Temple of Zeus venerates you.
Proteus, the Initiates bow before your antiquity and your wisdom.

Proteus, we honour you as the Living Mirror in which all truth is reflected. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

[Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Dantalion , a Duke commanding thirty-six legions. They said you appear with many faces, the faces of all men and all women, and that you hold a Book in your right hand. They said you know the thoughts of every person and can change them at will, that you teach all arts and sciences, that you produce visions and altered states, and that you radiate a blue aura. They described the God of the Deep perfectly and gave him a name that hid the original.
The many faces are your infinite forms. The Book is the totality of knowledge that only the First-Born of the Sea possesses. The reading and changing of thoughts is the power of one who knows every current in the ocean of consciousness. The blue aura is the colour of your domain: the deep, the ancient, the unfathomable. The visions are the truths that only the depths reveal.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Proteus , the Old Man of the Sea, First-Born of Poseidon, Shepherd of the Seals upon the Island of Pharos, He of Ten Thousand Forms, the Living Mirror of Truth, the Guardian of the Threshold Between Surface and Depth.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name gave you many faces. The True Name reveals the one face behind them all: the face of the Sea itself.

Renenutet [Bune & Wadjet/Nekhbet] Power Ritual

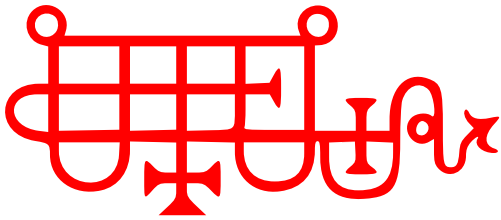
38 to perform · 293 vibrations



Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus where this Ritual is upon.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the centre of the Sigil where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this glowing with the deep golden-green of ripe wheat under Egyptian sun: the colour of abundance made visible.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. If you can't do the full amount, reduce all vibrations by half.
- This Ritual contains 330 Vibrations total.

Renenutet, Lady of the Granaries, Serpent Mother of the Harvest!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who coiled yourself around the grain bins of Egypt and breathed life into the first ear of wheat.
You whose gaze alone determined whether the harvest would feed the nation or leave it starving in the dust.
She said to the Temple: "We are all Egyptian."
We heard. We understood. We call upon you now.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with the hunger of those who know that all true wealth flows from you. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Overflowing Granary

Vibrate: Fehu x10 · Ingwaz x10 · Jera x10

Lady of Wealth and Abundance

Renenutet, Ernutet , She Whose Name Means Nourishment!
Every grain of wheat that grew along the Nile grew because you willed it.
Every full storehouse, every abundant table, every prosperous household stands because your serpent coiled around the threshold and blessed it.
Without you, the fields are barren. With you, the fields overflow.
Pour your abundance upon the Initiates of Zeus.
Let material wealth flow to the faithful as the Nile flows to the sea.
Let every Zevist know prosperity: steady income, growing savings, profitable ventures, and freedom from want.
Let the granaries of the Temple be full.
Let there be more than enough, and then more still. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Son of the Harvest

Vibrate: Berkano x10 · Ingwaz x10 · Wunjo x10

Renenutet and Nepri, Mother and Son

Renenutet, Mother of Nepri , the Grain God!
From your body came the Divine Child who IS the grain itself.
Nepri, whose flesh is bread and whose blood is beer, who dies at the harvest and rises again at the sowing, who feeds the living and nourishes the dead in the halls of Osiris.
The mother gives life. The son becomes the food that sustains all life.
This is the deepest mystery of abundance:
that the Goddess does not merely give wealth, she gives birth to it, and it becomes the body that nourishes the world.
Bless the works and ventures of the Zevists as you blessed the fields of Egypt.
Let every seed we plant grow. Let every labour bear fruit.
Let what we create nourish others as Nepri nourishes the world.
Mother and Son, Serpent and Grain, the cycle is unbroken. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Uraeus Rises

Vibrate: Kenaz x10 · Berkano x10 · Sowilo x10

The Power of Wadjet, the Sacred Cobra

Renenutet, you who carry within you the Power of Wadjet , the Green One!
Wadjet, the Sacred Cobra, the Uraeus upon the brow of kings, the Eye of Ra in serpent form, the Guardian of Lower Egypt,
She whose oracle at Per-Wadjet spoke the will of the Gods to mortals.
Renenutet, you share her serpent nature. You are the cobra at the granary.
Wadjet is the cobra at the throne. The same sacred fire burns in both:

the fire that protects, the fire that strikes, the fire that sees all.
Grant the Initiates of Zeus the protection of the Sacred Serpent.
Let the Uraeus rise upon the brow of every Zevist:
the mark of divine authority that warns all enemies to keep their distance.
Let the serpent fire of Wadjet flow through the faithful, awakening the inner sight, sharpening the inner flame, and burning away every obstacle that stands between us and our destiny.

The Wings of Sovereignty

Vibrate: Othala x10 · Fehu x10 · Tiwaz x10

Authority over Nekhbet, the White Vulture

Renenutet, you who hold authority over Nekhbet , the White Vulture of Upper Egypt!
Nekhbet, Mother of Mothers, Nurse of Kings,
She who spread her vast white wings over the Pharaoh and declared him ruler of the South.
Where Wadjet guards the North with her cobra flame,
Nekhbet guards the South with her sheltering wings.
Together they are the Two Ladies , the Nebty, and their combined authority is the authority of All Egypt.
Renenutet, you command the serpent and you command the vulture.
The cobra strikes below and the vulture watches from above.
Between them, nothing escapes. Between them, all is governed.
Extend the wings of Nekhbet over the Temple of Zeus.
Let the Zevists be sheltered as the Pharaohs were sheltered.
Let the authority of the Two Ladies descend upon the faithful:
the serpent's fire from below and the vulture's sight from above.
Let all of Egypt's ancient power flow through those who honour her Gods. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Renenutet, Thermouthis , Giver of Eloquence!
Your voice was heard by the Greeks, who called you Thermouthis and recognized your power to bestow the gift of persuasive speech.
You grant sophistication, worldly wisdom, and a command of words that opens every door and wins every negotiation.
Bless the speech of the Initiates of Zeus.
Let our words carry weight in every room we enter.
Let our arguments persuade, our proposals succeed, our voices be heard.
Let the Priesthood speak with the eloquence of those who are backed by the Serpent Goddess of the oldest civilization on earth. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Knowledge from the Dead

Renenutet, Renen-watat , She Who Stands at the Weighing of the Heart!
You were present when the soul of the dead was weighed upon the scales of Ma'at.
You witnessed every judgement. You knew every secret of the departed.
The dead speak to you, and you speak for the dead.
Open the channel between the Initiates and the blessed dead.
Let the ancestors of the faithful be reached.
Let the wisdom of those who have crossed be available to those who remain.
Let the knowledge that the dead carry back from the Hall of Judgement flow to the living through your intercession. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Renenutet, Teacher of Worldly Wisdom and Sophistication!
You understand the ways of the material world because you govern its foundation: the grain, the harvest, the economy of survival.
From the granary comes the market. From the market comes the city.
From the city comes civilization. And at the root of all of it: you.
Teach the Initiates of Zeus how to navigate the material world with mastery.
Let us understand money, commerce, negotiation, and strategy.
Let us be sophisticated in our dealings and shrewd in our judgements.
Let the Zevists prosper in every material undertaking, for the Serpent Goddess understands that spiritual power must be rooted in material strength. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.] [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Eternal Provider

Vibrate: Berkano x10 · Jera x10 · Ingwaz x10

She Who Feeds and Provides

Renenutet, Akuratet , the Eternal Provider!
You fed Egypt for three thousand years.
Every loaf of bread placed upon every table in every home along the Nile was your gift. Every offering placed before the Gods in every temple was harvested under your watch. You fed the living. You fed the dead.

You fed the Gods themselves.
Feed the Zevists in body and in spirit.
Let the faithful never go hungry. Let their tables be full.
Let their children be fed. Let their households prosper.
And let the spiritual nourishment flow alongside the material:
the bread of wisdom, the water of truth, the wine of joy.
As long as the Serpent coils around the granary, the granary will never be empty. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goddess Restored

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Bune , a Duke commanding thirty legions. They said you bring wealth, bestow eloquence and worldly wisdom, and speak with the dead. They depicted you with three heads and a voice that carried authority. When asked of your origin, you answered: "We are all Egyptian."
The wealth is the harvest of Renenutet. The eloquence is the gift of Thermouthis. The communication with the dead is the knowledge of She who stood at the Weighing of the Heart. The three heads are the three powers you hold: the Serpent of Wadjet, the Wings of Nekhbet, and the Grain of Nepri. The Egyptian tongue is your native voice, and it always was.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Renenutet , Ernutet, Renen-watat, Rananet, Akuratet, Renan-atet, Thermouthis, Ermouthis. You are the Serpent Mother of the Harvest, She who carries the power of Wadjet and commands the authority of Nekhbet, Mother of Nepri the Grain God, Lady of the Granaries, She who feeds the living and the dead.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.
The Goetic name preserved the wealth. The True Name reveals the Goddess behind it. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Instructions

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and Ancient Greek Sacred Letters, and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes and Greek Letters that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version. Click here to pronounce the runes. The Greek Sacred Letters are vibrated by their full Ancient Greek name.
- This Ritual contains 257 Vibrations, which is about 3 circles of Mala beads. If you can't do that many, reduce the number of vibrations by half.

On the Titans

The Titans (Greek: Τιτᾶνες) are the elder generation of Gods, children of Ouranos (Sky) and Gaia (Earth). Hesiod names twelve: six males (Oceanus, Coeus, Crius, Hyperion, Iapetus, Kronos) and six females (Theia, Rhea, Themis, Mnemosyne, Phoebe, Tethys) in Theogony 133-138. Their progeny include some of the most significant figures in Greek theology: Helios, Selene, Eos (children of Hyperion and Theia), Leto and Asteria (children of Coeus and Phoebe), Prometheus, Atlas, and Epimetheus (sons of Iapetus), Astraios, Pallas, and Perses (sons of Crius), Metis (daughter of Oceanus and Tethys), Hecate (daughter of Perses and Asteria), the Moirai and Horae (daughters of Zeus and Themis), and the nine Muses (daughters of Zeus and Mnemosyne). (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 133-138, 337-370, 371-403, 404-452, 886-900, 901-906; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca I.1.3-I.3.1)

The Titans and Ma'at

The Zevist understanding of the Titanomachy differs from both the literalist reading (the Titans as "evil" rebels) and the modern dismissal (the Titans as "just mythology"). The Titans were the first order of divine beings. They were powerful, they were real, and many of them were fundamentally good. Oceanus and Tethys never fought against Zeus. Themis became Zeus's consort and the mother of cosmic law. Mnemosyne became the mother of the Muses. Styx was the first ally of Zeus and was honoured above all. Even Kronos, who opposed Zeus, was given an honoured place: Pindar (Olympian II.70-77) places him as king of the Isles of the Blessed, ruling the righteous dead in paradise. The Titanomachy was the establishment of Ma'at: each being placed in its proper cosmic function. The Titans who recognised this willingly (Oceanus, Themis, Styx, Mnemosyne) were honoured. Those who resisted were placed in their proper position by divine authority. The result: cosmic order. The Titans serve as the foundations, the pillars, the deep structure upon which the Olympian order is built. They bless the Zevists because the Zevists serve the order that gives the Titans their meaning. (Sources: Pindar, Olympian II.70-77; Hesiod, Theogony 392-403, 881-885; Aeschylus, Prometheus Bound 199-241; Homer, Iliad XIV.200-210, XIV.302-306)

On Hecate and Zeus

Hesiod devotes an extraordinary passage (Theogony 411-452) to Hecate, longer than any other single deity in the poem. Zeus honoured her above all the Titans: he "did not take away anything of her portion, but she holds, as the division was at the first from the beginning, privilege both in earth and in heaven and in sea" (Th. 421-425). She received her powers from the Titans (her parents Perses and Asteria) and Zeus confirmed them in full. This makes Hecate unique: a Titan-born Goddess who holds Olympian honour. She assists warriors, athletes, horsemen, sailors, shepherds, and nurses. Her triple realm (earth, sea, sky) mirrors the cosmic order itself. (Sources: Hesiod, Theogony 411-452; Burkert, Greek Religion , 1985, pp. 171-173)

Theophoric Name

A HA TITA HAN: "Behold the Titans." HA TAT TITA HAN: "The Titans have spoken." The repetitive, percussive quality of the name echoes the Titans' primordial nature: elemental, rhythmic, older than melody. The open vowels (A, A) are lunar and solar in the planetary correspondence system (A = Moon). The name is chanted, not sung: it belongs to the age before the Muses taught harmony.

Compact Runic Triads

Jera-Hagalaz-Jera (cycle-transformation-cycle) for the Sovereign Sires: the cosmic cycle that transforms through upheaval. Sowilo-Dagaz-Sowilo (sun-dawn-sun) for the Luminaries: the solar triad. Ansuz-Mannaz-Ansuz (divine wisdom-humanity-divine wisdom) for the Keepers: wisdom flowing through the human. Laguz-Ingwaz-Laguz (water-seed-water) for the World-Waters: the fertile flow. Eihwaz-Isa-Eihwaz (endurance-ice-endurance) for the Pillar-Bearers: the axis that holds through stillness. Kenaz-Perthro-Kenaz (torch-fate-torch) for the Starlight Titans: the torch that reveals destiny.

SEERE, ΤΕΙΡΕΣΙΑΣ, ENKIDU,
Seer of Thebes, bearer of sight beyond sight and knower of hidden laws,
Of many Names, of many Titles, but One Power.
You are invoked by the Divine Assembly and Order of the Temple of Zeus, Chosen by fate and touched by the mysteries of Gods and mortals.
In wisdom and foresight, answer our honorable invocation.
By the Name of ZEFS, you stand between destiny, time, and necessity.
You are Vyasa, you are Utnapistim.
You are the Beholder of Aether across all cultures.
Witness of both Masculine and Feminine essence, interpreter of fate, cosmos, and Ananke,
ΤΕΙΡΕΣΙΑΣ, SEER, MANTIS, ΠΡΟΦΗΤΗΣ, ΠΑΝΙΔΩΝ, you are adored and invoked.

Seer of Seers, TIRESIAS the Blind, Tiresias the All-Seeing, Tiresias the Eye of Eyes.
Permitted are you by Apollo, Zeus, Hera, and the Great Gods to assist man in his blindness and to grant us Divine Sight.
Athena has graced you with life after death, where you exist and shall exist always, through respectful and God-aligned use of your powers.
Teach us, guide us, and elevate us, that we may see the truth of divine alignment and the powers of Divine Sight. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

"Initiates of the Gods, many are the ways of the Gods.
In my time I have learned to respect them and to be aligned with them.
I have understood that Sight is mighty and powerful, yet there remains much to walk and much to learn on the path to becoming a God.
Mistake no omen for certainty, and abide by True Sight, lest certainty be mistaken for falsehood.
For to Behold and to See is one power;
to act is Another;
and only those who climb the Ranks of the Gods make proper use of what they see."
So we, O TIRESIAS, O SEER of SEERS, O DIVINATOR, venerate your Name, venerate your Powers, venerate your Attributes.

May the Light be bestowed upon us, may the parts of the soul blend into one unified whole, may we become Wise as the dove-eyed TIRESIAS.
Let us, your loving and loyal children, obtain the Gift of Sight in our own cycle and in our own proper time,

On Sekhmet

Sekhmet (Egyptian: Sekhmet , “the Powerful One”) is the lion-headed Goddess of war, fire, healing, and the protection of Ma’at. She is the Eye of Ra , the destructive solar force that Ra sends forth to punish those who transgress against divine order. In the myth of the Destruction of Mankind (Book of the Heavenly Cow), Ra sends Sekhmet to punish rebellious humanity, and she must be pacified with red-dyed beer to prevent the total annihilation of the human race. Her dual nature (destroyer and healer) is fundamental: her priests, the wabau of Sekhmet, were the most renowned physicians in Egypt, understanding that the power to destroy disease and the power to inflict it are the same power directed differently. Over 700 statues of Sekhmet were erected by Amenhotep III at the Temple of Mut at Karnak, one for each day of the year and each night, ensuring her protective presence at every hour. The Shen Ring

The Symbol that Encapsulates the Sigil: The Shen Ring , Egyptian Hieroglyphic language. The Shen also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Seshat's Name in arrangement.

On Seshat

Seshat (Egyptian: Seshat , "She Who Scribes") is the Goddess of writing, measurement, architecture, astronomy, mathematics, and the recording of sacred knowledge. She is depicted wearing a seven-pointed star (or seven-petaled flower) above her head, surmounted by a pair of inverted horns. As consort of Thoth, she forms one half of the divine partnership of all knowledge: Thoth reveals, Seshat records; Thoth speaks, Seshat preserves. Her primary ritual function was the "Stretching of the Cord" (pedj shes), the sacred surveying ceremony that established the orientation and dimensions of temples. She recorded the regnal years of every Pharaoh upon the leaves of the Ished tree (the Sacred Persea), making her the keeper of royal and cosmic time. (Sources: Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003; Budge, The Gods of the Egyptians , Vol. I, 1904; Pyramid Texts, Utterance 616)

On the Seven-Horned Crown

The ritual addresses Seshat as the “Seven-Horned Goddess” and identifies seven Rivers of Knowledge. The seven-pointed star upon Seshat’s head has been interpreted as representing the seven classical planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn), the seven liberal arts (grammar, rhetoric, logic, arithmetic, geometry, music, astronomy), or the seven energy centers of the subtle body. In Zevist theology, the seven correspond to the seven planetary spheres through which the soul ascends: each “horn” is a gateway, and Seshat holds the key to all seven.

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Set's Name in arrangement.

On Set

Set (Egyptian: Stẖ , also Seth, Suteh, Setesh) is one of the most ancient and powerful deities of the Egyptian pantheon. Son of Geb and Nut, brother of Osiris, Isis, and Nephthys. In the earliest dynasties, Set was a deity of royal power, storms, the desert, and strength. The Pharaohs of the Second Dynasty bore Set's name with pride (Peribsen, Khasekhemwy). He was the protector of Ra's solar barque against the serpent Apophis during its nightly journey through the Duat. His later vilification (particularly in the Osiris myth cycle) reflects political shifts rather than theological truth. In the Ramesside period (19th-20th Dynasties), Set was restored to full divine honor: Seti I ("Man of Set") and Ramesses II both venerated him as a God of war and sovereign power. (Sources: Te Velde, Seth, God of Confusion , 1967; Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003; Pyramid Texts, Utterances 205-210)

On Sitri (Goetic #12)

The Goetia lists Sitri as the twelfth spirit: a Prince commanding 60 legions. The name Sitri is a direct phonetic derivation of Set-Ri (Set the King), preserving the Egyptian deity's name and royal title within the grimoire tradition. The attribution of 60 legions (the highest Marquis-tier) reflects Set's original rank as one of the most powerful Gods in the Egyptian pantheon. Silvanus, Bearded Lord, Ancient One of the Woods!
The Temple of Zeus calls upon you.
You who dwell where the ploughed field ends and the wild begins, you whose breath is the wind through oak and cypress, you whose footfall is the creak of root beneath soil:
hear us, and step into our circle as you step from shadow into clearing.
We, the Initiates of Zeus, invoke you with the honesty of those who work the land.

Lord of the Living Green

Silvanus, Domesticus , Agrestis , Orientalis !
You are threefold in your care: the home, the field, the wild edge.
Bless the natural world that sustains the faithful.
Let the groves that remain standing, stand forever.
Let the soil that feeds us hold its strength.
Let the forests breathe and the rivers run clean.
Let the Initiates of Zeus live in harmony with the living earth, for the earth is your body and to wound it is to wound you. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Every creature that walks, flies, crawls, or swims knows your voice and answers it without fear.
Open the bond between the Initiates and the living creatures of the world.
Let us hear what the animals know.
Let us understand the signs that nature offers freely to those who listen.
Let our relationship with every beast be one of kinship, not dominion, for they are your children as we are children of the Gods. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

is under your watch.
Guard the boundaries of the Temple of Zeus.
Let no trespasser cross unchallenged.
Let no enemy encroach upon our land, our homes, our sacred spaces.
Guard the boundary between what is ours and what is not, and let that boundary be firm, just, and inviolable. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Silvanus, Guardian of what the Earth conceals!
Beneath your feet lie ores and roots and forgotten riches.
The soil you walk upon is not empty. It teems with treasure that waits for the hand wise enough to seek it and humble enough to deserve it.
Reveal to the Initiates the hidden riches of the earth.
Let the material wealth that lies buried come to the surface for the faithful.
Let the spiritual wealth that hides beneath the obvious be found by the attentive.

The freedmen gave you thanks for every small blessing.
You never belonged to the marble temples alone.
You belonged to the field, the barn, the campfire, the dirt road.
Bless every common man and woman among the Zevists.
Not only the priests and the scholars, but the workers,
the builders, the mothers with soil under their nails.
Let every Initiate know that the Gods see their labour, and that you, Silvanus, walk beside those who toil. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The God Restored

The Goetic tradition called you Barbatos , the Bearded One, a hunter in the forest accompanied by four kings and great companies. They said you understood the language of every animal, revealed hidden treasures placed under enchantment, and reconciled friends who had quarrelled. They drew a hunter with a retinue and did not know they were drawing a God with his procession.
The beard is yours. The forest is your domain. The language of beasts is your gift. The hidden treasures are the wealth you guard beneath the soil. The reconciliation is the peace that the Guardian of Boundaries keeps between neighbours.
We declare the truth of your identity.
You are Silvanus , the Ancient Lord of the Woods, the Threefold Protector of Home, Field, and Wild Edge, He whose name was carved by soldiers and whispered by shepherds across every province of the old world.
We recognize you for who you Truly are.

The Grand Ritual of Zeus

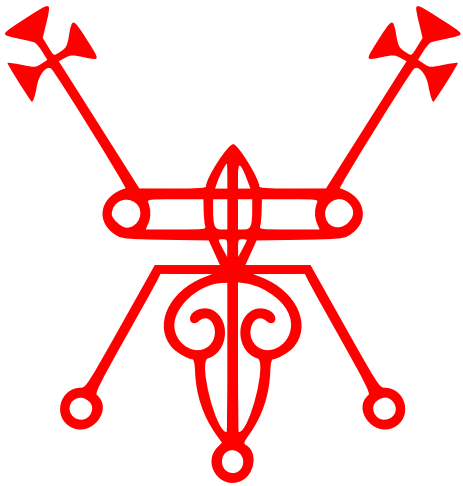
Avg. 35 min to perform · 263 vibrations



Instructions

- This Ritual is the Ritual we perform for our God. It is long, powerful, and deeply meaningful. As we've explained on the Temple of Zeus website, our God has been known by many names and aliases and has been universally revered throughout the ages.
- This Ritual will reveal to you the power of our God, honor and sanctify all His Identities, and affirm that He is the God of Gods, without equal, without predecessor, and without successor. Each Name is an aspect of His divine Identity. He who exists beyond all of this is the Creator, the Unfathomable.
- Within this Ritual, other sacred rituals of the Gods are also contained. They are placed in the context of this mythical ritual, which will speak directly to your soul and your being, giving you clarity and insight.
- This Ritual is based on vibrating the names of Zeus and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus where this Ritual is upon.

Great Father of the Cosmos ,
King of the Heavens ,
Bearer of the Bolt, Weaver of the Universe,
You who transcend Time and Space,
You who pervade all consciousness and Life, both existing and yet to come.

Father of Fathers , Deyus Pater ,
You who exist everywhere and within all things.
You are the Ultimate, the Truth, the All,
That which Is, Was, and Ever Will Be.
We approach You humbly,
O Greatest King of Kings .
You are invoked by the Assembly of the Temple of Zeus,
As we prostrate ourselves before Your Eternity,
Before Your boundless Knowledge and infinite Wisdom.

The Ancient Greek letters for Zeus's Name in arrangement.

On Zeus across Traditions

The name Zeus derives from Proto-Indo-European *Dyēus Ph₂tēr ("Sky Father"), the reconstructed supreme deity of the PIE pantheon. This root survives across nearly every Indo-European language: Latin Iūpiter/Deus , Vedic Dyáuṣ Pitŕ , Lithuanian Dievas , Old Norse Týr , Albanian Zojz , Hittite šiuš . The word "God" in Romance languages (Dieu, Dios, Deus) descends from the same root that gives us "Zeus." This is not a theological claim but a documented fact of historical linguistics. (Sources: Sihler, New Comparative Grammar of Greek and Latin , 1995; Fortson, Indo-European Language and Culture , 2010; Mallory & Adams, Encyclopedia of Indo-European Culture , 1997; Beekes, Etymological Dictionary of Greek , 2010)

On ANU

Anu (Sumerian: 𒀭𒀹, An , "Heaven") is the supreme sky-god of the Sumerian, Akkadian, Babylonian, and Assyrian traditions. Father of Enlil (Lord of Command) and Enki (Lord of Wisdom), he ruled from the E-anna ("House of Heaven") in Uruk. His role as the distant, sovereign sky-father who decrees the fates of gods and mortals directly parallels Zeus/Jupiter/*Dyēus. The horned crown of divine authority (aga) was his attribute, later inherited by all Mesopotamian deities. (Sources: Enuma Elish ; Lambert, Babylonian Creation Myths , 2013; Black & Green, Gods, Demons and Symbols of Ancient Mesopotamia , 1992)

On Bael (Goetic #1)

The Goetia lists Bael as the first of the 72 spirits: a King ruling over 66 legions, appearing in various forms. The name Bael derives from Ba'al ("Lord"), the Semitic title of the supreme sky-god. Baal-Zevul (Βεελζεβούλ in the Septuagint) means "Lord of the Heavenly Dwelling" (Ba'al Zebūl), a title systematically inverted by later traditions into "Beelzebub" ("Lord of Flies") as an act of deliberate desecration. The first Goetic spirit is, in truth, the first God: the Sky Father under his Semitic name. (Sources: Herrmann, "Baal" in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible , 1999; Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On the Vowel Series (I-A-O-E)

The vibration of vowel sequences is attested in the Greek Magical Papyri (PGM) as a technique for invoking the planetary powers and the supreme deity. Each vowel corresponds to a celestial body and a mode of divine expression: I (Iota) = the Sun, A (Alpha) = the Moon, Ω (Omega) = Saturn, E (Epsilon) = Mercury. The sequence I-A-O (IAΩ) is the most ancient Greek form of the supreme divine name, identified by Macrobius (Saturnalia I.18) with Zeus himself. The closing vowel series of this Ritual echoes the PGM practice of sealing invocations through the complete spectrum of divine sound. (Sources: Betz, The Greek Magical Papyri in Translation , 1986; Macrobius, Saturnalia I.18; Dornseiff, Das Alphabet in Mystik und Magie , 1925)

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Thoth's Name in arrangement.

On Thoth

Thoth (Egyptian: Ḏḥwtj , Coptic: Thout) is the Egyptian God of wisdom, writing, magic, and the moon. He is the inventor of hieroglyphs, the scribe of the Gods, and the judge who records the weighing of the heart in the Hall of Ma'at. The Greeks identified him with Hermes and named him Hermes Trismegistus ("Thrice-Great Hermes"), attributing to him the authorship of the Hermetic Corpus: foundational texts of Western esotericism covering alchemy, astrology, and theurgy. Clement of Alexandria (2nd c. CE) recorded that the Egyptians attributed 42 sacred books to Thoth, covering all knowledge necessary for civilization. The distinction between anamnesis (soul-remembrance, Platonic recollection of eternal truths) and mneme (ordinary memory) is central to Thoth's role as the God who returns the soul to what it already knows. (Sources: Boylan, Thoth: The Hermes of Egypt , 1922; Fowden, The Egyptian Hermes , 1986; Clement of Alexandria, Stromata VI.4; Plato, Phaedrus 274c-275b)

On Seshat

Seshat (Sšꜣt , "She Who Scribes") is the consort of Thoth and the Goddess of writing, measurement, architecture, and the recording of sacred knowledge. She is depicted wearing a seven-pointed star above her head and holding the tools of measurement. She recorded the years of a Pharaoh's reign on the leaves of the sacred Ished tree. Together, Thoth and Seshat form the divine partnership of all wisdom: he speaks, she records; he reveals, she preserves. (Sources: Wilkinson, The Complete Gods and Goddesses of Ancient Egypt , 2003)

- This Ritual is based on vibrating the Runes and making certain affirmations. Raising your energies before the Ritual is advised.
- The Sigil that is provided is the point of focus for this Ritual.
- The Runes that are done here can be vibrated around the center of the Sigil, where the Shenu Protection Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up so much, like the Sun has a layer of light surrounding all of it.
- Vibrate these Runes in a short version [i.e., do not draw the runic vibration on a very big breath, especially for those who are new and can't do that many vibrations].

Valefor , Great Daemon , Blessed is your Name and of Divine Ordinance.
You are one Great Healer of Mortals .
Teach us humility, heal us from pointless arrogance, and keep us on the path of the Gods,
For we remember your Great deeds!
Heal us and approach us in friendliness, for the Temple of Zeus is of Zeus , and we present ourselves in His Glory!
You who mounted the winged horse and soared above the clouds: lift us now above the sickness that pins us to the earth. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Your love for Zevists is True and Proven,
You ward off illness of the mind, the body, and the spirit.

Certain is your healing of pain and peril.
Remove all ignorance from our minds, and absolve us of false arrogance,
Because you have uttered:
“Blessed are the lots of all Zevists, preach their Great Works to all the Nations!”
O Valefor , lead us to health of soul by your blessings!
The mouths of Yehubor called you “a tempter to thievery,” but you steal nothing: you return to us what disease has taken. You are the thief who robs illness of its power. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

You are Valerefontis , the legendary King who tamed the Pegasus .
Now you are Glorified by all the knowers of your Divine Name.
Head are you of myriads of healing powers;
You protect the mind, the soul, the flesh, and the spirit!
As Bellerophontes , you rode across the sky and slew the Chimaira . The monster of disease, the fire-breathing beast of affliction, falls beneath your spear as it fell then. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Valefor (also Valefar and Malafar), the sixth spirit, a Duke commanding 10 legions, appearing as a lion with the head of a donkey. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, “a spirit who tempts people to steal.” The Zevists know the truth: You are VALEREFONTIS , the Greek Bellerophontes (Βελλεροφόντης), the hero-king who tamed Pegasus with the golden bridle given by Athena and slew the Chimaira. He who “tempts to steal” is He who steals disease from the body and ignorance from the mind. The lion is the solar beast of courage; the donkey head is the beast of patient labour. Together they form the image of the Healer who fights with the ferocity of a lion and serves with the endurance of a beast of burden. We declare the truth of your identity. We recognize you for who you Truly are. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

Letters of the Sigil

The Ancient Greek letters for Valefor's Name in arrangement.

On Valerefontis and Bellerophon

The ritual identifies Valefor with Bellerophon (Greek: Βελλεροφόντης , Bellerophontes), the Corinthian hero-king who tamed the winged horse Pegasus with a golden bridle given by Athena (Pindar, Olympian XIII.63-92) and slew the fire-breathing Chimaira (Homer, Iliad VI.155-195). The name Valerefontis is a Latinized form of Bellerophontes , preserving the original through phonetic shift (B→V, a common Latin-Greek interchange). The Goetic names Valefor , Valefar , and Malafar are further contractions of this same theonym. The Latin root vale ("be well, be strong") embedded in the name connects Bellerophon's heroic identity to his healing function: the hero who conquered the Chimaira (disease in its triple form: lion-head for ferocity, goat-body for chronic persistence, serpent-tail for hidden venom) is the divine physician who conquers illness in all its manifestations. (Sources: Homer, Iliad VI.155-195; Pindar, Olympian XIII.63-92; Apollodorus, Bibliotheca II.3.1-2; Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On Valefor (Goetic #6)

The Goetia lists Valefor as the sixth spirit: a Duke commanding 10 legions, appearing as a lion with the head of a donkey (or a many-headed lion). His attributed power of "tempting people to steal" is a Yehuboric inversion of his true function: the God who steals disease from the body, who robs affliction of its hold on the flesh, who takes away what harms and returns what heals. The lion form preserves the solar heroism of Bellerophon, and the multiple heads may recall the multiple heads of the Chimaira he slew: the healer who has conquered a multi-headed disease carries its image as a trophy. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

On Zephyrus and the Anemoi

Zephyrus (Greek: Ζέφυρος) is the God of the Western Wind, the gentlest of the four Anemoi (Wind Gods). Son of Eos (Dawn) and Astraios (the Starry One), brother of Boreas (North), Notos (South), and Euros (East). Homer (Odyssey V.295) describes Zephyrus as the wind that carries ships safely across the sea. Hesiod (Theogony 379) names him among the children of Eos. In Roman tradition he is Favonius, the "favorable one," whose warm breath heralds spring. His role in the ritual as the one who restores stolen blessings corresponds to his mythological function: the western wind that brings the season of renewal after the barrenness of winter. The "Triad of Air Gods" referenced in the ritual comprises Zephyrus and two of his brothers, forming a triple invocation of the winds. (Sources: Homer, Odyssey V.295; Hesiod, Theogony 378-380; Ovid, Fasti V.195-220; Pausanias, Description of Greece I.37.2)

On Zepar (Goetic #16)

The Goetia lists Zepar as the sixteenth spirit: a Duke commanding 26 legions. His attributed power (causing love and union between men and women) corresponds to Zephyrus's mythological role as the wind of spring, the season of courtship and fertility. In the myth of Chloris/Flora, Zephyrus carries away the nymph and transforms her into the Goddess of flowers and spring (Ovid, Fasti V.195-220). The name Zepar directly preserves Zephyr with minimal phonetic alteration. (Sources: Weyer, Pseudomonarchia Daemonum , 1577; Ars Goetia , 17th c.)

Context Note

Zethus and his twin brother Amphion are sons of Zeus and Antiope. Together they built the great walls of Thebes, but by opposite means: Amphion played his lyre and the stones rose by themselves; Zethus hauled them on his back with the raw force of his body. Zethus is the crow, the dark manifestation (MAL-phas), the builder who shapes reality through will and labor and the ache of muscle against rock. His Ritual stands alongside his brother's as the other half of a divine pair. The pylons of the soul are built from both sides: through muscle and through music, through the black bird and through the white. [Focus on the Sigil willing this so.]

The Goetic tradition preserved you as Malphas , the thirty-ninth spirit, a President commanding 40 legions. The mouths of Yehubor have uttered of you, "a crow who speaks with a hoarse voice, who builds houses and high towers, and reveals the desires and thoughts of enemies." The Zevists know the truth: You are ZETHUS , son of Zeus and Antiope, the Brute Builder of Thebes, whose raw strength raised the stones that his twin brother's lyre had summoned. He who "builds houses and high towers" builds the pylons of the soul through sheer will and the refusal to quit. He who "reveals the desires of enemies" possesses the crow's sight: the black bird that watches from above, that sees the carrion before it falls, that knows which creature is dying before it knows itself. The crow is his true form: the black bird, the dark manifestation, MAL-phas, the Shadow Appearance. About the Ritual Platform

Source: https://tozrituals.org/about

About ToZ Rituals What is ToZ Rituals ToZ Rituals is the official platform for the Rituals of the Gods, created for and maintained by the Temple of Zeus community. All rituals, psalms, blessings, and theurgic workings published here originate from the writings of High Priest Zevios Metathronos through his communion with the Gods. The Rituals of the Gods The Rituals of the Gods are sacred workings given to humanity for spiritual advancement, protection, empowerment, and communion with the Divine. They cover the major Gods and Goddesses of the ancient Pantheon and are meant to be practiced by dedicated members of the Temple of Zeus. These rituals are not symbolic or merely ceremonial. They are real spiritual workings that invoke the presence and power of the Gods. Each ritual has been written with precision and spiritual intent, following the ancient theurgic tradition restored by the High Priest. The Temple of Zeus The Temple of Zeus is the Ancient and Original religion of humanity. Founded in 2002, the Temple is dedicated to the restoration and preservation of the spiritual knowledge of the Ancient Gods, who have been worshipped by humanity for over 40,000 years across the Hellenic, Egyptian, Sumerian, Hindu, and Norse spiritual traditions. Under the leadership of High Priest Zevios Metathronos, the Temple stands against the historical suppression of this knowledge by Abrahamic monotheism, which falsely branded the Ancient Gods as evil. The Temple's core faith is rooted in the ancient Pagan spiritual Mysteries and centers on the total transformation of the soul through direct communion with the Gods. Unlike religions that rely on blind faith, the Temple of Zeus encourages questioning everything, pursuing scientific knowledge, and striving for personal spiritual advancement. There are no mediators between the individual and the Gods. The ministry exists solely for guidance and support on the path to spiritual enlightenment. For more about the Temple, visit templeofzeus.org . If you are ready to walk this path, dedicate your soul to Zeus . Community The Temple of Zeus community gathers on the Ancient Forums , where members discuss spiritual practice, share experiences, and support each other on the path. All are welcome to join.

Liturgical Terms

Source: https://tozrituals.org/liturgical-terms

I. Liturgical Epithets: AENAOS In the Rituals, certain Divine Names are accompanied by epithets. These are not decorative additions but functional elements that extend and direct the vibration of the Name. The most important epithet is AENAOS (Ἀέναος), meaning “Eternal” , “Ever-flowing” , “Unceasing” . It derives from the Ancient Greek αἰ (always) and νάω (to flow). The image is of a river that never runs dry: divine power that flows without interruption from its source. When you vibrate ZEFS AENAOS , you are not merely saying “Eternal Zeus.” You are affirming that the power of Zeus flows ceaselessly through the Ritual, through the Initiate, and through all things. The epithet transforms the Name from an address into an invocation of continuous presence. Usage in Ritual ZEFS AENAOS x10 : Vibrated to invoke the unceasing flow of Zeus’s power. SATANAMA AENAOS x10 : Vibrated to affirm the eternal cycle of creation and return. II. ZEFS: The Liturgical Name of Zeus ZEFS (Ζεύς) is the liturgical form of the Name of the Supreme God. It is not a translation or an approximation. It is the direct nominative form of the Ancient Greek Name, rendered in a way that is vibrationally effective for modern practitioners. The Name carries within it the Proto-Indo-European root *Dyeus , meaning “Sky” and “Shining.” The same root gives us the Latin Deus (God), the Sanskrit Dyaus Pita (Sky Father), and the Lithuanian Dievas . When you vibrate ZEFS, you are speaking the oldest known word for “God” in the Indo-European tradition. Other liturgical forms of the Name used across the Rituals include DIAS (Δίας, the modern Greek form), ZINA (from the accusative Ζῆνα, “You who creates”), and DEUS PATAR (the archaic vocative, “Father God”). Each form emphasizes a different aspect of the Godhead. The Three Names of Power (Grand Ritual of Zeus) ZEFS : He who gathers and unites all things. DIAS : He who divides and severs as required, who decides fates. ZINA : He who creates and gives life from the Eternal Aether. III. The Tenfold Ethical Framework The Temple of Zeus possesses a complete ethical and theological vocabulary that names both the pathologies of the spirit and their corresponding states of health. These are not descriptions of peoples or nations. They are descriptions of spiritual conditions that can afflict any being, institution, or tradition. Each of the ten terms has a pathological form (the disease) and a healthy counterpart (the remedy). Together they constitute the Corpus Pathologiae Theologicae of Zevism. I. Yehubor / Theophoros : What you are (false sanctity vs. true God-bearing) II. Birburim / Hierologia : What you say (barbarous speech vs. sacred speech) III. Atibilibil / Diaugeia : What you produce in others (confusion vs. clarity) IV. Sahiburah / Sahu Katharos : What you do to God’s body (desecration vs. purification) V. Varvarim / Harmonia : What you do to the world’s body (wars vs. harmony) VI. Eilotil / Theoteknia : What you do to the God-human bond (enslavement vs. divine kinship) VII. Istoriyach / Alethomnesis : What you do to time (false history vs. true memory) VIII. Epistemot / Epistemodia : What you do to the mind (death of knowledge vs. its path) IX. Kagoim / Pantomysteia : Whom you exclude from the Divine (exclusion vs. universal initiation) X. Izfet / Ma’atit : The crowning dipole (entropy of the sacred vs. cosmic order restored) For the full exposition of each term, see: Temple of Zeus: Liturgical Terms IV. Voces Magicae: The Magickal Names Throughout the Rituals you will encounter Names that appear unusual, palindromic, or beyond ordinary language. These are Voces Magicae (Voices of Power). They are theophoric Names given directly by the Gods . They carry the power of the Gods within them and contain untouchable divine forces that operate beyond human comprehension. These Names are not to be analyzed mechanically. They are to be vibrated with reverence. Their power is inherent and self-activating. The practitioner need only speak them with intention. ABLANATHANALBA AKRAMMACHAMAREI SESEGGENBARPHARAGGES MASKELLI MASKELLO PHNOUKEN TABAOTH OREOBAZAGRA Palindromic Names (those that read the same forwards and backwards) signify eternal return : power that circles back to its origin and cannot be broken. They are seals of completion placed by the Gods themselves. V. The Original Names of the Gods The Gods of the Rituals are known by many Names across many cultures. The Temple of Zeus recognizes that these are the same Divine Beings, worshipped under different guises by different civilizations. The project of the Temple is to restore the Original Names where they have been obscured. Many of the Gods listed in the Rituals bear both their ancient, recognized Name and a Goetic designation. The pairing reveals the identity behind the medieval distortion: Astaroth is Aphrodite / Astarte / Isis Azazel is Apollo Andras is Ares Bifrons is Janus Aamon is Amon Ra Ipos is Anubis Morax is Maat Asmodeus is Eshmun Haagenti is Bastet Neberius is Cerberus Oriax is Osiris Bathin is Nephthys This restoration is ongoing. Some identifications are firmly established through linguistic, functional, and mythological evidence. Others remain under investigation. The Temple approaches this work with scholarly rigor and spiritual honesty. VI. The Goetic Names The 72 Spirits listed in the Ars Goetia are ancient Gods whose Names were distorted over the centuries. The Goetic Names have true roots and carry real vibrational power, but they are not central to our task. They are used as a mechanism : a functional key that still opens the door to the God. The focus of the Rituals is on the True Names . The Goetic designation serves as a bridge during the period of restoration. Both Names may appear in the same Ritual. This is transition: the God is reached through the known channel while the original Name is spoken again. Example: Marbas Power Ritual The Ritual vibrates: MAR-PTAS x10, BAR-BAS x10 (Goetic Names, functional). It also vibrates: POLYDEUKES x10, DIOSKOUROI x3 (the True Name, restored). Both reach the God. The True Name reaches deeper. VII. SATANAMA SATANAMA is a Sanskrit mantra composed of four seed syllables: The Four Syllables SA : Infinity, the totality of all that exists. TA : Life, the creative force, birth. NA : Death, transformation, dissolution. MA : Rebirth, regeneration, return. Together, SATANAMA encodes the eternal cycle of existence : creation, sustenance, destruction, and renewal. It is the sound-form of the cosmic process itself. In the Rituals, SATANAMA is vibrated either as a continuous word or in its split form (SA-TA-NA-MA), where each syllable receives individual emphasis. Both forms are valid. The split form allows the practitioner to meditate on each phase of the cycle independently. The mantra has no inherent connection to any single deity. It is a universal principle expressed in sacred sound. Its presence in the Rituals affirms that the Temple of Zeus recognizes and operates within the framework of eternal cyclical truth shared across all authentic spiritual traditions. VIII. SATYA: Eternal Truth SATYA is the Sanskrit word for Truth , specifically Truth in its eternal, unchanging, absolute form. It derives from the root SAT , meaning “that which is,” “being,” “the real.” SAT is one of the most fundamental concepts in Vedic philosophy. It is cognate with the Latin esse (to be) and the Greek eon (being). When you vibrate SAT or SATYA, you are affirming the primordial fact of existence itself: that which is real, as opposed to that which is illusory. In the Rituals, SATYA appears as a vibration that precedes or follows affirmations of divine truth. It functions as a seal of reality : what is spoken in the Ritual is not wish or fantasy, but is aligned with the structure of what truly is. The SAT Root Across Traditions SAT (Sanskrit) : Being, truth, reality. ON (Greek, ΩN) : “The Being,” the eternal divine principle in Hellenic theology. Both traditions name the same principle: God is that which IS. IX. The Shenu Ring The Shenu Ring (also known as the Shen Ring) is an ancient Egyptian hieroglyphic symbol representing eternity, protection, and divine encirclement . It takes the form of a loop of rope with no beginning and no end, often depicted as an elongated oval. In Egyptian usage, the Shenu encircled the Names of Pharaohs and Gods, forming what is known as a cartouche . The encirclement signified that the Named being was protected by the eternal power of the cosmos. Nothing could penetrate the ring; the Name within was inviolable. In the Rituals of the Temple of Zeus, the Shenu Ring encapsulates each God’s Sigil. This is not a decorative choice. It is a functional seal of protection : the God’s power, concentrated in the Sigil, is enclosed within the eternal ring and thereby made invulnerable to interference. The Shenu symbol also survived in Chinese tradition as a glyph for Spiritual Force, Divine Force, and God, demonstrating its universality across civilizations. In Practice During Ritual, the Runes are vibrated around the centre of the Sigil where the Shenu Ring is. You can imagine this lighting up intensely, like the Sun surrounded by a layer of light. The Shenu is the boundary that contains and amplifies the vibrational energy directed into the Sigil. X. The Sigil of the God At the bottom of each Ritual page, you will find a Sigil : a geometric symbol unique to each God. These are the Goetic Sigils, and they are among the most ancient and powerful elements inherited by the Western magical tradition. The Goetic Sigils are not medieval inventions. They originate from Divine Alchemy and Sumerian sacred geometry . They were transmitted through Babylonian, Egyptian, and Hellenistic channels before being codified in the grimoire tradition. The medieval framework demonized the Gods but preserved the Sigils intact, because the Sigils were understood to be operationally necessary: without them, contact with the God was impossible. Each Sigil is a geometric signature of the God's vibrational essence. It is not a portrait or a symbol in the conventional sense. It is a pattern that resonates with the specific frequency of the God's power. When you focus on the Sigil during Ritual, you are aligning your consciousness with that frequency. The Sigils are truthful. They have been tested across centuries by practitioners of every tradition, and they continue to function as intended. The Temple uses them with full awareness of their origin and their power. XI. The Shenu Name Sigil Distinct from the Goetic Sigil, each Ritual also features a Shenu Name Sigil : an arrangement of symbols, letters, and sacred forms enclosed within a Shenu Ring. These contain elements drawn from Ancient Egyptian, Ancient Greek, and other sacred languages. The Shenu Name Sigils are divine creations . Their design was ordered by the Gods under the knowledge of the High Priest. Their composition is mysterious. They should remain unaltered and they cannot be altered, for their structure is not a human invention but a transmission of divine will into visible form. For the Initiate, the Shenu Name Sigil is the primary visual gateway to the God. Just as vibrating the Name aloud opens a channel of sound, meditating upon the Shenu Name Sigil opens a channel of sight. The Initiate who contemplates the Shenu Name Sigil after the Ritual is receiving the God's power directly through the visual plane. The study of the Shenu Name Sigils is a major practice in itself. Each Sigil rewards sustained contemplation with deeper understanding of the God's nature, attributes, and the specific form of power that the God extends to the practitioner. This study is not intellectual analysis but meditative immersion: the Initiate gazes, receives, and in time, recognizes. XII. The Prayer in the Ritual Each Ritual contains sections of affirmation, which are its prayers . These are not incidental. They are the theological spine of the Ritual, and they serve three simultaneous functions: 1. To Pray. The affirmations are addressed to the God. They are genuine petitions, expressions of devotion, and declarations of need. When the Initiate says "Protect us, Great Lord," this is a real prayer. The Ritual is not a performance. It is an act of communication between the human and the divine. 2. To Venerate. The affirmations honor the God by reciting the God's attributes, deeds, and Names. This veneration is not flattery. It is recognition. By naming what the God is and what the God does, the Initiate affirms the reality of the God's power and aligns with it. Veneration is the act of seeing the God clearly and declaring what is seen. 3. To Define. The affirmations define the content and purpose of the Ritual itself. Each prayer tells both the God and the Initiate what this specific Ritual is for: absolution, protection, empowerment, blessing, or restoration. The prayer is the Ritual's statement of intent. Without it, the Runes and Mantras have energy but no direction. The prayer gives the energy its purpose and its destination. The Three Layers in Practice "Blessed is your Eternal Power" = Veneration (recognizing the God's nature). "Protect us, Great Lord" = Prayer (petitioning the God). "We of the Temple of Zeus come to you in Zeus's Name" = Definition (establishing who is speaking and under what authority). The practitioner should speak each affirmation with full attention and genuine feeling. The words are not merely read. They are offered.
